Praises Committee's Work in Studying Candidates for Board to Consider Revision of City Charter.

Mayor Raymond R. Tucker today supported a slate of 13 candidates indorsed by the St. Louis Citizens Charter Committee yesterday for the board of freeholders that will be elected May 8 to consider revision of the city charter.

A 13-member board will be elected from a list of 45 candidates.

Recalling an earlier pledge to support the slate selected by the citizens group, Mayor Tucker said: "I am sorry that only 13 could be chosen. There are many others among the candidates who are well qualified for the post."

Mayor Tucker praised the work of the Citizens Charter Committee which was headed by Tom K. Smith, chairman of the board of Boatmen's National Bank. The members of the citizens group were selected originally by a committee of winners of the St. Louis Award.

City Treasurer John J. Dwyer, chairman of the Democratic City Central Committee, withheld comment on the slate. He said the city committee had not selected a slate as yet but probably would discuss the matter soon.

Charles P. McBride, chairman of the Republican City Central Committee, could not be reached for comment.

Five Lawyers on List.

The list approved by the citizens' group includes five lawyers, two labor leaders, a physician, a school principal, a banker, a sales engineer, a housewife and the owner of a small business.

This is the list:

C. B. Broussard, Negro, 4973 Northland avenue, principal of Dumas Elementary School.

Frederick E. Busse, 1740 Grape avenue, attorney.

David M. Grant, Negro, 2620 Lawton boulevard, attorney.

Dr. Ralph A. Kinsella, 4954 Lindell boulevard, physician.

John J. Nally, 5834 Westminster place, business representative of Local 18, AFL Tile Layers and Marble Masons Union.

Henry B. Pflager, 47 Westmoreland place, attorney.

Mrs. Conrad Sommer, 5327 Waterman boulevard, housewife and former president, St. Louis League of Women Voters.

George L. Stemmler, 4541 Maryland avenue, attorney and former city counselor.

Frank L. G. Weiss, 5536 Emerson avenue, hardware store owner.

Selected as a Team.

Both the executive committee and Chairman Smith emphasized that the list of 13 was selected as a team rather than as 13 individuals to be supported.

"In other words," Smith told the full committee, "we found ourselves reaching for a balanced team, 13 persons who could altogether, if not individually, give all of our major groups in St. Louis and all parts of our city the voice they obviously deserve in the study

ILLINOIS VOTING IN PRESIDENTIAL PRIMARY TODAY

Rain Holds Down Early Voting in Eisenhower-Stevenson Popularity Poll.

CHICAGO, April 10 (AP) — A popularity poll for President Eisenhower and his 1952 Democratic opponent, Adlai E. Stevenson, features the Illinois presidential preference primary today.

Stevenson's name is alone on the Democratic presidential ballot, but Senator Estes Kefauver, another aspirant, is expected to figure in the vote. Backers of the Tennessee Senator have urged write-in votes. Mr. Eisenhower has only token opposition in the Republican primary.

4 Major State Races.

The presidential preference primary took the spotlight away from the state and local races. There were only four major state contests, and political experts predicted a turnout of about 2,000,000 of the state's nearly 5,000,000 registered voters.

Voting hours are from 6 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Rain and cool weather over the state resulted in light early voting.

Asked by an election judge whether he wanted a Republican or Democratic party ballot, Stevenson replied: "Democratic. They haven't convinced me that I should change yet."

Political observers say the results of the presidential preferential primary should show some important trends as to the three candidates compared to their showing in the state's 1952 primary and the 1952 general election.

Important to Stevenson.

Stevenson, in his final bid for support in a television broadcast last night, said: "This one means a great deal to me." He added that the "whole nation" will be watching the Illinois results.

The former Illinois Governor, political followers say, must make a strong showing to offset the upset victory scored by Kefauver in the Minnesota primary last month.

They also believe a heavy write-in vote for Kefauver in Stevenson's home state would be a road block in his bid for winning a second presidential nomination. Also mentioned as possible write-ins were Gov. Frank J. Lausche of Ohio and Senator Stuart Symington of Missouri.

Kefauver was the only Democrat in the Illinois 1952 primary and received 526,301 votes. Stevenson, who was renominated for Governor, got 54,336 write-in presidential votes.

Stevenson has predicted Kefauver "will get a substantial write-in vote." The Tennessee Senator has not campaigned in Illinois personally. Their next head-on contest will be in the May 29 primary in Florida.

Eisenhower backers will watch results to see if he has

BLACK PANTIES FLUTTER ATOP BIG BEN TOWER

LONDON, April 10 (AP)—A pair of filmy black nylon panties fluttered atop the Houses of Parliament today.

A pair of pranksters, Anthony Read, a 20-year-old artists' model, and Rodney Bewes, 18, rowed across the Thames shortly after midnight, scaled the 320-foot scaffold-shrouded Big Ben clock tower, and fixed the panties to the lightning conductor.

A passing policeman spotted the pair as they shuffled across the lighted face of the clock on their way down—and the chase was on. Seven squad cars turned out and a police launch on the river pinned Bewes and Read to the building with a searchlight.

"It was lovely," said Anthony. He and his friend were arrested and questioned for three hours. They were released.

WILL 'WRITTEN' BY OUIJA BOARD IS HELD INVALID

BETHEL, Conn., April 10 (AP)—A $180,000 will in favor of a "friend from the spirit world" was thrown out of probate court yesterday.

The 1941 will of Mrs. Helen Dow Peck left $178,000 to a "John Gale Forbes," whose name supposedly was conjured up by Mrs. Peck on a ouija board.

According to lawyers for nine nieces and nephews opposing the will, Mrs. Peck and her husband used a ouija board until 1921.

Mrs. Peck died last year at the age of 84. She left $1000 apiece to two employes, and stipulated that if John Gale Forbes could not be found the money be used for research in telepathy.

Probate Judge Averice Lavalla said he barred the will on the ground that 15 years ago, when it was drawn, Mrs. Peck was not competent.

Trainee Pay Boost to Eisenhower.

WASHINGTON, April 10 (AP) —Congress sent to President Eisenhower yesterday a bill to increase the pay of six-month trainees in the armed services from $50 to $78 a month.

LED DEATH HIKE FOR 'DISCIPLINE,' SERGEANT SAYS

Marine, Held Pending Inquiry Into Drowning of Six, Tells of March in Swamp.

PARRIS ISLAND, S.C., April 10 (AP)—A Marine sergeant who led 75 recruits into a tidal stream where six drowned said today that he ordered the night march "to teach them discipline."

S. Sgt. Matthew C. McKeon, 31 years old, of Worcester, Mass., would not talk to reporters before a closed inquiry into the Sunday night tragedy began at the headquarters building of this Marine Corps recruit depot.

But he issued a statement through his counsel, Lt. Jeremiah Collins, Newark, N.Y.

Gen. Randolph Pate, Marine Corps commandant, said at a news conference that McKeon did not have authority for disciplinary matters nor for ordering such a march.

Gen. Pate said such a march was "most unsual," and it was the first time he had heard of such a thing happening.

Maj. Gen. Joseph C. Burger, commanding general of the base, also said the March was unscheduled.

Gen. Pate said he felt that the Marine Corps could handle the matter without a congressional inquiry. He said he hoped the board would complete its inquiry this week.

The recruits were taken into a swampy marshland bordering this training base. As the official inquiry began some of the survivors related tales of swirling cold water, inky blackness and panic.

McKeon's statement said:

"The words 'I'm storry' expressed to the parents can't tell them how I feel, because I can't find words to express my grief. My purpose in taking the platoon to the river was to teach them discipline.

"I led them to the water and went in first. I went out a little distance and then traveled parallel to the bank. It is no excuse that I had not been in the area before and did not realize the stream we entered was a tidal stream, or that it was unusually deep for the area.

"The platoon followed me into the stream. I noticed some went to far out. I ordered the platoon out of the water. Then I saw some were in distress. I started toward them.

Took Man to Shore.

"I brought one man back to shore. Then I started back for others. One man who I thought was all right grabbed me for assistance. We both went down.

"I struggled for some minutes to get him out of the water, but he fought wildly. He went limp and I couldn't find him.

"I swam towards a group of about four or five men but the tide was too strong and they disappeared. I was the last one out of the water.

"Some of the men undoubtedly died trying to save others."

Gen. Pate said before returning to Washington by plane that the purpose of the court of inquiry would be to ascertain whether the sergeant's act was disciplinary.

He said McKeon was a junior instructor who had a good reputation with his seniors as a drill instructor. Pate also referred to McKeon's "very fine past record" in the Navy and Marine Corps.

McKeon was assigned to Parris Island in February, about the time that his platoon came here to begin training. McKeon's wife and their two small children live at nearby Port Royal, S. C.

'Nothing to Hide.'

Gen. Burger was asked why nothing about the tragedy was announced until Monday afternoon. He replied that the men were listed as missing until

It's 'The Treasury Department' After 167 Years Without Name

WASHINGTON, April 10 (AP)—After 167 years of uncertainty, the Treasury has an official name. It is "the Treasury Department," Secretary Humphrey announced today.

Humphrey selected the name, to go up in gold letters on the four sides of the Treasury building, after an informal poll.

"We have chosen 'the Treasury Department,' suggested by 18 persons, which is one of the two names used in the act of Sept. 2, 1789, under which the Treasury was chartered," Humphrey said. He added that he likes that name because it is "short and simple."

The whole thing started when Humphrey recently decided his headquarters should be identified for the public. The General Services Administration said it would be glad to put up the lettering if the Treasury would just say how it styled itself officially.

Officials could not find that the Treasury had ever been endowed with any one particular name. The act of Congress which chartered it referred both to "the Treasury Department" and "Department of the Treasury."

So Humphrey appealed to the public last week for suggestions. He got about 125—some of them facetious, such, for example, as "the Shake, Rattle and Roll building," "Jesse James Investment Corp." "The Gold Nugget," and "United States Monetary Hall."

'BLACKMAIL' OF ARMY MEN BY CLOTHING MAKERS HINTED

Senate Witness Has 'Impression' Ex-Partner Gave Bonds to Military Personnel to Get Hold on Them.

WASHINGTON, April 10 (AP) —An immigrant garment maker from Russia testified today he had "the impression" his former partner gave bonds to Army employes, then "blackmailed" those who accepted.

Nathan Berger, a New York City clothing manufacturer, told the story as the lead-off witness before the Senate Investigations subcommittee. Chairman McClellan (Dem.), Arkansas, has said the group expects to show at public hearings that there were illegal, unethical and immoral business activities" in connection with armed services clothing contracts.

McClellan said he would try to trace $1,000,000 worth of bonds he said two manufacturers acquired under false names, and find out whether the bonds "were used as pay-offs to government personnel" or for income tax avoidance.

'Silent Partner.'

Berger said he got his "impression" about the bonds from Joey Abrams, another New York garment maker. Berger said Abrams became his "silent partner" in the manufacture of uniforms for the Army after Abrams had been blacklisted from government bidding.

Gregory Harrington, a Bronx bond trader, testified that he sold Joey Abrams municipal and other bonds of a par value of $3,105,000 in a two-year period ending early in 1953, with purchases made in Abrams's own name.

In the same period, Harrington said, Abrams purchased bonds of a par value of $2,867,000, in names that supposedly were those of business associates.

Met Only One.

Of the 27 other supposed bond buyers, Harrington said, the only one he ever met was Herman Kravitz, another clothing manufacturer.

"Do you know if the other 26 were fictitious or real?" Senator McClellan asked.

"I was told by Government people most of them were fictitious," Harrington said, "I'm not clear that all of them were. But I'm convinced most of them were."

He said he quit doing business with Abrams when he learned he was under "investigation for the theft of Government property."

Berger said "everybody knew" that Abrams and two associates, Samuel and Herman Kravitz of New York, were buying large quantities of bonds.

He said he got "the impression from Abrams" that the latter gave some of the bonds to Army personnel handling his contracts for the manufacture of military uniforms. Berger said he also shared with others "the joint impression" that those who accepted became subject to "blackmail."

"It was the joint impression that if some of these bonds went to Government personnel they were used for blackmail," the witness said.

He said an employe who owned bonds and couldn't show how he go them ould be forced to do profitable favors for a contractor who knew about it.

Denies Bribery.

Berger, who said "I don't pretend to be an angel," said he never paid a bribe and never actually saw one paid.

Berger testified he came to the United States in 1908 from "Minsk, in Polish Russia," and got a quick start in the clothing business in which he said he has made and lost a fortune. He said he produced between $10,000,000 and $15,000,000 worth of uniforms in the war years from 1940 through 1945 under Government contracts.

Berger testified that he started making civilian clothing after the war but in 1949 tried to get some Army uniform con-

BOHLEN TO GET CADILLAC TO HELP PRESTIGE IN RUSSIA

WASHINGTON, April 10 (AP) —The United States ambassador to Russia, Charles E. Bohlen, won't have to ride around Moscow much longer in the battered old automobile that prompted a Congressional protest.

A slightly used Cadillac has been acquired by the State Department for the Ambassador's use. It was reported to have been purchased in Europe but has not yet been transported to Moscow. The cost was not immediately available.

The condition of the car which Bohlen had been using was sharply criticized by Representative Patrick H. Hillings (Rep.), California, on a visit to Russia last August.

He was displeased that Bohlen had to drive around Moscow in a battered old automobile with the American flag flying from a dented fender.

The car Bohlen has been using is a four or five year old Chrysler splashed with paint jobs and repair patches.

U.N. SECRETARY IN CAIRO AFTER MEETING ISRAELIS

Border Clashes Still Raging — Hammarskjold Accompanied by Truce Chief, Gen. Burns.

TEL AVIV, April 10 (AP)—United Nations Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold opened his Palestine peace mission today against a backdrop of mounting Arab-Israeli violence. He held a brief conference with Israeli government officials here then went on to Egypt.

Hammarskjold landed this morning at Lydda airport southeast of Tel Aviv and was met by Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns, U.N. truce chief. He spent two hours in consultation with Burns and other U.N. officials, then came to Tel Aviv for lunch with the Israeli leaders.

This afternoon, he flew to Cairo, accompanied by Burns. There he is to meet Egyptian Premier Nasser. He will return to Israel Monday, a spokesman said.

Clashes Continue.

Border clashes continued unchecked yesterday and last night despite the imminent arrival of the U.N. Secretary seeking means of dampering Arab-Israeli tension.

An official Syrian spokesman reported in Damascus that an Israeli military attempt to penetrate Syrian territory was checked last night by a Syrian patrol. He said the Israelis tried to cross the truce line near the Syrian village of El Zawiah about midnight but were driven back by the patrol's gunfire, leaving behind grenades and ammunition. These were presented to U.N. observers who made an on-the-spot investigation. There were no Syrian casualties, the spokesman said.

An Egyptian spokesman at Gaza said an Issraeli patrol of 30 soldiers crossed the demarcation line near Deir el Ballah south of Gaza yesterday afternoon and opened fire on Egyptian forces but was driven back after a half-hour of fighting. He said there were no Egyptian casualties but Egypt had protested against the incident to the mixed Armistice Commission.

'Acts of Sabotage.'

An Israeli Foreign Office spokesman charged Egypt was responsible for "acts of sabotage and murder" by Arab fedayeen bands.

The spokeman quoted a broadcast from the Cairo radio this morning as saying:

"The Israelis believed that the Egyptian forces would not reach them and that the penetration of any military forces into Israel would bring about the intervention of the great powers.

"The operations carried out by the fedayeen on Saturday put an end to the quiet enjoyed by Israel."

The Foreign Ministry spokesman said the broadcast "boasting of acts of aggression against Israel civilians, followed the urgent appeal by Gen. Burns to Col. Nasser to insure the cessation of all acts of hostility."

"The broadcast was an open

BIRD HONKS AUTO HORN, BUT DRIVER GETS THE TICKET

NEW YORK, April 10 (UP)— Patrolmen enforcing New York's campaign against auto horn honkers got the bird on Broadway yesterday.

Police were attracted by honking the like of which had not been heard since the city decreed fines of $10 to $50 for unnecessary honking last month.

There they found a man with a bird whistle standing beside a parked car producing a cawing noise. Inside the car was a crow doing a buck-and-wing on the horn ring.

The tootler identified himself as Joseph Albanese, Valley Stream (N.Y.) salesman. He told police one of two pet crows flew out the auto window. He said he left the other crow in the car as he stepped out to try to lure the escaped bird back with a mating call.

Albanese said he really wasn't responsible for a crow doing the honking, but the patrolmen gave him a ticket just the same. They let him continue his attempts to find his missing pet, but he had no success.

FIREMAN ACCUSED OF ARSON AFTER FIRE HOUSE BURNS

DUMONT, N.J., April 10 (AP) —A volunteer fireman, chairman of a fund drive for a new fire house, was charged with arson last night in connection with a blaze which destroyed his company's old headquarters.

Lt. John Carey was accused of starting the blaze which burned down fire house No. 2 early Sunday with injuries to four of his colleagues.

Carey, who is married and the father of six children, was released in $10,000 bail after his arraignment.

Neither police nor Bergen county detectives would ascribe any motive to the alleged arson. Carey, a volunteer fireman for five years, was named last Friday as chairman of a drive seeking $35,000 to build a new fire house.

RUSSIA OFFERING ECONOMIC HELP TO WEST EUROPE

The New York Times News Service.

GENEVA, April 10—The Russian Minister of Foreign Trade invited west European countries yesterday to look to Russia for their needs when dollar aid runs out.

In a major policy speech Ivan G. Kabanov, Russian delegate to the United Nations Economic Commission for Europe, held out glowing vistas of an expanding Soviet economy, ready to supply Western Europe with just those things that it lacks. He emphasized particularly the planned growth in Russian production of crude oil and coal.

This was a shrewd stroke. In a speech prepared before hearing the Russian discourse, Maurice Faure, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs of France, stressed the increasing strain that French, and West European, industrial growth is putting on indigenous energy resources.

It is generally accepted that the supply of energy is the most important single problem for the rapidly expanding West European industrial complex. The political disturbances in the oil-producing Middle East make this painfully obvious to every Western European.

Russia, Kabanov said, will be producing 135,000,000 tons of petroleum by 1960. Western economists here are inclined to believe this is well within a practical range. He also said that Russia's coal output would rise in the next five years by more than the total present British output. This is also regarded by independent economists as well within Russian capabilities.

(The Associated Press quoted Kabanov as saying Russia has granted credits totaling 21,000,000,000 rubles — $5,000,000,000

Miss Kelly Too Tall---Bashful Prince Balks at Opening Dance

MONTE CARLO, April 10 (UP) — Prince Rainer III's bashfulness threatened today to turn a big pre-wedding party for him and his bride-to-be into a flop.

When he discovered that he was expected to open the dancing at the $100,000 party Monte Carlo is giving for them April 15, the prince, acutely aware that Grace Kelly is a trifle taller than he, thought about waltzing with the beautiful actress while the rest of the guests watched.

Nothing doing, he said. And since he is absolute ruler here, what he says goes.

It is royal protocol that, if the sovereign does not open the dancing, no one dances. It means a sit-down party for the 240 guests.

It never occurred to the sporting club that Rainer might refuse, so it had arranged for four bands to produce all types of dance music from Viennese waltzes to mambo and jive. Just so some of the guests won't be tempted, the club is going to obstruct the floor with potted plants.

NO REQUEST FOR STANDBY RIGHT TO SEND FORCES IS MADE

Secretary Alerts Key Lawmakers on Crisis He and Eisenhower View With 'Utmost Seriousness.'

WASHINGTON, April 10 (AP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles alerted congressional leaders today to a possible Administration request for use of American forces in the Middle East if acute danger develops there.

House Republican Leader Martin of Massachusetts, said no such request by President Eisenhower was contemplated "at this time," but that if the danger develops there would "of course" be a request.

Martin said Dulles's alert was in the nature of "talk of what might come."

He made that comment when questioned about a possible Administration request for Congress to adopt a resolution approving United States military intervention in the Middle East.

U.S. to Oppose Aggression.

The meeting of Dulles with the congressional leaders followed a White House statement issued late yesterday at Augusta, Ga., in which President Eisenhower said the United States was "determined to support and assist any nation" subjected to aggression in the Middle East.

Dulles briefed 14 House and Senate chiefs at a meeting in the State Department's map room. Officials said he heavily stressed concern over the fact that current fighting between Egyptian and Israeli units in the Gaza area had not been brought quickly under control.

One conferee said the group was informed that the Middle Eastern situation was under constant review and American policy was being kept fluid.

If the present attempt to gain peace through the United Nations fails, other alternatives will be tried, he said. There were hints this might be some joint United States-British action.

This conferee said the situation was regarded as grave because Israeli leaders were reported to have issued a 48-hour ultimatum now about to expire. He declined to elaborate on the ultimatum.

Ben-Gurion Deadline.

One report was that Israeli Premier Ben-Gurion had told the U.N. truce supervision chief, Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns, that he would wait until noon today for an effective cease-fire to be agreed to by the Egyptians.

One cause for a sense of emergency here was that it was not known now whether Egyptian Premier Nasser could make a cease-fire effective for the fedayeen (suicide) groups even if he personally felt it should be accepted and fully enforced. These bands have penetrated deep into Israeli territory.

Dulles and the Senate and House leaders met for 90 minutes.

Senate Republican Leader Knowland of California, said when the session broke up that Dulles reviewed the Middle East situation but "no legislative action was requested."

Martin, asked by reporters about a possible request for congressional approval of the use of American forces, replied:

"There was some talk of what might come."

'You Never Can Tell.'

Although Martin said there is "no particular, pressing emergency that we know about," he added: "When nations are shaking their firsts at each other you never can tell when a pressing emergency will arise."

House Speaker Rayburn (Dem.) of Texas and Senate Democratic Leader Johnson of Texas declined to say much more than that they had been briefed by Dulles on the Middle East.

Johnson told newsmen, "It was a thorough briefing but not a very heartening conference." He added:

"The Secretary gave us a rather lengthy briefing on the Near East and the Middle East and stated that the President had asked him to explain our policy in that area.

"He reviewed at some length all the recent developments. He made no requests of us."

8 Republicans, 6 Democrats.

Eight Republicans and six Democrats turned up at 9 a.m. at Dulles's office.

With Dulles were Rod O'Connor, a special assistant for congressional affairs; George V. Allen, assistant secretary for Middle East affairs; State Department Counselor Douglas

WEST REPORTED NEAR ACCORD ON ARMS PLAN, BUT REDS HOLD OUT

Russia Said to Demand Major Changes in Emerging Blueprint of U.S., Britain and France.

LONDON, April 10 (UP)—The United States, Britain and France were reported near agreement on disarmament plans today, but Russia was said to be holding out for major changes in the emerging Western blueprint.

The four powers reconvened with Canada to consider Harold E. Stassen's warning that United States armed forces will be held at their present levels for at least a year—if not increased—unless Russia agrees quickly to join in a cutback to 2,500,000 men.

The United States now has about 2,900,000 men under arms, compared with an estimated 4,000,000 in Russia, 5,000,000 in Red China, and 1,000,000-odd in the European satellite states.

The Western Allies, with the exception of Canada, have submitted divergent arms plans to the five-power conference, but the differences appear to be more a matter of timing than of ultimate intention.

'Very Important' Differences.

Sir Anthony Nutting of Britain and Jules Moch of France are clinging to the hope that the differences between Russia and the West will prove a mere matter of form, but Stassen agrees with Russia's Andrei Gromyko that there are "very important" differences of content dividing East from West.

Authoritative sources said Stassen considers the chief differences to be:

1. Russia has not yet agreed to an adequate system of control and inspection in any field, and especially not in the vital field of atomic weapons.

2. The Russians have proved unwilling to match the U.S. proposal for quick establishment of a ceiling on military manpower.

Rejects British-French Plan.

By the Associated Press.

Diplomatic sources reported yesterday that Russia had definitely turned down the British-French long term arms reduction plan. They said, however, that Russian delegate Gromyko had made no direct comment on the United States working paper for a first stage disarmament program.

The British-French plan calls for an immediate halt in the arms race and full-scale conventional disarmament by stages under elaborate controls leading eventually to a bar on the hydrogen bomb. It is more ambitious than the American proposals which call for partial disarmament in both conventional and nuclear arms as a first stage under present world tension.

TRUMAN ASSERTS HE WILL NOT VISIT UNEASY MIDEAST

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 10 (AP)—Former President Harry Truman said today his forthcoming European tour would avoid the Middle East because of current unrest in that area.

The former President and Mrs. Truman will sail from New York on the United States May 11 and will return to New York July 3. They will be accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Woodward and Gene Bailey, Truman's secretary. Woodward was chief of protocol during most of Truman's administration and later was ambassador to Canada.

A reporter asked Truman if he, as an elder statesman, planned to see any heads of states.

"I'm not an elder statesman. I hate elder statesmen," the former President replied. "I'm a Democrat and a politician and I'm proud of it. I intend to keep it that way."

Referring to the wedding of Truman's daughter, Margaret, scheduled for April 21, a reporter saked Truman if he was going to be scared.

"Have you ever been under artillery fire? I have," he replied.

"I have a good friend who has five daughters. He just gave the last one away, and he told me he finally was beginning to get used to it. I only have one."

POST OFFICE INQUIRY IN OBSCENE MAIL HERE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 10—A postal inspector has been assigned to confer with Circuit Attorney Edward L. Dowd of St. Louis on reported circulation of obscene publications in the St. Louis area, Chief Postal Inspector David H. Stephens said today.

In a letter to Representative Frank M. Karsten (Dem.), St. Louis, Stephens said the conference would be requested "promptly" and a report on the outcome would be sent to Karsten.

Karsten requested an investigation earlier this month, after receiving complaints that obscene and indecent printed matter was being mailed to high school students from outside the state of Missouri. He noted that a recent grand jury report recommended further investigation of the matter.

Brownell Tells House Group Of Aims of Civil Rights Plan

Wants to Avoid 'Unfortunate Collisions' in Criminal Courts Between U.S. and States.

WASHINGTON, April 10 (AP)—Attorney General Herbert Brownell said today one objective of the Administration's new civil rights program was to avoid "unfortunate collisions in the criminal courts between federal and state officials."

Testifying before the House Judiciary Committee, he emphasized that the recommendations for legislation all dealt with extensions of power to take action in the civil courts.

And, he said, he had grave doubt it would be wise to propose any extension of criminal law at this time into "the extraordinarily sensitive and delicate area of civil rights."

Brownell said the difficulty presented by present authority to proceed in criminial courts against civil rights violators is that criminal prosecution can never be begun "until after the harm is done."

He said too that criminal investigations in the past had often stirred ill will in the community and state, and that this kind of feeling might do more harm than good.

Brownell testified behind closed doors. Copies of his prepared testimony were made public after the session.

Example Given.

He gave this example of how expanded authority in the field of civil injunctions might work:

"In 1952, several Negro citizens of a certain county in Mississippi submitted affidavits to us alleging that because of their race the registrar of voters refused to register them.

"Although the Mississippi statutes at that time required only that the applicant be able to read and write the Constitution, these affidavits alleged that the registrar demanded that the Negro citizens answer such questions as 'What is due process of law?' 'How many bubbles in a bar of soap,' etc.

"Those submitting affidavits included college graduates, teachers and business men, yet none of them according to the registrar could meet the voting requirements. If the Attorney General had the power to invoke the injunctive process, the registrar could have been ordered to stop these discriminatory practices and qualify these citizens according to Mississippi law.

"Although the Attorney General, under present statutes, can prosecute after violations of the civil rights laws have occurred, he cannot seek preventive relief in the courts when violations are threatened or, in spite of an occasional arrest or prosecution are persistently repeated."

Fight by Southerners.

The Administration's program appears to face rough-going in Congress. Southern Democrats plan a Senate fight against it.

Senator Lister Hill (Dem.), Alabama, said Attorney General Brownell's recommendations add up to "a political program proposed in an election year."

Hill, who in the past has taken an active part in Senate filibusters by which civil rights bills have been talked to death, added:

"The program deals with problems that can be solved only by the states and local communities. I shall oppose it vigorously."

Senator Hubert H. Humphrey (Dem.), Minnesota, said Republicans were making a "grandstand play" about proposing new measures when he and others already have introduced such bills.

If the Administration wants action, Humphrey said, it can get it "any time as many Republicans as Democrats will stand up and be counted in favor of action in the Senate Judiciary Committee."

The committee is headed by Senator James O. Eastland (Dem.), Mississippi, long-time foe of civil rights legislation. A subcommittee headed by Senator Thomas C. Hennings Jr. (Dem.), Missouri, already has approved bills to set up a special civil rights division and to protect the rights of voters, as well as an anti-lynching measure.

CENTRAL STATES SAFETY CONFERENCE OPENS HERE

The Central States Safety Conference opened its three-day meeting at Hotel Chase today with a luncheon and afternoon sessions, one pertaining to general industrial safety and one to traffic safety.

The conference, held in cooperation with the Safety Council of Greater St. Louis, is being presided over by B. H. Sweeney, president of the council. The sessions will be devoted to every phase of accident prevention.

Thirty-six exhibits of safety equipment of all kinds are on display as well as a safety instruction bus which can be used by the public to test knowledge of subjects vital to safe driving.

WINTER WHEAT FORECAST IS BELOW DECEMBER FIGURE

WASHINGTON, April 10 (AP)—The Agriculture Department today forecast this year's crop of winter wheat at 716,477,000 bushels.

This estimate is 18,961,000 bushels less than the 735,438,000 forecast last December in connection with a planting report. It compares also with 705,372,000 produced last year and 872,625,000 for the 10-year (1945-54) average.

No forecast will be made until June on the production of spring wheat because most of it is yet to be planted.

SPANISH MINISTER HAS CONFERENCES WITH DULLES, AIDS

WASHINGTON, April 10 (UP)—Spanish Foreign Minister Alberto Martin Artajo conferred today with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and other State Department officials.

Dulles and Mrs. Dulles will entertain the Foreign Minister and Senora Martin Artajo tonight at a dinner at Anderson House, headquarters of the Society of the Cincinnati.

Martin Artajo arrived yesterday. Dulles, who was a guest of the Spanish minister and Generalissimo Francisco Franco in Madrid six months ago, met him at National Airport.

The Foreign Minister said he had come to the United States to discuss with Dulles and others the 1953 agreement for establishment of United States bases in Spain.

After a three-day stay here he will go to New York for five days and then return April 18 for a conference with President Eisenhower.

DRIVER FACING TWO TRAFFIC CHARGES KILLS HIMSELF

A coroner's verdict of suicide was returned yesterday in the death of Ronald E. Richter, Belleville, an unemployed truck driver who had been charged in two warrants with traffic violations. He was found shot to death yesterday in a panel truck behind a filling station at 2004 West Main street there. A revolver was beside the body.

Richter, 27 years old, was being sought by Belleville and St. Clair county officers at the time the body was found. Richter was arrested Friday night and fined $100 for driving when intoxicated, police said.

They added that an automobile driven by Richter was in a traffic accident early Sunday on the outskirts of Belleville and two warrants were issued against him charging careless driving and leaving the scene of an accident.

AMMAN, April 10 (AP)—More than 100,000 students in Jordan were on holiday today because of a nation-wide strike by 5000 teachers. The teachers struck two days ago for better working conditions.

ALGERIA BATTLE TOUCHED OFF BY ARAB AMBUSH

140 Killed in Fight After French Recruits Are Caught Away From Post.

ALGIERS, April 10 (AP)—An Arab ambush of two truckloads of young French conscripts touched off a battle that cost the lives of 140 men, French authorities reported today.

Delayed reports from east-central Algeria said the rebels caught the conscripts 2½ miles from their post at Djuerf Thursday morning.

After the initial outburst of gunfire headquarters rushed reinforcements by helicopter and the fight blazed for three hours before the French broke out of the ambush.

Authorities reported 20 French soldiers killed and 30 wounded. French troops found the bodies of 60 rebels and estimated that the Moslems carried off another 40 dead.

Five helicopters were reported damaged. A sixth overturned on landing.

French Press Campaign.

The French pressed their campaign against rebel bands in widespread sections of the North African territory. They reported 28 rebels killed in the Constantine and Bone regions and 14 rebels killed in the Oran area of western Algeria.

The mop-up around Oran was carried out after the murders of a Catholic priest and a French prospector. Two hundred rebel suspects were arrested at Khemis in the Oran area.

In Paris, Premier Guy Mollet announced his support of Algeria Resident Minister Robert Lacoste's call for 200,000 more French troops.

Minister of State Pierre Mendes-France was reported in favor of drastic political reforms to win Moslem loyalty, but the Paris reports said he would back the request for reinforcements.

France already has more than 200,000 soldiers in Algeria. The 16-month rebellion has cost the lives of 3724 French and Moslems by official estimate and more than twice that toll by unofficial count. France has promised to call Algerian elections and negotiate an improved status for the North African territory when peace is restored.

Bourguiba Is Premier.

Meanwhile, in Tunisia, whose independence France recently recognized, Habib Bourguiba was named Premier by the Bey of Tunis, Sidi Mohammed Al Amin. Approval by the Constituent National Assembly is certain.

When it convened yesterday in Tunis, the assembly elected Bourguiba its president. He returned last June after three years in exile during which time he initiated the talks with Paris which resulted in independence.

In Morocco, also granted independence by France recently, a strike involving the United States Air Force continued. The Seventeenth Air Force Command announced it was ready to negotiate through French employers with workers on strike for higher wages. A Moroccan labor union called out 7500 workers at the American installation.

President Urges Steps to Make Military Career More Attractive

Service Must Compete With Civilian Opportunities, He Says — Wilson Cites Replacement Costs.

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 10 (AP) — President Eisenhower called today for speedy congressional approval of a six-point program to bolster "our power for peace" through attracting more American youths to military careers.

"Only when we have created a military career service which can compete with the attractive opportunities available in civilian pursuits will we be able to stop the wasteful losses from our armed forces and attract individuals to those services," Mr. Eisenhower said in identical letters to Vice President Nixon and House Speaker Rayburn.

From his vacation headquarters here, the President also sent along to Congress a letter to him from Secretary of Defense Wilson which said:

"The loss of trained personnel continues to be the most extravagantly expensive and disruptive obstacle to the strengthening of our armed forces today. . . .

'Extremely Expensive.'

"This continuous replacement training process is not only extremely expensive, but it retards the combat effectiveness of our operational units."

Wilson said raising leadership and experience levels in the armed forces would result in "augmenting further our power for peace over the long haul."

Mr. Eisenhower gave Wilson's views hearty indorsement and added:

"We cannot move too soon in our efforts to increase the number and quality of volunteers for long-term military service in both enlisted and officer ranks."

Wilson noted that in response to earlier appeals by Mr. Eisenhower Congress already has taken some steps to attract more career personnel, but the Defense Secretary said there still is urgent need for fast action by Congress to:

1. Remove what he called "inequities and inconsistencies" by providing a system of survivor benefits "that will not only bear some relationship to the attainments of the service man at the time of his death, but would enable widows to maintain at least minimum standards over their life span." The House has passed such a bill, but the Senate has not acted.

2. Assure medical care for all departments of military personnel, either at military hospitals or under an insurance plan at civilian hospitals. Wilson said about 40 per cent of military dependents cannot now be given care through service facilities. He called for Senate approval of this House-passed bill.

Officer Stability.

3. Enact legislation which would place about 50 per cent of Army and Air Force total officer strength in the regular officer category. "Faced with uncertain prospects," Wilson said "many reserve officers now leave the service at the first opportunity," thus creating "marked instability in the officer corps." He said the situation in the Navy and Marine Corps is satisfactory.

4. Provide career incentives for medical and dental officers and nurses. The House has passed a bill. Wilson said, which would help attract doctors and dentists. He added a separate measure dealing with nurses will be sent to Congress soon.

5. Provide better housing. Many young officers cite poor quarters for their wives and children as their chief reason for leaving the service, Wilson said. In some areas, he added, personnel is forced to occupy sub-standard quarters and sometimes forfeit living quarters allowances to boot. Wilson urged enactment of legislation which would provide for occupancy of such quarters at reduced rental.

6. Approval of legislation, already introduced, which would authorize continued retirement of commissioned Army and Air Force officers at currently held temporary grades. Existing legislation expires Dec. 31.

"These measures," Wilson wrote the President, "are vitally important to the well-being of our military and to the sustained security of the nation.

"As a group, I believe they will enable us to achieve the much needed improvement in military life and bring about increased stability in our armed forces."

U.S. WILL FURNISH LIBYA WITH ARMS AND ECONOMIC AID

WASHINGTON, April 10 (AP)—The United States will supply Libya with enough military gear to add 1000 men to its army and will contribute $5,000,000 in economic aid in the fiscal year ending June 30, and $7,000,000 for the year starting July 1.

In addition, the Arab state will get 5000 more tons of relief grain this fiscal year for a total of 25,000 tons, and, up to 25,000 tons in relief wheat next fiscal year.

The program, announced yesterday, was the first to give any military aid of consequence to Libya. A United States military survey team will go to Libya to find out what military equipment it needs.

Both the United States and Britain maintain forces in Libya.

Only two other Arab states have a direct military assistance connection with the United States. Iraq, a member of the Bagdad pact, receives military grant aid, and Saudia Arabia, has a United States military training mission for which it pays.

REACTOR TO BE BUILT FOR WORK ON ATOM PLANE

Announcement Follows Awarding of Two Contracts for Airframes.

WASHINGTON, April 10 (AP)—The Air Force announced today it will build a nuclear reactor facility at the Wright Air Development Center in Dayton, O. It was the third move in 24 hours in a sudden speed-up of activity aimed at flying on nuclear power.

Yesterday's actions were the award of two contracts for development of an airframe to carry an atomic engine.

The Dayton installation will be started in June. It is scheduled for completion by January 1958, at a cost of $7,500,000.

It will be used to test materials, parts and systems that are being developed for atomic airplane engines.

Airframe Contracts.

One of the airframe contracts went to Lockheed Aircraft Co. of Burbank, Calif., for a multi-million dollar laboratory at Dawsonville, Ga. It will be owned by the Government but operated by Lockheed on a 10,000-acre tract which the company bought and deeded to the Government for $1.

The other airframe contract continues a project which the Convair division of General Dynamics Corp. has been carrying on for more than four years at its Fort Worth (Tex.) plant.

A third company, Boeing Airplane Co. of Seattle, also has been working on an atomic airframe design project for at least four years. The Air Force declined to indicate whether the lack of a new contract announcement for Boeing meant that project was being dropped.

Working On Engines.

General Electric Co.'s Aircraft Gas Turbine Division at Lockland, Ohio, has been working on the nuclear engine design for the Convair plane, and Pratt and Whitney Aircraft Corp., East Hartford, Conn., has been designing the engines which would power the Lockheed and Boeing airplanes.

A General Electric vice president, Clarence H. Linder, has said that an atomic airplane could circle the globe entirely in darkness, by keeping pace with the sun around the world, and could carry enough atomic fuel to operate indefinitely.

He said a pound of uranium 235 fuel would liberate as much energy as the burning of 1,700,000 gallons of gasoline.

Engineers also have pointed out that the ratio of weight to horsepower in the atomic engines now powering a submarine is some 100 times too heavy for aircraft use.

SENATOR OFFERS SUBSTITUTE FOR DONNELLY BILL ON STATE FUNDS

Legislature Would Decide on Details — Consideration of Governor's Plan Put Off Until Monday.

By EDWARD H. THORNTON
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 10—A substitute for Gov. Phil M. Donnelly's proposed constitutional amendment for the handling of unused state funds was introduced today by Senator Clayton W. Allen, (Rep.), of Rock Port.

Clayton's measure would not specify in the state constitution how the funds are to be handled, leaving this up to the Legislature. The Governor's plan would prohibit the state from investing its funds in Government securities and would not permit more than 50 per cent of the money to be placed in interest-bearing time deposits.

Clayton's proposal would authorize the Legislature to pass laws controlling the investment of state funds, leaving the details to be spelled out in statutes.

Consideration of Donnelly's proposal was postponed by the Senate today until next Monday. The action was taken at the request of Senator Edward V. Long (Dem.), Clarksville, who said he thought the matter should be held up until Senator Floyd R. Gibson of Independence, the Democratic floor leader, returned to Jefferson City. Gibson was not expected to return until Monday because of his law business.

Both Long, who is president pro tem of the Senate, and Gibson are the heads of banks in which interest-free state funds are now deposited.

There are indications that the Senate will amend Gov. Donnelly's proposal when it comes up for action next week. A number of amendments were under informal discussion yesterday, including provisions to make the investment of state funds mandatory instead of permissive, to allow the investment of state funds in Government securities, and to require competitive bids from banks wanting state deposits.

Hearings on Other Bills.

Meanwhile, the House Constitutional Amendments Committee opened hearings today on two other pending state fund proposals. One is jointly sponsored by State Representative A. Clifford Jones (Rep.), St. Louis county, and Warren E. Hearnes (Dem.), Mississippi county. The other was introduced by Representative Richard H. Ichord (Dem.), Texas county.

Ichord, manager of L. C. Carpenter's campaign for the Democratic nomination for Governor, told the House today that circulation of initiative petitions seeking to force a vote on a state fund constitutional amendment was being held up pending action by the Legislature on the problem. The petitions were sponsored by Carpenter, now State Commissioner of Agriculture.

In a speech, Ichord accused other persons of attempting to take credit for the movement to permit Missouri to earn interest on its idle funds. "That credit," he contended, "belongs to Mr. Carpenter."

After Ichord asked that the House committee take no action until experts had an opportunity to testify, Representative Earl Baer (Dem.), committee chairman, said the proposals would have a "fair hearing."

Impeachment Suggested.

In St. Louis, Joseph M. Whalen, candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, declared today the Legislature should start impeachment proceedings against State Treasurer G. Hubert Bates.

Whalen referred to the admission by Bates that he approved the placement of a $300,000 state deposit in a Lexington (Mo.) bank in which he is a stockholder. State law prohibits the state treasurer from profiting personally from state funds under his control.

The G.O.P. gubernatorial candidate said the Legislature should not wait for action by Attorney General John M. Dalton, who is investigating Bates's handling of state funds. He charged Dalton is "too busy figuring out ways to remove Republican county officeholders on the flimsiest of pretexts while letting a state officer go merrily on his way."

House Votes Fulton Fund.

Earlier, the House passed a bill appropriating $2,753,000 for the fire-damaged Missouri State Hospital at Fulton, with $1,014,000 to clear the wreckage and rebuild the administrative building. The vote was 114 to 0.

Also approved and sent to the Senate was a measure allotting $50,000 for the purchase of a site for a proposed medium security prison, if the money is needed for that purpose. Both bills had been recommended by the Governor last week.

The Senate passed a House-approved bill extending the maximum maturity date of revenue bonds issued by state universities for construction of dormitories from 20 to 40 years. The measure must be returned to the House for concurrence in a minor Senate amendment.

The House recessed today until April 18. The Senate remained in session, however, because of scheduled meetings of its Appropriations Committee.

The committee, headed by Senator John W. Noble (Dem.), Kennett, yesterday began a series for formal hearings on the House-approved appropriation bills allocating the $75,000,000 building bond issue among the 23 eligible penal, eleemosynary and higher educational institutions.

Officers of the five state colleges testified before the committee yesterday, asserting the amounts approved by the House for their respective institutions were insufficient and renewing their pleas for the full amounts requested by them for building programs.

STATE CONSIDERING TRANSIT STUDY HERE

Highway Commission Asked to Make Origin-Destination Survey.

The Missouri State Highway Commission today took under advisement a request to make and finance a proposed $210,000 origin-destination transportation survey in the St. Louis area.

The request was made by the Citizens Metropolitan Transit Committee of St. Louis and St. Louis county. After hearing the presentation in Jefferson City by John W. Giesecke, a member of the committee, Harris B. Rodgers, commission chairman, said the commission "would give very careful consideration to it."

An over-all survey of all transportation in the metropolitan St. Louis area to cost an estimated $490,000 has been recommended by the committee. The highway commission was asked to do only the origin-destination portion of the work.

Giesecke, acting as spokesman for the group, said the area "has had explosive growth" and such a survey is needed to provide the answers to traffic problems of the present and future. He pointed out the last survey, which was not as comprehensive as the proposed one would be, was made in 1945.

Mayor Raymond R. Tucker, who was unable to attend the hearing, was represented by Director of Streets and Sewers Frank Kriz. The Mayor appealed for commission help in a letter.

The committee appointed by Tucker and County Supervisor Luman F. Matthews is composed of James E. Crowe, chairman, former city counselor; Herbert F. Boettler, vice president of the First National Bank in St. Louis; Daniel W. Bowles, former dean of Lincoln University Law School; Mrs. Jerome Spector, a county civic leader; Howard Elliott, former speaker of the Missouri House, and Giesecke. Elliott could not attend the hearing because of illness.

Mayor Backs Citizens' Slate for Freeholders

of the city charter—a document that affects every resident of the city and every group.

"The fact that there are many candidates who are not part of this group of 13 does not mean that there were not many fine St. Louisans who filed as candidates. There were. It means only that the committee realized that only 13 of them will be elected, and that its responsibility was to pick the 13 who—as a group of 13—appear to be the best suited to undertake this difficult and responsible task."

The team principle was stressed in the report of the executive committee which sought a balanced and representative board.

"A big city is in some ways a homogeneous governmental unit," the report said. "Garbage is collected in south St. Louis in exactly the same way as in north St. Louis. The ordinances that apply to the Third ward apply equally to the Twenty-fifth.

Flexible Government.

"But a big city is also a collection of separate neighborhoods and separate kinds of people with somewhat different interests, desires and problems. The Government of a big city must be flexible enough to satisfy both the over-all needs and problems of the city and its more localized, sectional needs. The group which considers the city charter—the key to the kind of municipal government our city has—should properly be made up of 13 members who are as a group familiar with all of the city and not just part of it.

"The executive committee does not know—nor did it try to find out— what conclusions the candidates it recommends would reach on the city charter if they are elected. It did not ask them. The executive committee believes that they are not equippe to know at this time."

They will not be so equipped until they have actualiy served as freeholders, have actually studied the complexities and operating problems of the municipal government, have seen how it is organized and have found out how well it provides for the city's people.

"In our opinion, the 13 persons we now recommend to the Citizens Charter Committee are first-rate citizens of St. Louis who can and will do a first-rate job on a vital civic matter."

Overwhelming Approval.

The slate of candidates was approved overwhelmingly by about 100 members of the full committee who attended the meeting in an assembly room of Kiel Auditorium. Only a few scattered "noes" could be heard on the voice vote.

George W. Curran, an attorney, and member of the full committee, accused the executive committee of "playing backroom politics" in requiring a vote on the entire slate rather than individually on each of the members. This was hotly denied by Smith, who said that he did not even know the man who made the motion to accept the recommended slate. The man was Henry Lamkin, attorney.

Persons not now registered have until Saturday at 5 p.m. to register in time to vote for the freeholders next May 8. The Board of Election Commissioners' office at 208 South Twelfth street will remain open Friday until 9 p.m. and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5. The regular hours of 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. will be observed the other days of the week.

Registered voters who have moved to new addresses have until April 14 to transfer their registration. They may do so by appearing in person at the board office or by mail. Voters moving after April 14 have until April 28 to transfer registration.

FEWER THAN 1000 OUTDOOR TOILETS LEFT IN ST. LOUIS

St. Louis, which once had thousands of outdoor toilets, has fewer than 1000 left, and most of those remaining are in areas where demolition is planned for expressways and slum clearance, it was reported today.

Success of the Health Division's drive to improve sanitary facilities was cited by Mayor Raymond R. Tucker in the city's application for recertification of its "workable program" for combating blight. This program, which must be approved in Washington from year to year, qualifies St. Louis for federal aid.

Since 1949, when an ordinance to get rid of outdoor toilets was enacted, 5051 privies have been eliminated. In the last year 1264 were torn down, to be replaced by more than twice the number of inside toilets.

Inside toilets have been made available to more than 40,000 St. Louisans since the program began.

Girl Sets Fire to School.

NEW YORK, April 10 (UP)—An 11-year-old girl who hated school and wanted to extend her Easter vacation set fire to the Brooklyn public school she attended, police said today. The fire did $2000 damage.

END TO 'SKID ROW' IS URGED BY DOWD

Circuit Attorney Says Area Is 'Civic Sickness' That Should Go.

The face-lifting program for the downtown area should include steps to eliminate "Skid Row," Circuit Attorney Edward L. Dowd told members of the Carondelet Improvement Association at a meeting at Carondelet Branch Library last night.

"Skid Row is a civic sickness," Dowd asserted. "So long as the sickness exists, the core of our city will carry the blight of this unsightly wound."

The "tragic misfits" of Skid Row "come through our courts each year by the thousands," but the cure is not merely by administration of a penal or criminal code, he continued.

"What we do need, in addition to strict enforcement of existing criminal sanctions," Dowd said, "is a program to:

"1. Provide a high degree of co-operation between social workers and welfare agencies, on the one hand, and the courts and law enforcement officers on the other, in dealing with the 'chronic offenders' who drift aimlessly and endlessly between the courts and Skid Row.

"2. Increase the effectiveness of agencies designed to rehabilitate those addicted to alcohol and narcotics.

"3. Expand facilities which enable people who have been in trouble to get jobs or job training.

"4. Allocate state and city funds to provide a permanent and adequate rehabilitation center where chronic, petty offenders can get the help they so desperately need."

The five living past presidents of the improvement association were presented with honorary life memberships in a ceremony last night. They are Oliver T. Remmers, Charles R. Watkins, Carl W. Burst, Stewart D. Flanagan and former Circuit Judge Fred J. Hoffmeister.

WITNESS SAYS J. P. FINNEGAN SOUGHT REVENGE

Testimony Offered That He Suggested Retaliation Against Judge Moore.

By JAMES A. KEARNS
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

OMAHA, April 10—Testimony that James P. Finnegan, former collector of internal revenue at St. Louis, and unnamed "associates" suggested that retaliatory measures be taken against United States District Judge George H. Moore, who pressed for an investigation of the collector's official conduct, was given here today at the opening of the perjury trial of G. Elmer Brown.

Brown, veteran of the Internal Revenue Service, is charged with testifying falsely before a United States grand jury here in December 1954. The jury was inquiring into efforts to interfere with an investigation of Finnegan's office in 1950.

Wyllys Newcomb, special assistant attorney general, testified in the absence of the jury, to outline to the court the aims of the grand jury inquiry, at which Brown was a witness.

Meeting in St. Louis.

"There was evidence that George J. Schoeneman, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, on April 12, 1950, ordered an investigation of Finnegan's official conduct," Newcomb testified. "There also was evidence that a meeting was held at St. Louis about that time. The jury tried to learn if Brown was present and attempted to block the inquiry into the Finnegan matter.

"There was evidence indicating that Brown was a close friend of Finnegan and was tied into the American Lithofold Corp. at St. Louis, as was Commissioner Schoeneman and others." Among the complaints against Finnegan was that he was on the payroll of the American Lithofold Corp.

Newcomb told the court the grand jury had evidence "of suggestions by Finnegan and associates that retaliatory measures be taken against Judge Moore." Previous reports had named Brown as allegedly suggesting retaliation against Judge Moore.

Told of Complaints.

Finnegan was informed of the complaints against him during a trip to Washington in April 1950, Newcomb related. "There was evidence that when returning by plane, Finnegan saw Frank W. Lohn, then a special agent of the old Internal Revenue Bureau, and that Finnegan left the plane at Chicago." Newcomb pointed out that Chicago then was Brown's headquarters.

Asked about the effect of Brown's testimony on the grand jury, which returned the perjury indictment, Newcomb observed that had Brown answered the jury's questions in the affirmative, instead of denying certain reports about him, "an entirely different situation would have been presented."

Newcomb added that had Brown testified to efforts to block the Finnegan investigation the grand jury "then would have wanted to know who had asked him to do it?"

Newcomb also said that Lohn, who resigned as regional revenue commissioner at Omaha after testifying before the grand jury investigating the Finnegan matter, was asked by the jury if he had tampered with a letter, so as to make the contents favorable to himself.

Newcomb said the letter was written in February 1951 and "was closely related to Finnegan."

Seven-Count Indictment.

Brown, stationed at Philadelphia, but formerly supervisor of accounts and collections in the Chicago office, was indicted Dec. 1, 1954 on seven counts based on his testimony before a federal grand jury then in session here. He was charged with making false statements in denying he tried to influence other Internal Revenue officials" to whitewash Finnegan."

Another count in the indictment charged Brown with false testimony in denying he had termed the allegations of United States District Judge Moore at St. Louis concerning corruption in the collector's office "preposterous and absurd." He also is charged with testifying falsely in denying a statement attributed to him that "retaliatory measures should be taken against Judge Moore."

Whether Finnegan will be called as a witness has not been decided by Government attorneys. He was brought here from federal prison at Terre Haute, Ind., in January 1955, to testify before the grand jury. He has since completed his two-year sentence for misconduct in office.

Finnegan's conviction followed a subsequent investigation after the "whitewash" effort.

At the opening of the trial yesterday, J. Frank Cunningham, Justice Department attorney from Washington, outlined the Government's case to a jury of eight men and four women in the court of Judge John W. Delehant. Judge James A. Donohoe, who was in charge of the grand jury that indicted Brown, has since died.

Missing Pilot

CAPT. TED UHLEMEYER

ST. LOUISAN PILOT OF MISSING PLANE

Marine Capt. Ted Uhlemeyer Jr. Believed Down in Atlantic.

Marine Capt. Ted Uhlemeyer Jr. of St. Louis was the pilot of a plane which has been missing and presumed lost since Saturday on a training flight from El Toro, Calif., to Floyd Bennett Field in New York, the Marine Corps announced today.

The missing plane, which also carried First Lt. Edward M. Stimets of Providence, R.I., and Second Lt. Robert T. Dietz of Jamaica, Queens, left El Toro Saturday morning. It refueled at Glenview, Ill., and last reported its position off Keyport, N.J., Saturday night, and then disappeared.

Both the Coast Guard and Navy conducted an intensive search in Atlantic waters off Long Island and the New Jersey coast, following regular search patterns as far as 50 miles out to sea. The missing plane had enough fuel to last three hours when it last reported its position.

Uhlemeyer's mother, Mrs. Esther Uhlemeyer, lives at 5847 Delmar boulevard. Uhlemeyer, 27 years old, was graduated from Eureka High School and had been in the Marine Corps for about eight years.

He was awarded the Air Medal and three gold stars for his part in the air war in Korea after completing 82 missions as a combat pilot with the Wolfraiders squadron blasting enemy supply routes and providing air support to front line troops.

In July 1952 Uhlemeyer, then a second lieutenant, was unhurt after making a wheels-up landing with a badly damaged plane at a forward Korean base. The plane had been struck twice by anti-aircraft fire and slid several hundred yards on its belly after touching down on the runway.

AIRMAN DETAINED BY DOWD SENTENCED TO SIX MONTHS

Eugene J. Kmetz, 17-year-old Scott Air Force Base airman, whose detention in city jail by Circuit Attorney Edward L. Dowd was criticized by circuit judges and the St. Louis Bar Association, was sentenced to six months in jail today by Circuit Judge Michael J. Scott.

Kmetz had been charged with first degree robbery in a $10 holdup last July in which the victim was beaten. This charge was reduced to common assault by the circuit attorney's office, which also recommended the six-month sentence.

Judge Scott denied a plea for parole in sentencing Kmetz, who previously had pleaded guilty to the reduced charge. Two other youths are serving terms in the state penitentiary for their part in the robbery. The circuit attorney's office said Kmetz was permitted to plead guilty of the lesser charge because of his relatively minor part in the holdup.

WOMAN DIES OF INJURIES, STRUCK BY STREETCAR

Mrs. Mary Weedon, injured early Saturday when she was struck by a Hodiamont streetcar from which she had alighted at Belt avenue, died yesterday at City Hospital.

Mrs. Weedon, a 57-year-old saleswoman, was on her way to her home, 947 Belt avenue, when she walked in front of the car after leaving the front door and the operator, Robert Quinones, 5205 Paulian place, continued eastward.

Mrs. Weedon was found lying on the right-of-way with her foot severed above the ankle, and head and internal injuries. Quinones, questioned later by police, said he was unaware there had been an accident.

CITIZENS TO HAVE LITTLE SAY ABOUT MILITARY FIELD

Congressman Cannon Says Selection of Site Will Be Up to Defense Dept.

Opposition of residents of Dardenne Valley in St. Charles county to an all-military airport in the valley probably will have no effect on selection of the site, Representative Clarence Cannon (Dem.), Missouri, said today in Washington.

Meanwhile, members of the Wentzville Community Club voted unanimously last night to support a proposal by St. Louis and the Chamber of Commerce of Metropolitan St. Louis for construction of an all-military airport in Dardenne Valley.

Cannon, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee and congressional representative from the St. Charles county area, told the Post-Dispatch selection of the site for an airport would be made strictly on "military grounds" with little or no consideration for the views of local residents.

The Congressman predicted the Appropriations Committee, which must approve any request for construction funds for the proposed $30,000,000 airport, would be governed "largely by the decisions of the Defense Department." He added that the committee probably would not investigate complaints from residents of the affected areas.

About 100 persons attended the community club meeting at Wentzville last night. Roland C. Marquart of the industrial development department of the Chamber of Commerce told why the 90-square-mile Dardenne valley was selected as a site for the proposed airport.

A representative of the St. Charles Citizens Committee, a group opposed to the Dardenne site, was to speak against the proposal, but no one appeared.

Marquart said the Navy has about 200 men stationed at the Naval Air Station at Lambert-St. Louis Field to operate the Navy's reserve training program.

"The Navy can't do the job it wants because of conflicts with commercial airline operation," he declared. "The Navy has been seeking a permanent location for a long time because Lambert Field just doesn't have the facilities for an extensive base of the type the Navy needs here."

He said that if jet aircraft manufactured and tested by McDonnell Aircraft Corp. were operated out of the military airport the testings would continue to be made over Calhoun county in Illinois as at present.

After a brief discussion period, during which some doubts but no direct opposition to the airport plan were expressed, a member of the audience called for a vote on a resolution to approve the proposal, adding, "An airport is progress, just like highways and schools."

Copies of the resolution will be mailed to Missouri's two Senators and Congressmen from the area, as well as the Defense Department.

Meanwhile, the Municipal Airport Commission at a meeting yesterday voted to extend for three years the lease of the Air National Guard at Lambert Field. The present lease, covering a hangar and an apron, expires June 30.

Conway B. Briscoe, director of public utilities, said the commission realized that even if a new all-military airport were authorized in the near future, a considerable length of time would elapse before it became operational. No action was taken on an earlier request of the Air National Guard for a new area at the field, he said.

SHIP SINKS, 8 DEAD OR LOST

DUNOON, Scotland, April 10 (AP) — The 5409-ton Swedish ore-carrying ship Akka struck a rock and sank in the Firth of Clyde last night. Twenty-six of the 34 crewmen were rescued. Three were reported dead and five missing.

The ship went down within minutes in the Gantocks rocks a few yards from the Clyde's western shore.

POLAR AIR ROUTE REQUESTS

NEW YORK, April 10 (AP)—Two overseas airlines yesterday asked the Civil Aeronautics Board for permission to fly from the West coast to Europe by the polar route.

Pan American World Airways and Trans World Airlines said the new route over the top of the world would save more than 1000 miles in some cases and would cut the trip from two days to one by eliminating stopovers.

tracts, without success. He said he learned "if you had no friends, you got no contracts—you had to know the right people."

He said Abrams was one of the "right people."

He said in late 1951 or early 1952 he met Abrams and told him that "either I get a square deal or there will be an investigation."

He said Abrams told him to "stop yelling" and he got a contract, for the firm of William J. Nathan Co., Inc., in which he and Nathan were partners.

Silent Partner Deal.

Later, Berger said, "I lost all my money in Paterson (N.J.) and came into Brooklyn clean" and made the deal under which Abrams became his silent partner in February 1953. He said Abrams and some associates had been blacklisted from doing business with the Government because of an investigation.

Robert F. Kennedy, the subcommittee counsel, told Berger that investigation involved the alleged "theft of government property" and Berger said that was how he remembered it, too.

The firm of Combat Uniform Co., was formed, Berger said, and bid and got contracts, under an arrangement by which "the Government would not know that he (Abrams) was involved." Berger said the Government believed Berger to be the sole owner, but that in fact he was only "the so called custodian."

He said the agreement with Abrams never was put into writing.

Berger was the lead-off witness in hearings that may last as long as three weeks.

LED DEATH HIKE FOR 'DISCIPLINE,' SERGEANT SAYS

noon, when the first body was found.

"We have absolutely nothing to hide," Pate said.

Five bodies were recovered yesterday and the sixth this afternoon.

Some Marine officers said that although the hike was unscheduled, McKeon, as drill instructor, had the authority to order such hikes.

A base spokesman said that recruits ordinarily do not have training during the weekend, although there are some scheduled activities such as church services and recreation.

Gen. Burger said, "This is a most serious tragedy and one which I am investigating to the fullest. . . . No one regrets this incident more than I."

McKeon will remain in custody until the court reports its findings.

The Marine Corps identified the victims as: Donald Francis O'Shea of Brooklyn; Charles Francis Reilly of Clyde, N.Y.; Jerry Lamont Thomas of Alexandria, Va.; Leroy Thompson of Brooklyn; Norman Alfred Wood of Bay Shore, N.Y., and Thomas Curtis Hardeman of Vidalia, Ga.

Gen. Burger said in a statement yesterday: "According to a preliminary investigation, the drill instructor took his platoon on a hike about 9 p.m. last night (Sunday). He marched them about a mile to an uninhabited, marshy and swamp area. Not completely familiar with the terrain, the drill instructor led his men into the swamp and into a stream.

"With no lights and in the ensuing confusion, the missing men were lost in the darkness."

Surviving members of the platoon praised Sgt. McKeon's rescue actions. Pvt. Edwin Leonard, Roselle Park, N. J., said, "The sergeant didn't order anyone into the deep water. He was the first one in and the last one out. He did all he could."

Another member of the platoon, Pvt. David H. McPherson, Chatham, N. J., said Sgt. McKeon was the "last man to leave the water after he had done everything he could to get the men out."

Dragged by Current.

Some of the men apparently stepped into mud holes after entering the water, others slipped or fell and were dragged by the strong current of the stream.

According to the survivors, the confusion turned into near panic and many of the men struggled in the water, their water soaked clothes and heavy shoes hindering them in the soft muddy bottom of the icy stream.

Many of the men shed their clothing and swam to shore. Others formed a human chain to the shore by clasping hands.

Quick action in forming the chain was attributed to Pvt. Donald Porter of Brooklyn by Pvt. Thomas Grabowski of Kearney, N. J., who credited Porter's action with saving lives.

Most of the men made their way back to their barracks in one group and a roll call showed seven men missing. However, one, Pvt. Clarence Edward Cox Jr., Lenoir, N. C., was found on a small island.

Pvt. Richard L. Serkel, Republic, O., who said he was in the lead column, said, "We were marching and he (McKeon) gave us a column left. We went to the water's edge, then he stopped us. Then, as I recall, he said, 'Come into the water,' or words to that effect. We started upstream. The water was up to our shoulders. Then we sort of circled back, and it seemed to get deeper all of a sudden. Some of the boys, but not all of us, were in the deep water. I turned and began swimming to where I could touch bottom. Several others were screaming for help. Others began stripping their clothes to swim out and help them. I believe the instructor was trying to get one man out. There was a lot of confusion where the men were drowning."

Calls for Investigation.

By the United Press.

In Washington, Representative L. Mendel Rivers (Dem.), South Carolina, called for a congressional investigation of the incident.

Rivers, a member of the House Armed Services Committee, said: "It's terrible. It's incredible. I can't imagine it."

Senator Allen J. Ellender (Dem.), Louisiana, called the incident "unconscionable" and said, "Things like this should not be allowed to go unpunished."

"There was no excuse for forcing troops at that time of night to march in the type of terrain involved," Ellender said.

"I can't imagine what happened," Rivers said. He recalled that the Marine Corps has previously made changes to curb what he said were "over-ambitious boys training these kids."

A House Armed Services subcommittee investigated the deaths of two Marine officer candidates who died following heat prostration on a forced march at Quantico, Va., in 1953.

The subcommittee held no one responsible, but the Marine Corps issued regulations setting maximum temperatures and humidity under which new men would be required to take strenuous hikes.

USE OF TROOPS DISCUSSED BY DULLES, CONGRESS

The congressional leaders present were:

From the Senate—Knowland, Johnson, Chairman George (Dem.) of Georgia of the Foreign Relations Committee; Republican Policy Committee Chairman Bridges of New Hampshire, and H. Alexander Smith (Rep.), of New Jersey, a member of George's committee, and Saltonstall (Rep.), of Massachusetts, minority whip of the Senate.

From the House—Rayburn, Martin, Chairman Richards (Dem.), of South Carolina of the Foreign Affairs Commissee, and these five others—Vorys (Rep.) of Ohio, McCormack (Dem.), of Massachusttes, Halleck (Rep.) of Indiana, Arends (Rep.) of Illinois, and Carl Albert (Dem.) of Oklahoma.

Dulles set up the parley after a talk with Mr. Eisenhower yesterday just before Mr. Eisenhower left for Georgia.

An Augusta dispatch said the President and Dulles talked over the Middle East situation again today by telephone.

The dispatch said the President was in his office in the second story of the Augusta National Golf Club's pro shop.

After talking with Dulles and signing some bills, Mr. Eisenhower left for an 18-hole round with club professional Ed Dudley.

Asked whether the Middle East situation might bring Dulles to Augusta, Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said, "There are no plans at the present time."

Major Address April 21.

The President's vacation headquarters announced he would make a major foreign policy address in Washington April 21 before the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

In yesterday's statement the White House said Mr. Eisenhower and Dulles regard the Middle East situation with "the utmost seriousness."

They have said repeatedly they look to Congress for "approval and consultation," as Dulles puts it, of any step toward war.

Under the Constitution the President is commander-in-chief, but Congress declares war.

In the Formosa strait situation last year, Congress passed a resolution authorizing the President to do whatever he deemed necessary to protect the Nationalist China stronghold of Formosa from aggression by the Communists on the China mainland.

This gave him the go-ahead to use troops if he thought it necessary to save Formosa and the Pescadores islands from any Red attack.

Mr. Eisenhower worked on yesterday's policy statement during a two-hour plane trip from the Capital and Hagerty discussed it by telephone with Dulles after the President's party arrived at Augusta.

Text of Statement.

The text of the statement follows:

"Before leaving the White House, the President met with the Secretary of State for a discussion of repeated incidents of hostility in the Middle East.

"The President and the Secretary of State regard the situation with the utmost seriousness.

"In their discussions concerning the area, they are guided by fundamental principles of United States's foreign policy, which are designed to promote and strengthen world peace.

"Therefore:

"(1) The United States will support in fullest measure the mission of the Secretary General of the United Nations to the area, pursuant to the unanimous action of the Security Council, the body on which all the members of the United Nations have conferred primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security. The United States trusts that all United Nations member countries, including particularly the states directly involved will similarly support that mission of peace.

"(2) The United States, in accordance with its responsibilities under the Charter of the United Nations, will observe its commitments within constitutional means to oppose any aggression in the area.

"(3) The United States is likewise determined to support and assist any nation which might be subjected to such aggression. The United States is confident that other nations will act similarly in the cause of peace."

Depends on U.N. Action.

Yesterday's statement clearly means that if the U.N. Security Council labeled any nation an aggressor in the Middle East and called for use of force to halt aggression, the President would feel obligated to put the matter before Congress for a final decision on committing United States troops.

The White House statement amounted to a reaffirmation of Mr. Eisenhower's view that a solution of the Middle East dispute must be found through the U.N.

United States commitments in the area include the 1950 declaration with Britain and France. This declaration was designed to put teeth into the United Nations Palestine truce which halted the Arab-Israeli war.

Under it, the Western Big Three pledged to maintain the arms status quo in the Middle East and to act inside and outside the U.N. to prevent violations of truce lines which might cause the war to break out again.

Mr. Eisenhower joined British Prime Minister Eden last Feb. 1 in a statement reaffirming this declaration. They set up joint discussions with the French to work out "the nature of the action which we should take" to prevent Middle East war.

British, French Criticism.

A broad understanding of the role each country should play in the event of hostilities is reported to have been reached. However, British and French criticism of the United States policy of "friendly impartiality" has continued and even increased.

Despite these criticisms, together with an equal amount of challenges from both the Arabs and Israelis about United States policy, the middle course was pursued. Dulles and Mr. Eisenhower swung into action yesterday after a weekend of violence along the Israeli-Arab borders.

For months the Administration has kept on ice Israel's application for purchase of about $63,000,000 worth of United States arms. Israel contends the arms are needed to offset the sale of weapons to Egypt by Soviet-dominated Czechoslovakia.

Mr. Eisenhower is on record as saying the United States hopes to find a better solution than contributing to an arms race. He also has said, however, that Israel's request for arms still is under study.

at the official exchange rate—for industrial developments in Communist and non-Communist nations. He did not disclose how the amount was to be distributed.)

Kabanov urged western Europeans to discard their restrictions on trade with Russia. He ridiculed the idea that restrictions on "strategic" items hurt Russia or slowed down its economic growth.

Kabanov cited the example of some oil drilling equipment recently sold by Russia to an American company. Oil drilling equipment, he said, was considered "strategic" by the United States, and could not be sold to Russia.

He cited the fact that Western Europe's accounts are being balanced internationally only by "extraordinary" American expenditures in Europe. He did not criticize these expenditures, but warned that they would not last.

The director of foreign economic relations of the Netherlands Foreign Affairs Ministry, Dr. J. Linthorst Homan, injected a note of warning into the proceedings. He said that the same governemnts that are represented here by people talking of co-operation and economic opportunities for East-West contacts are responsible for political conflicts that make such talks unrealistic.

PART OF WALL COLLAPSES

Part of a rear wall of a three-family flat at 3124 Laclede avenue collapsed today, showering bricks on a wooden staircase leading from the first to the second floor. No one was injured.

Fire Capt. Walter Eitzman said the building, which is three stories in front and two stories in back, apparently has been weakened by recent high winds and last night's rainfall. Barricades were placed around the building.

We don't blame you for being doubtful, mister, but it IS true and we can prove it. Laboratory tests show that there is no finer, higher octane gasoline in town than Cresyl 110 (come in we'll show you the reports). And as to low price... well... we figure that by selling more gas at lower prices we attract more customers and still make a good profit. Makes sense, doesn't it? And think what you SAVE!

STATE AFL, CIO ARE MERGED BY UNANIMOUS VOTE

Officers of New Missouri State Labor Council Elected by Acclamation.

By SPENCER R. McCULLOCH
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, April 10—Merger of the AFL and CIO organizations in Missouri into a single state labor body was unanimously approved here today by a unification convention, despite the earlier effort of Harold J. Gibons, head of the Teamsters organization in St. Louis, to block the merger at this time. The effort failed yesterday, and Gibbons promised support of the Teamsters to the merged body.

Officers for the joint organization, Missouri State Labor Council, AFL-CIO, picked previously, were elected by acclamation. John I. Rollings, of St. Louis, who was head of the AFL State Federation of Labor, became president of the new labor group. James A. Davis, of Jefferson City, former executive secretary of the CIO State Industrial Council, was named vice president.

Frank J. Murphy of Kansas City, secretary-treasurer of the old AFL State Federation for 23 years, was elected to the same office in the new council. A 21-member executive board, 14 from the AFL side, seven from the CIO, also was named.

Pledge by Gibbons.

Gibbons, president of Teamsters Joint Council 13, yesterday directed the fight to delay the merger two years. However, after AFL delegates voted for immediate merger, 1103 to 898, Gibbons announced for the Teamsters: "The delegates have spoken; we will remain in the federation and do everything in our power to make it work."

The Teamsters were acting under instructions of Dave Beck, international president of the union, in their attempt to persuade the convention to delay approval of the merger. No discord had arisen at merger committee meetings until recent circulation of a letter from Beck counseling a delaying action.

In defeat, Gibbons delivered a solid Teamsters vote throughout the state, representing some 570 votes on a membership of 57,000. Votes are based on a per capita formula, one for each 100 members.

The Teamsters were aided by scattered votes from other unions and localities, including about 60 per cent of the entire Kansas City labor union vote. St. Louis locals backing the Teamsters' move included Local 88 of the Meat Cutters, headed by Nicholas Blassie, who cast its 24 votes.

Others who took the floor and advocated delay were Sam Gross of Kansas City, international head of the cleaners and dyers' union, and Tim J. Dwyer of Local 50, Building Service Union, in St. Louis.

How Unions Lined Up.

In general the electricians, carpenters, machinists, painters and other craft unions voted for immediate merger, although there were some exceptions. Adherents of the Teamsters' proposal included laborers, hod carriers, restaurant workers and school teachers, although no hard and fast lines were established.

Gibbons argued that while unity was desirable and the Teamsters had joined the national unity move, it should be approached "calmly" on the local level with advance opportunity to work out jurisdictional, organizational and political action problems. Basically, a state federation's principal activity is in legislation.

Rollins pointed out merger commitments had been made. Unless the merger went through, Rollings said, Missouri labor would lose "the offensive." Since 1953, he said, the AFL state body has doubled in size to 550 local union affiliates, representing a combined membership of about 212,000.

Other speakers for the merger included Arthur A. Hunn, executive secretary of the St. Louis Painters' District Council and a member of the 10-man joint merger committee, and Glenn Moss, of the St. Louis Bookbinders. Hunn expressed confidence in success of the merger, both on national and local levels, and observed that the waiting CIO delegates would be "provoked" if it was scrapped by the state AFL at the "eleventh hour."

CIO Leader's View.

At the CIO meeting, which voted for the merger without apposition, Al F. Kojetinsky, regional director of the Steel Workers in St. Louis and a merger committee member, alluded to the Teamsters' position in the AFL as "belated attempts to disrupt" the merger at the AFL convention. James Click of St. Louis, an international vice president of the AFL-CIO Electrical and Radio Workers, said that since national unification "you would never recognize the house of labor as the old homestead."

John W. Livingston, formerly of St. Louis, now director of organization for the AFL-CIO, who addressed a dinner meeting here last night, spoke in similar vein to the CIO delegates, pointing out that the drive to organize the unorganized is just gaining momentum and declaring that problems which remained after unification would be resolved to the betterment of the labor movement as a whole.

The home of one convention delegate, J. O. Mack, president of the Kansas City Building and Construction Trades Council, was damaged by a bomb last night while Mack and his wife were attending the convention dinner.

10,000 ILLINOISANS IN AREA SUBJECT TO MISSOURI TAX

About 10,000 Illinois residents who earned wages in the Missouri portion of the St. Louis area last year are liable for Missouri income taxes, Thomas R. Allen, state tax supervisor, said yesterday.

He added that, although there are no specific figures available, it is his belief that probably "a considerable number" of the 10,000 are not paying the Missouri income tax.

He said he favors withholding provisions for nonresidents and also "would not be opposed" to a general withholding tax provision for all Missouri wage earners.

HAMMARSKJOLD IN CAIRO AFTER ISRAELI PARLEY

declaration of Egypt's aggressive designs," the spokesman added.

Among the incidents of sabotage reported by Israelis were: The Tel Aviv-Beersheba railway blown up at two points north of Beersheba, a bridge and water conduit blown up near the settlement of Tkumah, a pipeline damaged by an explosion near the village of Uza.

Patrol Fired On.

They added that a police patrol and several watchmen were fired on and an automobile was attacked in the Beersheba region, all without casualties.

The Israelis charged 10 settlements were attacked in the night, with one Israeli killed, three wounded and water installations and lines blown up.

An army spokesman said one raider was killed and another wounded and captured in the east Judean hills, close to the Jordan-Israel frontier.

At about the same time, an Israeli army patrol encountered an Egyptian fedayeen squad in the Lachish area between Jordan and the Gaza strip border, an Israeli army spokesman said. One of this band was killed, bringing the total of fedayeen killed to 11 in the last two days.

Egypt has denied that the raiders are acting under Egyptian army orders, saying they are refugees not subject to military control.

On one of the capitals Hammarskjold will visit—Damascus, Syria—visiting King Hussein of Jordan called for the Arab nations to "unite ourselves to check the vigorous Israeli threat" and to "restore Palestine to its legitimate Arab owners.

Joint Action Pledged.

The young Jordanian monarch and Syrian President Shukri Kuwatly, whose countries border Israel on the east, pledged their forces to joint action to defend Arab territories.

There was no immediate reaction from either Israel or the Arabs to President Eisenhower's declaration at Augusta, Ga., that the United States was "determined to support and assist any nation" subjected to aggression in the Middle East.

The White House statement pledged support "in the fullest measure" for the Hammarskjold mission.

France also brought pressure to bear on Egypt and Israel. Foreign Minister Christian Pineau ordered his ambassadors in Cairo and Tel Aviv to express France's "grave concern" over the frontier situation. Pineau asked Egypt and Israel to "second the efforts taken by representatives of the United Nations and to stop any hostile act which would interfere with pacific solutions."

Beirut First Stop.

Hammarskjold's first Middle East stop was Beirut, Lebanon, where he established a base of operations for what he expects to be a month-long mission.

He told newspaper men it would be improper for him to give his views on the situation now, saying "something must be brought up with the governments concerned first."

Hammarskjold flew to Bierut from Rome where he conferred with Italian officials and had a 20-minute private audience with Pope Pius XII. The Secretary General said the Pontiff "is in an extremely important position to help bring about peace."

Italian Foreign Minister Gaetano Martino, one of the persons with whom Hammarskjold talked, said the Secretary General "does not hide the fact that he is very worried about his mission."

Martino also announced that Italy planned to call all its Middle East ambassadors home for discussions on ways the Italians might help ease the increasing Arab-Israeli tensions.

American Suggestion.

The U.N. Security Council ordered Hammarskjold's trip, acting on a suggestion by the United States.

Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Sharett told a political meeting in Tel Aviv that Israel was "willing to give Hammarskjold all possible assistance in his peace efforts." But he expressed doubts the effort would succeed.

Israeli authorities have reported about 30 bomb and gun attacks by the Arab suicide squads since Saturday. The Israeli Foreign Minister said last night: "This is the third night of terror and the second day of Egypt's failure to comply with a U.N. demand to put an end to all hostile acts."

At U.N. headquarters in New York, Egypt and Israel again blamed each other for the increasing violence.

Israeli Ambassador Abba Eban, in a letter to the Security Council, accused the Eyptian High Command of sending "armed sabotage and murder gangs" into Israeli territory. The letter said the action led to "grave apprehensions regarding Egypt's intentions and to serious concern for the prospect of avoiding war in the Middle East."

An Egyptian spokesman charged that Israel started the artillery duel over the Gaza frontier last week in an attempt to obstruct Hammarskjold's mission.

He told reporters Egypt also had sent a letter to the Security Council asserting the Gaza duel showed Israel "does not hesitate to massacre civilians, women and children, without any consideration for law and tradition or its responsibilities."

Both letters were informative and did not ask for council action.

5 KILLED IN COLLISION NEAR ESSEX, MO.

Victims Were 3 Gray Ridge Youths and Texas Woman and Daughter.

ESSEX, Mo., April 10 (AP)—The Missouri Highway Patrol said five persons were killed today in a collision of two automobiles on U.S. Highway 60 near this Stoddard county community.

The patrol identified the dead as Doyle Sutton, 18 years old; Donald R. Wheeler, 17, and Lonnie Gasser, 17, all high school students of nearby Gray Ridge; Mrs. Amelia Aranda, 35, Corpus Christi, Tex., and a daughter whose name was not immediately available.

Three other persons were seriously injured in the crash on the rain-slicked pavement. They were Kenneth Rich, 17, also of Gray Ridge, and the husband and another daughter of Mrs. Aranda.

Patrolmen said the boys were returning home from a Future Farmers of America meat judging contest at Sikeston when their car skidded on the pavement.

THOMAS R. GUZMAN GETS 10 YEARS FOR ROBBERIES

Thomas R. Guzman, a former convict, was sentenced to three concurrent ten-year terms in the penitentiary yesterday when he pleaded guilty to three charges of armed robbery in the court of Circuit Judge F. E. Williams.

Guzman also pleaded guilty of a larceny and was sentenced to seven years, the term also to run concurrently. He was charged with obtaining $106 in a holdup of the Fairmont Hotel, 4907 Maryland avenue, last Dec. 31; $578 in a holdup of the Congress Hotel Dec. 24 and $27 when he held up James Moore Dec. 24.

Trial of two men charged as accomplices in the hotel robberies are pending. Guzman was arrested last Dec. 31 after holding up the Fairmont Hotel. When arrested Guzman gave an address in the 2300 block of Lafayette avenue. He has served five years in Texas state penitentiary for rape and possession of narcotics.

DR. TUMULTY SAYS HE ASKED TWICE FOR INQUIRY IN FIRING

Dr. Philip A. Tumulty said today he twice asked for a complete investigation and once for a personal hearing in the controversy which led to his dismissal as head of the St. Louis University internal medicine department in 1954. The requests were denied, he said.

Dr. Tumulty, now associate professor of internal medicine at John Hopkins University, Baltimore, disputed a statement by the Very Rev. Paul C. Reinert, S.J. president of St. Louis University, that Dr. Tumulty did not request a hearing.

Administrative officials refused to discuss his controversy with the Sisters of St. Mary, who operate the university's Firmin Desloge Hospital. Dr. Tumulty said, on the ground that Father Reinert had imposed a rule of silence. St. Louis University was censured last Friday by the American Association of University Professors for ignoring a "basic principle of tenure" in the firing of Dr. Tumulty.

N. Korean to Visit Romania.

TOKYO, April 10 (AP)—The Peiping radio said last night North Korea's Premier Kim Il Sung will visit Romania at the invitation of the Romanian government. It gave no date.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL TO BUY CENTRAL OF GEORGIA STOCK

Action to buy some of the stock in the Central of Georgia Railway now held by the Frisco Lines was taken yesterday at Chicago by the executive committee of the Illinois Central Railroad.

The latter railroad was authorized by the committee to spend $8,000,000 to buy up to one-half of the controlling shares of the Central of Georgia held by the Frisco. The action followed application by the Frisco to acquire control of the Georgia line.

Under a proposal by Illinois Central, the Central of Georgia would be controlled by all lines connecting with it that desired to participate in control. Controlling stock would be held in trust by two trustees from Georgia and one from Alabama.

G.I. Morals Up in Germany.

BERLIN, April 10 (AP)—An improvement in the moral standards of American soldiers in Germany was reported yesterday by Maj. Gen. Patrick J. Ryan, chief of United States Army chaplains. On his last visit in November 1954 he reported morals were considered inferior in two West German cities where United States troops were concentrated. He didn't name the cities.

EAST SIDE VOTING TODAY WITH LIGHT TURNOUT LIKELY

Only a Few Offices Being Contested in Madison and St. Clair Counties.

A light vote was anticipated today as residents of Madison and St. Clair counties went to the polls to select candidates for state and county offices. Their choices were limited as only a few offices were being contested.

Polling places opened at 6 a.m. and will close at 5 p.m. All St. Clair county voters will use voting machines for the first time, machines having been in use only in East St. Louis previously.

Interest in two Democratic primary races was expected to attract the larger vote in Madison county. Most interest there was centered in the fight of independent Dick H. Mudge Jr., son of a former circuit judge, to defeat machine-backed Austin Lewis, assistant state's attorney, for the state's attorney nomination.

Ben F. Staten, incumbent coroner, is in a three-way fight for the Democratic nomination for coroner with machine-backed Thomas J. Burke and Dr. W. W. Billings, a former coroner. Staten and Burke are Alton undertakers and Dr. Billings an Alton physician.

Two candidates, David G. Hodge and William G. Straube, are competing for the Republican nomination for coroner of Madison county.

Congressman Melvin Price of East St. Louis, whose Twenty-fourth district embraces both counties, is unopposed. Waldo E. Schellenger and Bertram V. Jones are seeking the Republican nomination for Representative.

gained or lost popularity in the state since the 1952 general election. He received slightly less than 55 per cent of the total vote in defeating Stevenson.

Carried 98 Counties.

Mr. Eisenhower defeated Stevenson in the 1952 general election by 443,407 votes, carrying 98 of the state's 102 counties. Stevenson made his best showing in Cook county (Chicago), but Mr. Eisenhower, with the big, normally Republican vote downstate, carried the rest of the state by more than 400,000 votes. In the state he polled a total of 2,457,327 to 2,013,920 for Stevenson. The state's voters are about equally divided between Cook county and downstate areas.

Also on the Republican ballot was Senator Knowland of California, who was entered before the President announced his availability for a second term, and Lar (America First) Daly of Chicago, a perennial office-seeker who also is running for the Republican nomination for Governor.

The Democrats appeared agreed that they will gain votes on what they term farm dissatisfaction in Illinois. One of Kefauver's main backers has said his surveys indicated the same sentiment is prevalent in Illinois as he says was registered in the Minnesota primary last month.

Not Binding on Delegates.

Results of today's voting will not be binding upon the state's delegates to the national nominating conventions. Each party will elect 50 delegates to the convention. Delegates at large will be chosen at the parties' state conventions to fill out the 64-vote Democratic delegation and the 60-vote Republican group.

Gov. William G. Stratton was favored to win renomination over four Republican opponents. His leading opponent appears to be State Treasurer Warren E. Wright.

Herbert C. Paschen, Cook county treasurer, with backing by the regular Democratic organization, and Morris B. Sachs, Chicago city treasurer, are contenders for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

There are no races for the United States Senate nomination. Republican Senator Everett Dirksen will oppose State Representative Richard Stengel, the Democratic choice, in November.

Twenty-five Congressmen will be nominated, and no upsets of incumbents were indicated. Two of the 13 Republican representatives are not seeking reelection. A third, Representative Chauncey W. Reed, died this year. All three represented heavily Republican districts.

Europe Convinced U.S. Has Lost Vision in Its Foreign Policy; Plans for Improvement Cited

Most of Blame Directed at Dulles—Washington Accused of Remaining Isolationist in Economic Field if Not in Political Field.

FIRST OF A SERIES.

PARIS.

EUROPEANS are convinced that American foreign policy has lost much of the vision, resourcefulness and flexibility that distinguished it from 1947 onward, when the United States departed from its traditions by accepting far-reaching commitments to check Soviet imperialism.

Many believe the far-sighted, imaginative bipartisan policy then developed in Washington probably saved Europe. An overwhelming majority of informed observers contend that this policy—a work of genius in its beginnings—has failed to move and evolve with the times.

That this view is held by most Europeans best qualified to judge seems confirmed by a survey made in western Europe's capitals by correspondents of the New York Times.

The survey was designed to elicit what competent observers, official and nonofficial, really believe, as contrasted with what may be said officially or publicly. It reflects rather what diplomats and others say when off duty.

Change Unnoticed?

The makers of United States foreign policy are widely suspected of failing fully to recognize that Stalin is dead, that the strategy, or at least the tactics, of Moscow have changed, that war probably is less imminent than in 1950 and that Western policy, without neglecting security, requires corresponding readaptation.

If Moscow seems to maneuver more adroitly than the West and to excel in propaganda by talking peace while the West emphasizes armaments, if the free world has been slow to react appropriately to Soviet proffers of economic aid as a means of penetration of uncommitted regions, the blame is placed largely on what is called the rigidity and lack of imagination of current United States policy. Many interpret this policy as sustaining a static situation in most parts of the world, including Germany.

As one diplomat expressed it: "We have built a hedge about ourselves in the Atlantic alliance with no thought of what we should do when the hedge was completed."

This military solidarity has not been supplemented by a corresponding economic solidarity. The dominant partner in the alliance, the United States, is accused of pursuing in the economic field the nationalistic isolation that it has abandoned in the political field.

Half its economic aid to its Allies must be delivered in American ships, even to nations having surplus shipping. The escape clause in American tariff legislation is a threat that if these Allies manage to earn more dollars by exports to replace aid, they may find the tariff rising to prevent this form of self-help.

Washington leaders are accused of a tendency to speak and act independently of their allies, and to pay too much attention to domestic politics in shaping foreign policy while paying too little attention to European needs, views and sensibilities.

Allies Bewildered.

They are accused of overindulgence in diplomacy by speeches and press conferences, which often display conflicting views within the Administration that bewilder Allies with whom the United States is committed to co-operate. Yet it appears to Europeans that when these public debates produce a given policy, Washington assumes the discussion is over and that it only remains for its Allies to accept the United States decision even if they have not been consulted.

There is little tendency to criticize President Eisenhower. There is a virtually universal disposition to blame Secretary of State Dulles for taking too rigid positions; for speaking too often, too extemporaneously and without due regard for the ideas and interests of the other Allies; for confusing his own reflections or impulses with settled Western policy.

What Europeans consider the merits and defects of United States policy are yardsticks giving approximate measurements of the adherence to or the deviations from the doctrine of Western unity adopted by the United States early in the "cold war." This doctrine crystallized in two acts of high statesmanship that Europeans never cease to praise: The Marshall plan of economic aid and the North Atlantic Alliance extending a United States guarantee of security over Western Europe.

Shift in Power.

The fairly sudden and involuntary acquisition of predominant power by the United States was accompanied by a decline of European power. The United States sought to correct this accident of history by restoring to Europe some of its former strength and independence—not as an act of pure generosity, but because the United States, powerful as it was, needed Allies.

It could not risk the loss to the Soviet Union of the vast industrial resources of Western Europe. So it agreed to pool and dilute to some extent its own power with the smaller but vital power of Western Europe to create a balance of power on a world-wide scale.

This principle was difficult to apply. The United States bears about 80 per cent of the cost of Atlantic defense and its officials do not always live up to the necessary diplomatic fiction that the alliance is one of equals. The bright labels pasted on every piece of Marshall plan machinery to show its origin hardly conformed to the need to use American wealth and power in an unobtrusive manner, if the alliance were to work well.

A similar overindulgence in publicity was seen by Europeans in Dulles's statement that he had brought the United States, and with it the Western world, to the brink of war—a place where Europe certainly did not care to go. The earlier talk in Washington of "massive retaliation" seemed another way of moving to the same brink without the prior approval of the Allies of the United States.

Such Washington tendencies to forget that the United States has allies are regarded as having taken extreme forms in Asia. In refusing to recognize the regime that effectively rules China, the United States has created a complete breach with its European allies, all of whom consider this a hopelessly unrealistic policy dictated mainly by domestic political pressure. This policy, too, seemed to entail moving to the brink of war when Washington appeared ready to risk a conflict over the Chinese offshore islands and Taiwan (Formosa). This was an example of the rigidity of which Europeans complain.

Much of this rigidity is attributed to what Europeans call a moralistic coloring given to United States policy largely by Dulles, contrary to the advice of George F. Kennan, former head of policy planning in the State Department. A similar propensity to preach is seen in the propaganda on "the American way of life," which Europeans believe is neither attainable nor necessarily desired by other nations, which have their own ways of life but can be loyal Allies for all that.

Unique U.S. Capitalism.

This way of life is associated by Europeans with the unique form of capitalism in the United States. It seems to have disproved Socialist doctrines as regards North America and to have prevented any extensive American understanding of the imporant Socialist movements in Europe, which were responses to a very different brand of capitalism.

In the United States, which enjoys a semi-socialized private capitalism, "creeping Socialism" is widely abhorred as close to Communism. In Europe, where socialization had to be done by the state, the resulting mixed economies reveal extensive "creeping" by Socialism. For good or ill, this is a part of European life, and many consider Socialism one of the best safeguards against Communism.

This view is little understood by United States policymakers, or so Europeans believe. The Socialistic British Labor party suspects that Washington would do what it could to prevent that party again governing Britain.

The principal force working against United States policy is Soviet imperialism operating through Communist groups. Some European economists believe the test will come if the Soviet economy can offer to the Russians a few years hence standards of living above those of Western Europe.

The race, therefore, is regarded as one between Soviet and European productivity. This view lends weight to the contention that United States policy should concentrate in the economic field.

This disunity of Western Europe, handicapping its productivity, is therefore considered by many to be another obstacle to United States policy, which has sought to strengthen Europe by uniting it.

In resisting this union in the form of a single tariffless market, British governments have been influenced by the conviction that what Britons call "the Anglo-American alliance" entitles Britain to a rating above the continental nations of the Atlantic alliance.

Britain's Pride Wounded.

Britain's pride was wounded when the United States lumped it with lesser nations as a recipient of Marshall aid. The British tend to believe they could use more skillfully the vast power that has fallen to the United States. They claim a special position in relations with the United States.

The French think this special position already exists to their disadvantage. They suspect that Washington and London get together behind their backs.

The French sense of frustration in both North Africa and Europe, expressed mainly in indictments of United States policy, led to the recent statements by Premier Guy Mollet urging a more positive United States attitude toward the Soviet Union. By this he meant

Did Eisenhower Get Message From Eden on Middle East?

By STEWART ALSOP

WASHINGTON.

ARE PRESIDENT EISENHOWER'S subordinates so eager to protect him from worry and strain that matters of great international importance are concealed from him, or their significance obscured?

This question is prompted by the President's answers to certain questions at his most recent press conference. He was twice asked whether he and Prime Minister Anthony Eden had been in recent communication about the Middle Eastern crisis. He was specifically asked whether Eden had recently sent him an important message stressing the gravity of the crisis and the urgent need for taking action to head off the danger.

The President seemed honestly puzzled by the questions. Prime Minister Eden and he quite often exchanged messages, he said, and they often contained references to the Middle East. But, he said, "I am certain it is no recent thing they must be talking about." He was sure he said, that there had been no message from Eden since "some time before" he went to White Sulphur Springs on March 24.

'They Haven't Pressed Me.'

He speculated that perhaps "they are talking about a recent message I haven't received yet." Overall, he left the strong impression that there had been no new, urgent, or important views expressed by Prime Minister Eden on the Middle Eastern crisis. Asked whether the British had been pressing the Administration to take a firmer line in the Middle East, the President replied: "Well, if they have, they haven't pressed me."

These presidential responses are mysterious. The questions were largely prompted by a report a week ago from London that Eden had sent a grave message to the President stressing the growing danger in the Middle East and the urgent need for basic joint policy decisions for dealing with the crisis. This report was confirmed and elaborated in subsequent dispatches in the British press and elsewhere.

The facts, which are indisputable, are as follows: About two weeks ago a high official of the American Embassy in London was summoned to hear the views of Prime Minister Eden. Gravely and even grimly, the Prime Minister held forth at length about the danger in the Middle East and the pressing need for joint decisions and action by the Anglo-American allies.

Eden indicated that he had called in the American official to make sure that the President knew his views of the situation. The American was naturally impressed by the responsibility involved in reporting a statement so grave as the Prime Minister's. He therefore asked Eden's permission to quote him verbatim on certain points to assure absolute accuracy. Eden thereupon himself wrote out a message, clearly intended for the President, which included the warning that major decisions might be not just a matter of days, but even a matter of hours.

Such are the facts. In view of these facts, there seem to be only three ways of explaining the President's answers to his press conference questions.

One theoretical explanation is that the President, for diplomatic or other reasons, was being disingenuous. But this explanation can almost certainly be dismissed. The President is not a dissembler by nature, and his replies clearly suggested that he was honestly puzzled by the questions.

Hard to Believe.

Another possible explanation is that the Eden message somehow got bogged down in the labyrinthine bureaucracy of the

Tax Deduction Plan for Small Political Gifts

Democrats Would Provide Simple Receipts for Individuals.

By DORIS FLEESON

WASHINGTON.

DEMOCRATS believe they have a simple, straightforward answer to the problem of raising political campaign funds from the people rather than the special interests.

It is to give the taxpayer a straight-out income tax credit for campaign contributions not to exceed $10 per taxpayer. The mechanics are simple.

The party which received a campaign contribution of $10 or less from a taxpayer would give him a receipt for it in a prescribed form. He could then subtract that amount from his income tax, attaching the receipt as proof of his donation.

No new bureaucracy would be involved and the figuring necessary would be reduced to the absolute minimum. It would hit practically everyone who now pays income tax, but in a painless, even attractive fashion.

Drafting Legislation.

Legislation to put the plan into effect is in the drafting stage at the Capitol. It must be started in the House, where revenue measures constitutionally originate. Representative Wilbur Mills, ranking Democrat on the revenue committee, Ways and Means, has agreed to sponsor it. He and Representative Hale Boggs of Louisiana, also a Ways and Means committeeman, have been promoting it among their colleagues and report that the response is enthusiastic.

Speaker Rayburn and Senate Majority Leader Johnson were consulted from the start. Senator Johnson is understood to have talked to his opposite number, Senator Knowland of California, about bipartisan sponsorship and to have received hospitable attention.

Democrats say they would be only too glad to join with Republicans to pass such legislation. But whether the G.O.P. likes the idea or not, it will be pressed.

The reason is obvious. The Democrats are crying the money blues. They are starting to raise funds with $100-a-plate Woodrow Wilson dinners this

CHILDS

American Diplomats Allowed A Pittance for Entertainment

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1956, The Pulitzer Publishing Co.)

WASHINGTON, April 10.

IN 75 embassies and nearly 300 consulates in every corner of the world the United States has its representatives. It is a sad reflection on the richest and most free-spending nation that these representatives are treated like poor relations who cannot be trusted with the silverware.

The Department of State has come to Congress with a request for $1,000,000 for what is called in the language of bureaucracy the "representation allowance." This means the money granted our diplomats to pay for the entertaining they must do in their job of winning friends and influencing people. It is the personal exchange across a dinner table or at a garden party that is the most effective form of enlisting friends.

Yet when it comes to funds for this purpose, Congress reflects what seems to be a curious split in the American character. Even Congressmen who should know better talk about "diplomacy by dipsomania" and the "whisky allowance" while columnists and commentators come up with sour jokes about the martini circuit.

Reflects Suspicion.

This seems to reflect a dark suspicion of diplomats in general and of American diplomats in particular, who, for all we know, spend their entire time sipping champagne in gilded salons. It seems to be a throwback to the old isolationism with its deep suspicion of foreigners and the conviction that Americans who have any truck with them are sure to lose their striped pants. Whatever the reason, the niggardliness that results puts a severe handicap on our representatives abroad and often it imposes serious personal hardships on them. It is one reason for the decline in morale and in standards in the American Foreign Service.

In the course of travel in Europe and Asia in the last two years this reporter encountered many instances of what the hardship means. Take as an example Consul John Jones in a Far Eastern city where American trade in vital materials is important. This is a typical case only slightly disguised.

It is part of Jones's job to entertain local officials and business men as well as many Americans on business trips. He gets an annual representation allowance of $300 which becomes available at the beginning of the Government year on July 1. On July 4 he gives the required Fourth of July party costing about $400. The New Year is therefore only four days old when he has spent $100 out of his own pocket and all his entertainment thereafter must be at his own expense.

Let it be added that this is a Moslem country where virtually no alcohol is consumed but where proper soft drinks, sandwiches and so forth cost about as much as martinis. Let it also be added that Consul Jones's wife is suffering from her second attack of amoebic dysentery and that there is no English-language school to which they can send their children. Consul Jones's salary is $8500 before income taxes and living in this remote part of the world where, incidentally, there is no proper medical care, involves extra expenses. Manifestly it is unfair to add to his other hardships the necessity for paying out of his own pocket to do his job.

Can't Afford Posts.

One reason political ambassadors occupy the important diplomatic posts — London, Paris, Rome — is that no career Foreign Service officer, unless he happens to have a private income or a rich wife, can afford these posts.

The representation allowance for Great Britain for the Ambassador down through the consuls is $21,900 this year. That may sound large for "entertainment" which is part of the diplomat's job and often an irksome part of it. But suppose a big international conference is being held in London at which the United States is contesting with the Soviet Union to put across the American view. An embassy reception with

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Red China's Place in World

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

President Eisenhower is reported to have told the Canadian Foreign Minister at the recent White Sulphur Springs conference that American public opinion would not tolerate the recognition of Communist China, "whose hands are dripping with the blood of Americans killed in Korea."

This appraisal of American sentiment is probably correct so long as the President himself and other leaders continue to speak about this subject in highly emotional terms and so long as no leader of either party undertakes to give the American people the facts upon which to base a rational judgment.

The simple facts are:

1. That the Peiping regime is, whether we like it or not, firmly established as the government of a nation containing almost one-quarter of the world's population.

2. That there can be no peace settlements as to Korea, Indochina or Formosa except through war or negotiation with Peiping.

3. That we cannot negotiate with a government the existence of which we decline to recognize.

Recognition of Peiping would not constitute approval any more than our maintenance of diplomatic relations with Moscow implies that we like or respect the Soviet government. Nor would recognition of Peiping necessarily mean the de-recognition of Nationalist China.

Most certainly, it would not mean abandoning Chiang Kai-shek to the tender mercy of the Communists.

Similarly, negotiation with Peiping would not imply "appeasement," much less "surrender." Negotiation would constitute nothing more than an honorable and sensible attempt to settle such questions as Korea, Indochina and Formosa by peaceful means or, failing that, to find a way of living at peace with some of our differences unresolved.

A continued ostrich-like refusal to face the unpleasant but immutable facts in the Far East will not only keep the United States indefinitely at the brink of war with China but will very soon lead to the isolation of the United States.

Our China policy is rapidly alienating both the uncommitted peoples and most of our allies, the exceptions being Chiang Kai-shek and Syngman Rhee, both of whom openly hope to involve the United States in war.

President Eisenhower is well aware of these facts. He is, moreover, a deeply sincere man of peace. Has he, then, so little confidence in the common sense of the American people that he dare not put them to the test? Or is it simply that in an election year both Republicans and Democrats lack the political courage to open up the question to rational discussion?

If the latter is the case, the leadership of both of our major political parties is taking a reckless gamble with the future of our nation and of the human race? History will not stand still while the United States takes a six months' leave of absence from world affairs to elect a President. JAMES P. WARBURG.

A Terrier's Last Word

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Actually, I think that Reader Gale's correspondence with me has reached the point of diminishing returns, since he seems reduced to idle threats of violence.

But, lest he feel that he has had the last word, let me say, in extension of my earlier remarks, that we Boston terriers, like others, believe that the pen (or typewriter) is mightier than the sword.

I shall not be deterred from raising my voice in the cause of justice and truth. Fair play, Mr. Gale, fair play. A.K.C. N-219272.

Patriots on Cyprus

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I agree with Reader George Dellas that there are 400,000 Greek-Cypriot patriots on the island of Cyprus.

But I should like to point out that there is a difference, and a very real difference, between the patriot and the terrorist. Not all of these patriots, devoted to the cause of their country as they are, condone the shooting down of soldiers in cold blood.

Murder is the tool of the terrorist, who uses violence to oppose a government by intimidation. British troops on Cyprus are obeying the orders of their government, a fact of which many Cypriots are aware.

These soldiers, whose lives are endangered, do not group all Greek Cypriots as terrorists. Therefore I submit that the "Searching for Terrorists" caption that Mr. Dellas evidently objects to was correct. One does not have to search for patriots on Cyprus.

Warning to Be Heeded

President Eisenhower has taken the strong stand the world has been expecting of him in the White House announcement from Augusta, Ga., that the United States is "determined to support and assist any nation" subjected to armed aggression in the Middle East.

The statement, which went on to declare that this country "will observe its commitments within constitutional means," has now been followed by a meeting of Secretary of State Dulles with Republican and Democratic leaders in Congress. These two developments make clear how gravely the Eisenhower Administration views the mounting tension along the Gaza strip between the Egyptians and the Israeli.

Meantime our envoys to the Middle East countries are urging both the Arabs and Israel to observe a strict cease-fire. And Dag Hammarskjold, U.N. Secretary General, has reached Tel Aviv, close to the flaming area, on his urgent peace mission.

What is the commitment which is the basis both for attention and for possible action by this country in the eastern Mediterranean? It is the Tripartite Declaration of May 25, 1950, which grew out of the London Foreign Ministers' meeting earlier that year.

This joint declaration of the United States, Britain and France appears to have been sponsored first by the British. In 1949, the State Department felt obliged to deny reports that Britain had offered to recognize Israel if the United States would accept a British proposal for guaranteeing Middle Eastern peace. In 1950, the United States, together with France, accepted just such a guarantee.

The first two points of the tripartite declaration, however, deal specifically with munitions. One states the opposition of the three powers to shipment of more arms than necessary for the "legitimate self-defense" of the Arab states and Israel. The other says arms will not be supplied unless these nations promise not to use them for aggression.

Recent shipments of munitions to Egypt by Communist nations have upset the purpose of the first two points, which was to stop an arms race. But the third point of the tripartite declaration was in 1950, and certainly is today, by far the most important of the three. It says:

> The three governments take this opportunity of declaring their deep interest and their desire to promote the establishment and maintenance of peace and stability in the area and their unalterable opposition to the use of force or threat of force between any of the states of that area. The three Governments, should they find that any of these states was preparing to violate frontiers or armistice lines, would, consistently with their obligations as members of the United Nations, immediately take action, both within and outside the United Nations, to prevent such violation.

In this agreement the three Western allies obviously meant to act against the threat of outright war, and not mere border hostilities, and their preference is to act within the United Nations before acting outside it. But in any event the three powers are pledged to try to keep the peace in the Middle East. Prime Minister Eden called attention to this declaration when he defended the need for a British base on Cyprus. Washington supported it by sending Marine contingents to the Mediterranean.

This tripartite warning of 1950, plus our membership in the U.N., constitute the base on which President Eisenhower soundly rests his vigorous warning to the bitter rivals in the Middle East. Every American can hope that the warning will serve its purpose. If it does the fighting will cease and the U.N. will have a chance to work out the points at dispute around a table where diplomacy rather than guns will be the means of settlement.

Out With the Facts!

Whatever else occurs in the wake of the horrible tragedy at Parris Island, S. C., the country wants and must get the full facts. Already the story has been changed once as to what happened to cause five Marines and probably a sixth to lose their lives on a night march through a treacherous swamp.

Since the Marine commandant, Gen. Randolph Pate, is at the scene, in full charge of the investigation, the reports as to the facts will have the highest approval the Marine Corps can give it.

The American people are entitled to know just who was responsible for this inexcusable blunder and why. No training program can justify a loss of this shocking character.

Party Loyalty or Profit?

Only a zealous and legitimate desire for the success of Democratic candidates may have been behind campaign contributions from such men as James M. Kemper Sr. of Kansas City and Richard R. Nacy, Richard R. Nacy Jr., Alex Vetter, Sam B. Cook, Frank Railton and Hugh Stephens, all of Jefferson City.

Yet when the voters notice that every one of them is connected with either the Commerce Trust Co. of Kansas City or the Central Missouri Trust Co. of Jefferson City, the banks which hold the largest deposits of the state's interest-free funds, many will raise an eyebrow. Being from Missouri, these voters may be slow to agree that money and politics are not mixed.

The deposits are legal, and so are the contributions. Yet they represent a compatibility of political success and profit by the state's banking practices which cannot be defended with much hope of carrying conviction. There is a suggestion of favors received and favors returned which ought to be impossible in connection with the management of state funds.

This suggestion was hardly diminished when State Treasurer G. Hubert Bates indorsed Gov. Donnelly's proposed corrective amendment to the state constitution on the theory that he favored what the bankers favored. The Donnelly amendment—which would allow the placing of 50 per cent of the state's idle funds in time deposits—is not nearly good enough. At most, it reduces the present evil.

A more flexible amendment is needed, one which will permit the state to earn as much as it possibly can on its funds, one which will not automatically guarantee the banks at least part of the windfall they now enjoy.

Safety Is That Simple

Ninety-six per cent of the traffic accidents in St. Louis could be prevented by the simplest of methods. That is the gist of a report by the police department traffic analyst and safety director, Capt. Roland J. Schumacher. He says a bare 1 per cent can be classed "unavoidable" and not more than 3 per cent are due to mechanical failures.

The remaining 96 out of 100 are caused by such violations of law—and common sense—as speeding and going through stop signs and yellow lights. These are faults any person of driving age and average intelligence can easily correct.

If the mechanical elements of cars caused 96 per cent of the accidents, if they failed to perform even their most simple functions adequately, the situation would be called intolerable. Is it any more tolerable because the element so fundamentally at fault is the one behind the wheel?

So Secretary Wilson Was Wrong

If President Eisenhower's sudden request to Congress for an additional $547,100,000 for national defense is justified—and we believe it is—then Secretary of Defense Wilson was wrong in his stubborn insistence that the armed services had adequate funds.

This increase would be added to the President's original request for $34,900,000,000. Is the White House's request for the additional half billion designed to stop criticism that the Administration lets budget balancing outweigh defense needs? The timing, just before the start of hearings in the Senate, almost proves it.

The bulk of the money—$376,500,000—is to go to the Air Force with $280,500,000 for increasing the number of B-52 long-range jet bombers on order and stepping up their rate of production. That will mean only 30-odd of these planes that are the backbone of the Strategic Air Command and which are urgently needed to replace the obsolescent B-36s. The Air Force has been getting only four B-52s a month whereas Soviet Russia has been reported getting a monthly production of 20 of its Bisons, a bomber corresponding to our B-52.

Only a few weeks ago Secretary of the Air Force Quarles told the Senate and House Armed Services Committees that he was perfectly satisfied with the B-52 program. There were several knowledgeable persons who had taken the opposite view even before he spoke.

Gen. Curtis LeMay, head of the Strategic Air Command, disagreed with the planning of the B-52 program as far back as 1952. Trevor Gardner, who quit as Assistant Secretary of the Air Force in February, had told a secret House appropriations subcommittee hearing just after he resigned that the Air Force needed $3,500,000,000 more than the budget specified.

The Post-Dispatch military analyst, Brig. Gen. Thomas R. Phillips (Ret.), wrote articles over a period of several months stressing that the Air Force was not receiving the funds it needed. Gen. Phillips emphasized that the budget allotment would not even provide plane replacements for the normal attrition, nor would it provide the new interceptors that are needed.

The remainder of the funds Mr. Eisenhower has requested is to go for guided and ballistic missiles, the radar warning network, Navy ship conversions and minor increases in Navy and Army strength. It is interesting to note that about $50,000,000 is sought for the missile program. Secretary Wilson has been under long and heavy criticism for his missile program.

This request for the extra half billion is a short step in the right direction. But no one can say convincingly that it recognizes the urgency of an adequate defense program.

When Sonny Was Cloudy on Willie

"Sonny" Fox, who used to be on our educational TV station KETC, apparently did not absorb quite enough of one branch of education while there. Now m.c.-ing the new CBS-TV program "The $64,000 Challenge," Mr. Fox read one of the answers wrong Sunday night and accepted Polonius as the father of Desdemona. In the next 20 minutes the network received 12,000 calls of protest.

Our feeling is that it would be a rare fellow indeed to whom the name of Brabantio would spring readily to mind. But contrariwise, who could ever forget Polonius, his place in "Hamlet," and his fatherhood of Laertes? That tedious old spouter of platitudes whose advice to his son became the mighty line's mightiest soporific? That flexible old sycophant to whom a cloud could look like a camel, a weasel, a whale or any other creature in Hamlet's imagined zoo?

We are confident that Mr. Fox knew better, and that it was simply one of those occasions when one nods and then finds oneself stuck.

Community Face-Lifting

What has happened to East St. Louis? The question arises from a realization that a community face-lifting is in the making. Already in place or scheduled for early construction are such signs of progress as new sewers, new schools, new roads, new housing, new street lights, a new freeway and so on. There is even talk of a new city hall.

One of the big factors in creating the climate for this real or promised progress is the improved position of municipal finances. For years East St. Louis has been chronically short of ready cash. Now, with the aid of a new sales tax, Mayor Alvin G. Fields looks forward to a year in which income will match or exceed outgo.

The example of East St. Louis's neighbor on the west side of the Mississippi is another factor. It has not gone unnoticed on the East Side that St. Louisans are borrowing $110,000,000 for public improvements designed to arrest decay and make their city a better place in which to live and raise children.

Most importantly, however, there is a rising tide of civic consciousness in the rapidly-growing suburban subdivisions of Madison and St. Clair counties, and some of this seems to have taken root in East St. Louis itself. Several improvement groups have frankly faced up to their problems, and are working to overcome them.

And so a substantial group of East St. Louisans are spurring their community to keep pace with progress throughout this metropolitan area. Everyone will wish them luck.

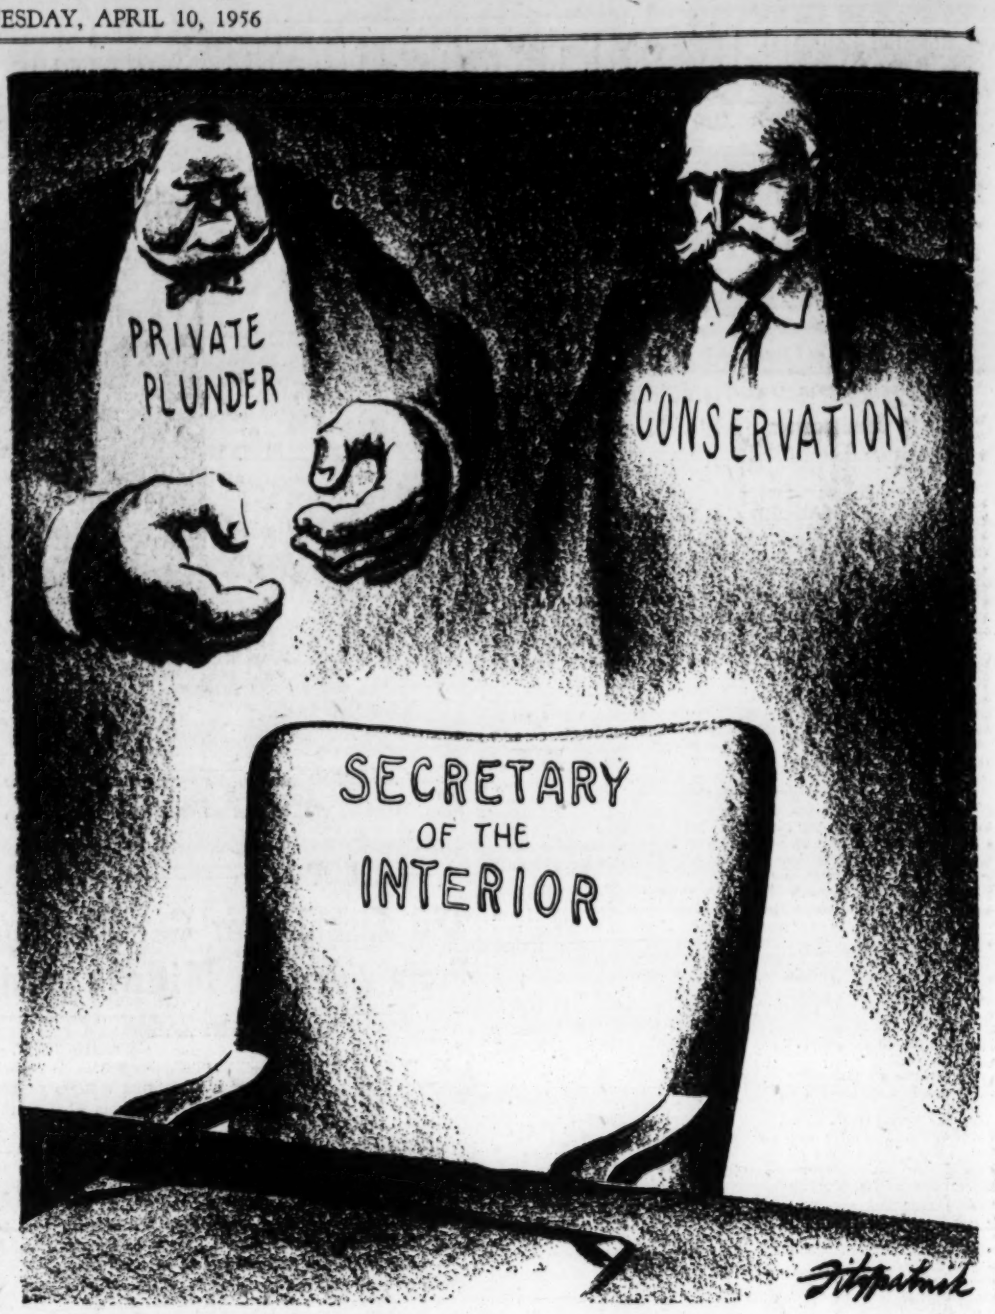

The Noble, and Official, Dog

One of our favorite commentators, Bill Vaughan of The Kansas City Star, reports that when Pennsylvania tried to name a State Dog, the Great Dane failed by one vote of attaining the necessary majority. He views this trend with alarm, and we agree.

As Mr. Vaughan observes, the Missouri Legislature was once in a tizzy over naming a State Song, finally more or less agreeing on "The Missouri Waltz." Only last year, the Legislature named the flowering dogwood the State Tree. This caused some perplexity because the flowering hawthorn had already been named the State Flower, and the dogwood is no more a tree than the hawthorn—or the hawthorn is no more a flower.

This business of making things official is bound to cause trouble, and official dogs could cause more trouble than anybody. If Pennsylvania had named the Great Dane, what would the owners of French Poodles have said? Or the Pointer and Setter Club? This newspaper has recently printed several letters arguing not only the merits but the definition of Boston Bulls, terriers and lap-dogs.

Not only is man the dog's best friend, but nearly every citizen is a one-dog man. In view of this, the best place to leave the State Dog matter is out back, on a leash.

ANOTHER McKAY—OR ANOTHER PINCHOT?

Change in the German Air

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Amendments to Army law show unprecedented parliamentary authority; Adenauer's coalition fading as combinations against him are formed in view of next year's elections; Free Democrats are disturbing, but reunification is big issue though unresolved.

From The Economist, London

A winter of party strife at Bonn has not prevented the Bundestag from making decisions necessary to allow West German rearmament to go forward. The Soldatengesetz, the basic piece of legislation on which the existence of the new armed forces will rest, has passed its third reading.

While the Social Democrat Opposition voted against this bill (which needed only a simple majority), all but 20 of them voted for the extensive amendments to the Basic Law which were considered necessary to put rearmament on a clear constitutional basis.

They voted against the Soldiers Bill because it is an instrument to carry out the Paris treaties, to which they are opposed, and because they hold German rearmament in present circumstances to be wrong. The constitutional amendments, too, are an instrument to carry out the Paris treaties, but here the Social Democrats preferred to use their bargaining power to anchor in the Basic Law a series of safeguards for the parliamentary control of the military arm.

Adenauer

Experience will show whether these safeguards prove effective. At least they are an advance on the constitutional practice of earlier German regimes, and the collaboration between Government and Opposition parties in the Bundestag which evolved them over the past year, largely in opposition to the wishes of the Federal Government, is an advance in German parliamentary work.

Rise of Parlimentary Power

Some of the credit goes to the Christian Social chairman and the Social Democrat deputy chairman of the Bundestag defense committee, Dr. Jager and Herr Erler, who have maintained a remarkably good working relationship. But an equal part was played by the Federal Government's hasty and arbitrary handling of the defense legislation in its early stages last year, which created a parliamentary front against the executive power.

Parliament, as a result, has been able to impose its wishes on the Ministry of Defense in an important and—in German politics—highly unusual degree.

Dr. Adenauer, as Chancellor, supported his Minister of Defense in these matters, and the rebuffs he had to accept at the hands of Parliament were the first important sign of a weakening of his tactical mastery of the politics of the Federal Republic. Other signs have followed, culminating in the rebellion of the Free Democrats, the overthrow of a Land Government at Dusseldorf which had been set up in 1954 on lines laid down by the Chancellor personally, and the secession of the majority of the Free Democrats from the coalition.

Gradual Change of Coalition

The gradual mutation of the coalition cabinet into a Christian Democrat cabinet had begun earlier with ministerial appointments which left Professor Oberlander and Herr Kraft without a party; these two Ministers have joined the Christian Democrats, keeping their Cabinet posts.

The four Free Democrat Ministers have similarly chosen to remain in office, supported by a dozen other Free Democrat dissidents, leaving their party to go into opposition without them. This group may be able to exert a moderating influence on the party as the price of its return to the fold; still, since it has failed to find support in the party executive or the regional organizations, its position does not change the fact that the Bonn Government now rests for practical purposes on the Christian Democratic and Christian Social Unions.

These constitute a majority of the present Bundestag, but they will not make a majority of the next Bundestag unless the Christian Democrats in September next year succeed in retaining every ounce of their sweeping electoral gains in 1953.

For the first time since the Federal Republic was founded in 1949, the possibility of a change of government has ceased to appear remote. The recollection of Dr. Adenauer's great services to Germany has no power to damp the enlivening effect of this perception on German party political life.

New Opposition to Adenauer

Dr. Dehler of the Free Democrats, indeed, has gone so far as to reproach Dr. Adenauer with having become too much the one representative abroad of the "good" Germany, and with having set himself up as the one man who can "tame" the German nation.

Opposition to Dr. Adenauer has begun to replace adherence to him as the basis for party combinations. As German newspaper commentators have been remarking, many of them not without relish, German party politics have become fluid.

Some such change in the West German political climate was inevitable one day, no doubt, but some of the accompanying circumstances are of a kind to cause uneasiness.

Certainly the Dusseldorf Free Democrats have been one of the question-marks of German politics. It would have been easier to look on in detachment if the fuse had been set off from some other source. The triple political origin of the Free Democrats makes it always difficult to predict their course; they wear the clashing colors of the old Democratic Party (liberals), the Stresemann Party (national liberals), and Hugenberg's German Nationalists.

Dr. Dehler is able to demand a "German" foreign policy; here is the ground on which Free Democrats and Social Democrats, craving power and impatient with things as they are, can meet.

Change for Sake of Change?

One uncomfortable fact is plain; since the Soviet Union alone is in a position to satisfy the demand, it implies, necessarily, talks with the Russians. This is common ground to virtually all shades of German opinion; it was on this ground that Dr. Adenauer explained his decision to exchange ambassadors with Moscow; but there is no common ground on the place which the Paris treaties ought to have in any talks with the Russians when they take place.

For the present the question remains academic, since the Russians continue to tell the West Germans firmly that if they want to discuss unity they must address themselves to Herr Grotewohl in East Berlin. But there is discontent, there is criticism, and there is an increasingly perceptible pressure for change at Bonn for the sake of change.

TELLING THE WRONG PERSONS.
From The Milwaukee Journal.

A Washington psychiatrist has told the "fathers of the nation" that it's time for them to "resume their rightful role" as boss of the family. Why tell the fathers? They've known it all along. If this psychiatrist, who issued what amounts to a call for bravery, is so brave himself, why doesn't he tell the mothers?

Between Book Ends

Still the Hate Campaigns

CROSS-CURRENTS, by Arnold Forster and Benjamin R. Epstein. (Doubleday, 382 pgs., $4.)

With attention in the United States focused internationally on problems in the Middle East and relations with African and Asian nations and locally on the forthcoming presidential election and integration of races in Southern schools, a great many Americans are probably unaware of the wave of intolerance toward a large segment of the population—which still adversely affects democratic life in this nation.

The story of cross-currents of anti-Semitism is constructed in this book from a large number of memoranda and documents which expose the planned hate campaign directed primarily against Jews in America, Germany and the Middle East. Names and tactics of many of the rabble-rousers in the United States, several of whom have operated out of St. Louis, will be familiar to the reader.

Although no evidence of anti-Semitism was found, in the Fort Monmouth scandal and Senator McCarthy's investigation of alleged Communists in sensitive positions, the arithmetic of those suspended and declassified shows there were 38 Jews and one Negro out of 42 persons affected. Most of them were subsequently cleared.

Arnold Forster and Benjamin R. Epstein, the authors, charge "McCarthyism" was involved. They define the term (as distinguished from Senator McCarthy) as "the irresponsible exploitation of political and public media for the furthering of personal or political ambitions; defamation of personal or political opponents; the mixture of fact and gossip. It means the cultivation of prejudice and fear; it means the increased reliance upon 'secret' informers; unproduced evidence in the process of justice. It means that a person is guilty until he proves himself innocent."

The plight of Jews in Germany has not been removed, as any visitor to the country would note, although progress has been made in undoing the work of Hitler's propaganda machine. "For Germany," the authors stated, "a complex question is clearly evident: what are the most effective antidotes to the Fascist infection that remains a potential threat in this recreated democracy?"

As to the Middle East, the problem is equally complicated. Mr. Forster and Mr. Epstein pose the question: "How best can permanent peace be brought to that war-fevered area?" They claim that the "purpose of unifying the divergent countries of the Arab League is a determination to destroy Israel."

Whether or not the reader agrees with some of the conclusions of the authors, he cannot deny the obvious existence of organized professional hate campaigns against the Jew, not only on the international scene but even in the United States. The reader will probably feel a little embarrassed to know that the privileges of freedom and liberty are being abused by some at the expense of others who have contributed much to our cultural and traditional heritage.

JOHN H. HICKS.

Tea Time at Teton

THE COCKTAIL HOUR AT JACKSON HOLE, by Donald Hough. (Norton, 253 pgs., $3.50.)

No matter whether one has not been fortunate enough to visit this out-of-the-way spot or has gone there and become one of the tens of thousands of Jackson Hole's devotees, "The Cocktail Hour at Jackson Hole" is rip-roaring reading.

Its author, Donald Hough, who has written five previous books and hundreds of excellent magazine stories and articles, is sure to win even more friends with this, his most recent volume. The book, itself, is a cocktail.

Hough tells stories about the famous—such as Dennis Morgan, the movie star, and Archie Teator, the artist—and the pages are also filled with apt character sketches of lesser-known but remarkable persons; vivid running accounts of happenings; and heart-warming descriptions of the majestic Tetons and the unusual village below.

THOMAS L. STOKES

Democrats Focus on Social Security

WASHINGTON.

THE RE-CONVENING OF CONGRESS after its Easter recess brings Social Security forward as a major issue with Senate Democrats. They will stress it in their drive, between now and summer adjournment for the national conventions, to recoup from the early and somewhat ineffectual months of this pre-election session.

Their battle will revolve specifically about the bill passed by the House last session which would lower the age at which women become eligible for old-age pensions from 65—which now applies to both sexes—to 62 and which also would authorize benefits to the totally disabled to begin at 50 years of age instead of 65, as now.

Folsom

Democrats have chosen to concentrate upon Social Security as their chief social welfare objective in this election year for a number of reasons.

Avoids Party Divisions.

High among them is that they can draw a clear line with the Eisenhower Administration, which opposes this measure and took a strong stand against it through Marion B. Folsom, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, in Senate Finance Committee hearings recently completed.

Another reason Democrats have picked the Social Security issue is that there are divisions within the party over other social welfare objectives. In the case of the school construction bill, a party split between North and South over integration has that stymied.

In the case of extension of coverage of the minimum-wage law, a part of the Eisenhower program, as well as in the case of revision of the Taft-Hartley labor law, action is blocked by southern Democratic conservatives under leadership of Representative Graham A. Barden of North Carolina, chairman of the House Education and Labor Committee, who has kept the bills on those subjects pigeon holed.

Social Security also is a potent issue for Democratic members of Congress up for re-election. This is illustrated perhaps most pointedly and dramatically in the case of Senator Walter F. George of Georgia, who faces tough opposition in former Gov. Herman Talmadge.

Presidential Aspirants.

The one-time conservative Georgia Senator is calling insistently for action and protesting that the Administration is trying to bottle up the Social Security bill in the Senate Finance Committee. Fortuitously, Senator George is a member of that committee, in fact the ranking Democratic member, and formerly was its chairman.

He would go much further than the bill passed by the House. He is sponsoring amendments jointly with Senator Russell Long (Dem.), Louisiana, to boost present old age assistance payments for an average increase of $6 a month and also is advocating complete removal of all age restrictions on benefits for total disability. He argues that disability before the age of 50 is just as serious a matter as after that age.

The campaign for the Social Security revision bill is being vigorously promoted also by the two active Democratic candidates for the party's presidential nomination—Adlai Stevenson and Senator Estes Kefauver.

They face each other in crucial primary tests in two states where many elderly people interested in Social Security constitute a formidable voting bloc—Florida and California, which hold presidential primaries on May 29 and June 5, respectively. Both are making the measure an issue with the Eisenhower Administration.

Folsom Once More Liberal.

Organized labor, which is backing Democrats in the fight for Social Security revision, is making much of the fact that Secretary Folsom, who now opposes on behalf of the Administration a reduction of the eligibility age for women to 62, went on record in 1949 in favor of lowering the age from 65 to 60. That he did, in truth, as a member of a Citizens Advisory Council on Social Security set up to advise the Senate Finance Committee.

The explanation of Secretary Folsom, who was a pioneer in private Social Security plans for industry which he introduced in the Eastman Kodak Co. and who also helped to draft the original Federal Social Security law of 1935, is that he was for lowering the age seven years ago because economists feared a recession and he felt that it would help to maintain employment if older women were removed from the labor market to make places for younger persons who would be out of jobs.

Now, he says, the situation is entirely different because of prosperity and a consequent labor shortage. This could be met by older persons who, he contends, should be permitted to continue work at much higher earnings than old age pensions provide.

Byrd Against Lower Age.

His opposition to lower ages for pension eligibility and for eligibility of totally disabled to benefits was sharply challenged by another recognized authority on Social Security, Dr. Arthur Altmeyer, who was like Secretary Folsom a pioneer in Social Security and was administrator of the Social Security law here for many years during the Roosevelt and Truman Administrations. He pronounced the bill sound from every viewpoint.

Secretary Folsom and Republican Senators favoring the Administration position are not the only obstacles in the way of final enactment of the measure. Democrats find one of their own in the way—none other than the chairman of the Finance Committee, Senator Harry F. Byrd of Virginia.

Once again, as with school, minimum wage and labor legislation, this illustrates how the Southern wing of the party has become a drag in making a record in the social welfare field.

DR. CASBERG SPEAKS ON DOCTOR'S OUTLOOK

One of the fundamental shortcomings of medical education is its tendency to produce doctors who think in terms of ailments rather than of ailing persons, Dr. Melvin A. Casberg, former dean of St. Louis University School of Medicine, said here today.

Dr. Casberg, who now lives at Solvang, Calif., and recently was appointed vice president for medical affairs of the University of Texas, addressed the ninety-eighth annual session of the Missouri State Medical Association at Hotel Sheraton-Jefferson.

He applauded efforts being made at Western Reserve, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin universities to give medical students a sense of responsibility "for the patient as a whole" by bringing them into early contact with patients and with the community at large.

Overspecialization Danger.

He also praised Western Reserve's plan for correlating basic science courses so that students working in a multipurpose laboratory receive in logical sequence the facts on structure, function and disease, while at the same time being trained in fundamental scientific thinking.

Dr. Casberg, discussing "The Adequacy of Medical Education," saw the possibility that schools might be producing too many specialists, inasmuch as about half the students in medical graduating classes plan to specialize even though 80 per cent of man's ailments can be handled by general practitioners.

He said the number of doctors in the United States was increasing by about 3000 annually. The ratio of physicians to total population is increasing, he said, and this is a point that ought to be considered by people who want to "sacrifice quality of medical education for quantity."

Thinks Surplus Possible.

"It is within the realm of possibility," Dr. Casberg said, "that over the next 25 years there may develop a surplus of physicians in this country."

At a dinner meeting last night, the Committee on Civil Defense of the state medical association awarded a citation to Newell S. Gingrich, professor of physics at the University of Missouri. He was honored for outstanding work in Civil Defense radiological monitoring.

Nuclear Bombing Effects.

The genetic damage to human beings that might be expected following exposure to nuclear bombing was discussed at the dinner by Frank P. Hungate, a geneticist in the biology section of the Hanford (Wash.) Atomic Project, General Electric Co.

On the basis of experiments with fruit flies and mice, Hungate said, it is apparent that the great preponderance of genetic changes, or mutations, caused by radiation are of a damaging type. He said the damage would be mostly to future generations, rather than to persons exposed.

"These mutations seldom express themselves with full impact in the first or even the second generation," he declared, "but tend to cause slight damage through many generations, and occasionally produce death."

Hungate said no exposure to radiation was too small to produce some genetic damage, since the effect is cumulative from birth to the reproduction stage. However, he said that the American people are exposed to more radiation each year from X-ray and similar devices than has been produced thus far by the total fallout from nuclear explosions.

TOSSY SPIVAKOVSKY IN SUPERIOR RECITAL

Violinist Plays Final Program of Clayton Community Series.

By THOMAS B. SHERMAN

Tossy Spivakovsky, the Russian-born violinist who has become an established figure in the musical life of America since the war, played the final recital of the Clayton Community series last night in the Clayton High School auditorium. Spivakovsky offered a program of generally superior quality and his performance of each number was responsive in a highly satisfactory way to its special character. His technical command was also sure, facile and at times quite brilliant in its purely violinistic effectiveness.

It must be admitted, however, that both the artistic and acoustical value of the recital was measurably diminished by the lack of resonance in the hall itself. The combination of absorbent material on the walls and curtains at the rear of the stage reduced the "hang" or after-sound of the instrument, producing a condition that was particularly unfavorable to the flowing passages in the Mozart Concerto in D Major (K.218). It was still a sensitive performance and alive to the blythe and sometimes wistful nature of the music.

The Bruch Concerto in G Minor was altogether successful, possibly because both the performer and the listener were better adjusted to the situation. In any case, it was played warmly and with an engaging romantic breadth and emphasis; yet it escaped any suggestion of the sentimental. Leopold Mittman, the pianist, worked valorously at producing an orchestral effect with his instrument. It can never quite be done even under the best circumstances. Mittman, however, produced about as good a substitute as could be expected.

Spivakovsky lavished as much musicianly care on the short pieces as on the concertos and they were all cordially received. Paganini's Caprice No. 24 enabled him to make a dazzling and wide ranging show of his facility. Two encores, adaptations of pieces by Chopin and Moussorgsky, were added to the listed program.

City Produces Film to Show Taxpayers How Money Is Used

'The Big City,' a 24-Minute Documentary on Services, Is Available to Organizations.

Something new in the way of a report to the taxpayers is being presented by the City of St. Louis.

Instead of collecting a mass of statistics into a pamphlet that will be only too easy to file and forget, Mayor Raymond R. Tucker has made the report in the form of a motion picture dramatizing municipal services.

"The Big City," a 24-minute documentary film, was previewed by a group of civic leaders at Hotel Lennox yesterday. Ultimately it will be seen by hundreds of thousands, since the city has ordered 16 prints for use by schools, civic clubs, church groups and other organizations.

The film was produced by Charles Guggenheim and Associates and the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra supplied background music. It pictures fire-fighting, water purification, rat control, enforcement of the anti-smoke ordinance, traffic control and other day-to-day services. The Mayor appears in it only briefly, and is not mentioned by name.

"In order to get bond issues passed, we have been emphasizing the defects of St. Louis in the last few years," Tucker explained. "Through this film we are now showing the other side of the picture—the constructive things. The more people see how their tax money is being spent, the more willing they are to support such services."

The Board of Aldermen appropriated $15,000 for publication of an annual report. The 16-millimeter film cost $14,000. Organizations can obtain it for showing from Midwest Projection Equipment Co., 3743 Gravois avenue.

ATTORNEY HAMP ROTHWELL DIES IN JEFFERSON CITY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 10—Hamp Rothwell of Vienna, a widely known central Missouri lawyer and Democrat, died here yesterday after an illness of several weeks. He was 78 years old.

Rothwell, who was a patient in Still Hospital here, served several terms as prosecuting attorney of Maries county.

As a lawyer and office holder, he had been prominent in public affairs of St. Louis, St. Louis county and the state. He served four terms as city attorney of Columbia before going to St. Louis in 1914. He was outstate campaign manager for Fred Gardner, running for governor in 1916, and oil commissioner in St. Louis from 1917 to 1921. He practiced law in St. Louis and St. Louis county until 1935, and from then to 1941 was a special attorney by appointment of President Roosevelt, in the Department of Justice, chiefly handling land acquisition in connection with national forests and game refuges.

WEBSTER COLLEGE AWARDS 4 SPECIAL SCHOLARSHIPS

Miss Mary Sue Conrads, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Conrads, 6266 Loran avenue, will receive a speech and drama department scholarship valued at $200 annually. Miss Patricial Fitzgerald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Fitzgerald, 990 Harrison avenue, Florissant, won a music department scholarship in piano, valued at $150 annually.

Art department scholarships, each worth $200 annually, were won by Miss Virginia Young, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold M. Young, 117 South Barat avenue, Ferguson, and Miss Barbara Herlt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Holle F. Herlt, 309 Newport avenue, Webster Groves.

MISS KATHLEEN GILLARD DIES

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo., April 10 (AP)—Miss Kathleen Isabel Gillard, former dean of women at Southeast Missouri State College here and instructor at six other schools, died at her home yesterday. She was 66 years old.

Miss Gillard was the author of a recent book, "Our Michigan Heritage," a history of Michigan.

Anita Primrose Dead at 75.

WOODLAND HILLS, Calif., April 10 (AP)—Mrs. Robert E. Perry, known on the vaudeville stage as Anita Primrose, is dead at the age of 75. She died last Friday at the motion picture country home, it was disclosed yesterday.

RELIGIOUS ART EXHIBITION AT CONCORDIA SEMINARY

An exhibition of religious art will open tomorrow at Concordia Theological Seminary, 801 DeMun avenue, Clayton, it was announced today by the seminary's Lyceum, student group that fosters cultural affairs.

Painters who will contribute work include Herbert Cummings, member of the Washington University School of Architecture faculty and art teacher at Webster College, and Richard R. Caemmerer Jr., St. Louis artist now serving in the Army at Fort Leonard Wood.

Robert Harmon, a designer for the Emil Frei stained-glass firm, will show sketches and completed windows. One entry is to be designated "best in show" by a jury composed of Fred Conway and Edward E. Boccia, artists who teach at Washington University. The display will be open to the public through April 18. Hours are 12 noon to 9:30 p.m. weekdays and Sunday and 9 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. Saturday.

FUNERAL SERVICES HELD FOR LEO H. LUEDERS

Funeral services were held today for Leo H. Lueders, director of the Abbott Laboratories here until his retirement about 10 years ago. The services were at the Hoppe undertaking establishment, with private burial in Valhalla Cemetery.

Mr. Lueders was 83 years old and died Sunday at the Hamilton Medical Convalescent Center. In recent years, he lived at the Kingsway Hotel. Surviving is a daughter, Mrs. Julian Sampson.

3 ST. LOUIS PEDIATRICIANS CITED FOR COMMUNITY AID

Citations to three St. Louis pediatricians "for their contributions to the local community and in the development of pediatrics as a party of medicine" were awarded by the St. Louis Pediatrics Society at a dinner meeting last night at the Park Plaza Hotel.

Honored were Dr. Jean V. Cooke, professor emeritus and lecturer in pediatrics at Washington University; Dr. Bordon S. Veeder, professor emeritus of clinical pediatrics at Washington University and editor of the Journal of Pediatrics; and Dr. John Zahorsky, professor emeritus of pediatrics at St. Louis University.

The citations were presented by Dr. Read C. Boles and Dr. William G. Klingberg of Washington University and Dr. Peter G. Danis of St. Louis University. Dr. Henry Barnett, professor of pediatrics at the Albert Einstein College of Medicine, Yeshiva University, New York, was the guest speaker at the meeting.

WARRENSBURG, Mo., April 11 (AP) — Mrs. Jacob Ensminger of Hickman Mills today was named the Missouri mother of 1956. The announcement was made by Mrs. George W. Diemer, Warrensburg, chairman of the state committee of the American Mother Committee.

Mrs. Ensminger is the mother of seven children. She has 16 grandchildren and one great-grandchild. Ensminger, a livestock farmer, died in 1941.

Mrs. Ensminger, 70 years old, is active in the Community Christian Church, the Red Cross, Parent-Teachers Association and the Jackson County Farm Bureau.

ROYAL WEDDING IN MUNICH, ARCHDUKE AND COUNTESS

MUNICH, Germany, April 10 (AP)—Austrian Archduke Ferdinand and a pretty Bavarian countess, were married today before 72 titled guests. The bride is Countess Helen zu Toerring-Jettenbach, 18, whose mother was Princess Elisabeth of Greece and Denmark, a sister of the Duchess of Kent.

The Roman Catholic ceremony took place in a chapel of the 800-year-old Seefeld castle, the bride's family residence, on Lake Pilsensee near Munich.

Guests included ex-King Umberto of Italy; Archduke Otto of Hapsburg, pretender to the Austrian throne; Prince Regent Paul of Yugoslavia, Prince Michael of Greece; Duke Albrecht of Bavaria, pretender to the Bavarian throne; and Prince Franz Joseph II, the ruler of Lichtenstein.

The 37-year-old archduke is an executive of a Ruhr steel firm in Essen. He is a nephew of the late Austrian emperor, Charles I.

MRS. RANSOM BREUER DIES

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HERMANN, Mo., April 10—Mrs. Josephine Breuer, wife of Ransom A. Breuer, retired judge of the Thirty-second Judicial Circuit, died last Sunday in a hospital at Washington, Mo. She was 83 years old.

Breuer had been judge of the circuit for 42 years when he retired Jan. 5, 1953.

MRS. GERARD M'MAHON DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Mrs. Gerard McMahon, 4944 Lindell boulevard, died today at her home after a long illness. She was 55 years old. She was active in Community Chest and American Red Cross work, and was a member of the Catholic Women's League.

Born in St. Louis, Mrs. McMahon was formerly Miss Elizabeth Lousita Moser, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Leo Moser. She attended the Academy of the Sacred Heart and Eden Hall, at Torresdale, Pa. Her husband is with the St. Louis office of Owens-Illinois Glass Co.

Surviving also are two sons, Gerard McMahon Jr., Lexington, Ky., and John Francis McMahon, St. Louis; a daughter, Mrs. Morton J. Lucas Jr., Springfield, Ill., and two brothers, Leo Moser Jr., San Diego, and J. Edgar Moser, West Plains, Mo. The funeral will be Thursday at 9 a.m. at the St. Louis Cathedral, Lindell boulevard and Newstead avenue. Burial will be in Calvary Cemetery.

Sixteen Pound Bomb.

NEW YORK, April 10.

IT starts with the time Mort Lindsey got pinched as a German saboteur in World War I, and from there on the stories keep rolling. You could hardly blame the Canadian customs man who called the cops. He was going through the luggage of travelers crossing from Detroit to Windsor and he came upon this carrying case containing a 16-pound ball that looked to him like a bomb. So he hollered and the law moved in, and it took Mort Lindsey a while to convince the right people that he meant to blow up no bridges, that he was just a bowler on exhibition tour.

"In those days," Mort said, "you got $50 a day for exhibitions and you paid your own expenses. This year young Bill Lillard, the national match-game champion, has got to make $50,000. Some of us were born 30 years too soon."

This was in a restaurant in Stamford, Conn., where Lindsey lives, and he was spinning yarns about 54 years on the alleys.

Definition of Fame.

"DID I tell you about the time in Coney Island?" Mort was saying. "Well, I was a kid in Yorkville, still in short pants, and I started bowling in the Y.M.C.A. on Eighty-sixth street. We started a tournament there and the first year I was in it I finished third. The next year I won it, and by the time I had long pants my friends were barring me from their little jackpots. We used to shoot 25-cent jackpots and if there were eight bowlers in it you'd win $1.75, which was a lot of money.

"I was out in Coney Island bowling under an assumed name, because I was having trouble getting matches. I bowled one guy for $25 and beat him. I got another match and won it. Then a young fellow from Harlem came along and I beat him. I was bowling every week then, under my own name, at 116th street and Lenox avenue in Harlem.

"This last fellow I beat, he said there was a guy up in Harlem I could get a match with and he knew I could beat him. 'Maht Lindsey,' he said the guy's name was, and a fellow in the crowd laughed. 'Who the hell you think you just rolled with?' He asked the Harlem boy.

Twenty Games With Smith.

"IN my book, the greatest bowler of them all was Jimmy Smith, because he shot everywhere in the country, on every alley, and he played every single one the same way, from the corner. And he could hit any alley ever built.

"We hooked up one time in the Capitol alleys in New York for a 20-game match, just an exhibition for no money. He picked two alleys and I picked two, the ones we liked best, and on my alleys he murdered me the first 10 games by 430 pins. With 10 games to go, I had no chance at all. Nobody in the world picked up 43 pins a game on Jimmy Smith. I headed for the bar.

"My wife was with me then. We'd rolled the first block in the afternoon and now she was hungry. 'We'll eat after the match,' I told her. I felt terrible, because for money or an exhibition nobody wants his ears pinned back by 500 pins or so, and now we were going to roll on Jimmy's alleys.

"Well, we started back at each other and I was shooting everything, figuring I had no chance. After nine games Jimmy led me by only 88 pins and I thought, 'I lose, but I won't get disgraced.' In the last game Jimmy rolled 200 on the nose. On my last ball, the No. 10 pin rocked like this (Mort set a salt shaker tottering on the table) and stood up. That was for a perfect game. I scored 299 and beat him by 11 pins.

Garrison Finish.

"DID you know little Billy Knox in Philadelphia? I got into a home-and-home match with him for $1000, knowing he was unbeatable on his home alleys. We started in New York and when we were through here I had 647 pins on him.

"'Mort,' he said to me—we were good friends—'you ain't got enough wood. If you had 900 on me, it would still be a match. You can't beat me with what you've got.' I thought, 'what kind of alleys has this man got over in Philadelphia?'

"So we got over there and the guys were running at me. 'Want to bet 15 to 1 he don't throw in a 300 game on you?' one guy says. 'Would you give even money he don't average 235?' another asks. That's how it was.

"They weren't kidding. Billy chewed away at that lead of 647 pins, and on the next to last game he caught and passed me. On the last game I caught him back, and I won the match by nine pins."

Walsingham in Hospital.

William Walsingham Jr., a member of the Cardinal baseball organization for 29 years, until he resigned as a vice president last Oct. 5, is in Jewish Hospital where he underwent an abdominal operation yesterday. Dr. I. C. Middleman, Cardinal physician, who performed the surgery, said Walsingham would be released in about two weeks.

Cardinal Clean-Up Spot Goes To Ex-Cub

By Bob Broeg
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

WICHITA, Kan., April 10—Fred Hutchinson today turned to power at one position and experience at the other when he tentatively named Hank Sauer to start in left field and Alex Grammas at shortstop in the Cardinals' National League opener a week from this afternoon at Cincinnati.

Completing his likely lineup except for his pitcher—it probably will be Vinegar Bend Mizell or Harvey Haddix—the new Redbird manager picked Sauer over 1955 regular Rip Repulski and Rookie Jackie Brandt, and he chose incumbent Grammas at short ahead of youngsters Don Blasingame and Dick Schofield.

Hutchinson previously had named Bill Sarni as his No. 1 catcher and more recently had awarded Wally Moon first base after a spirited three-way battle. There never was much doubt about Red Schoendienst at second base, Ken Boyer at third and Stan Musial and Bill Virdon in the outfield.

"I might change my mind, but as of now I'd say this is it," said Hutchinson, shaving in a Pullman drawing room during a ride here from Oklahoma City, where yesterday's scheduled Cardinal-White Sox game was canceled because of raw, wet weather and a cutting wind.

Wichita Game Off.

Today's Cardinals' game against the White Sox here also was canceled, because of wet grounds. The clubs had arrived in a junior-grade snowstorm.

The physical sharpness of most of his players left Hutchinson undisturbed by the loss of two days, but with the cancellation here he said he would attempt to line up indoor training facilities at Denver. The Cardinals and White Sox are scheduled for a two-game stand in the Colorado city.

The 37-year-old Sauer, recently acquired from the Chicago Cubs in exchange for Pete Whisenant and about $10,000, hit only .211 last season and Grammas, 28, batted just .240 a year ago.

"But Hank has shown me he still can bruise the ball and Grammas is the steadiest of our three shortstops," Hutchinson said, adding:

"So we're going at shortstop with the best defensive man and in the outfield with the best offensive bet. Sauer still swings a more authoritative bat than either Repulski or Brandt for what we need—a clean-up hitter with punch behind Musial—and he's about Rip's equal defensively."

Need for Long-Ball Punch.

Hutchinson observed that he, of course, regarded the fleet, strong-armed Brandt as second only to Virdon with a glove among Redbird outfielders, but he emphasized the need for getting a long-ball hitter in the lineup. In addition, he mentioned a reluctance to put rookies on the spot in the excitement and pressure of opening a season.

"Experience is valuable and, besides, I've seen kids get hurt being rushed," he said. I don't know whether we'll go with this tentative lineup for a couple of days, weeks or a month, but at the start we'll have Sauer and Grammas, who've been through it before."

What about late-inning defensive protection in the outfield behind Sauer and at first base behind Moon, neither a standout glove man?

"If we've got a lead to protect late in the eighth or ninth inning, I wouldn't hesitate to put Brandt in the outfield and either Alston or (Joe) Cunningham at first base," Hutchinson said.

Yesterday's cancellation cost young bonus Righthander Lindy McDaniel a chance to perform before his Hollis (Okla.) neighbors, many of whom had journeyed to Oklahoma City. It also deprived Jackie Collum of a chance to sharpen faulty control and Barney Schultz of an opportunity to prove he should not be the next to be cut from a 14-man staff.

Reunion for Manager.

The trip into Wichita served as a nostalgic reunion for Hutchinson with Ray Dumont, president of the National Baseball Congress. Pitching for a Tacoma (Wash.) team, Hutchinson appeared here in the National semi-pro tournament in 1937 when he was only 17 years old.

"Those were the days when my father still had hopes I'd follow in the family tradition," the Redbird manager recalled, smiling.

Hutchinson's father is a doctor. So, too, are a brother and a brother-in-law. Still another brother-in-law is now studying medicine.

"And I've got another brother, John, who is a professor at Columbia University," said Hutchinson, who was the youngest of four children.

"John and I have two things in common. He played ball—even went to camp with the Browns as an infielder in 1933, I believe it was—and he also could tell Pop, 'No, thanks!'"

Herb Score's Cousins in Wrong League; Don Mueller Rates Lefty Ahead of Cleveland's 'Big Three'

NEW YORK, April 10 (AP)—Poor Herb Score. He won 16 games and struck out 245 as the American League "Rookie of the Year" with the Cleveland Indians last season, and all the time his "cousins" were in the other league.

The guys he calls "cousins" are the New York Giants, and he's been treating them like po' relations this spring. In 22 innings against a club figured to finish anywhere from third to sixth in the National League race, the 22-year-old fire-ballin' lefthander has permitted only three runs, 12 hits and 10 walks while fanning 21.

He's looked so good the Giants' Don Mueller, a pretty fair hitter, ranks him No. 1 on the Cleveland staff—ahead of Bob Lemon, Early Wynn and Mike Garcia. In fact, should they meet in the World Series, Mueller figures it'll take the Giants five games to win. They swept the tribe in four straight in 1954, but Mueller's conceding one victory to score this time.

Herb Fans Five.

Herb was at his usual best yesterday as Cleveland beat the Giants, 6-4. Mueller got to him for an infield single and Gail Harris followed with a home run—hit to the opposite field off a low outside fast ball—in the first inning, but then Score became almost untouchable. He walked only two and fanned five while giving only one more hit in his five innings—a smash to the mound that went for a single by Whitey Lockman.

Bob Feller mopped up for the Tribe and allowed four hits—one a two-run homer by Hank Thompson, who was purposely held back until Score departed. Giant Manager Bill Rigney figured Hank might further injure his stiff shoulder swinging at Score's fast one.

Cleveland got its licks in early, belting Al Worthington for six hits and five runs in the first three frames. Hoot Evers and Jim Hegan homered off the righthander.

Cold and rain checked the exhibition schedule to five games—and pitching dominated each one.

Ned Escaping Bullpen.

Veteran Ned Garver, trying to escape the bullpen, allowed only one hit and faced the 18-man minimum for his six innings as Detroit walloped New Orleans of the Southern Association, 10-0. Reno Bertoia, Italian-born youth headed for the minors until Detroit's second base problem became acute, triggered the attack with a grand-slam homer.

Robin Roberts was in complete charge as the Philadelphia Phils beat Boston's Red Sox 2-1. Robin, going nine innings for the first time this spring, tossed a six-hitter and didn't walk a man. The Boston run was unearned. Richie Ashburn, with three of the four hits allowed by Tom Brewer and Leo Kiely, won it with a two-run homer. Ted Williams went hitless in four tries against Roberts.

Milwaukee got eight scattered hits and two runs from Brooklyn Rookie Don Drysdale for six frames, then jumped on Dave Cole for four runs in the eighth and won, 8-4. Bob Buhl was solved for only three hits before being chased in the eighth. Bob Trowbridge cut off the Brook rally at one run, but was kayoed in the ninth when Randy Jackson homered. Johnny Logan homered off Drysdale, a 19-year-old righthander.

Cincinnati whipped Washington, 7-1, behind the four-hit pitching of Rookie Pat Scantlebury and Joe Black. Wally Post had two triples—scoring both times as Ted Kluszewski followed with a double and a sacrifice fly—and Frank Robinson homered for the Redlegs.

Crowe to Cincinnati.

Cincinnati also was involved in a trade, getting First-baseman George Crowe from Milwaukee in return for Outfielder Bob Hazle, who goes to Wichita, and an as-yet unnamed player.

Manager Birdie Tebbetts denied that the move was insurance against further injury to Kluszewski, the Reds' regular first sacker.

"We need pinch hitters," Tebbetts said. "Crowe was the best available. That he also plays first base is incidental. We tried to deal for Crowe a year ago."

Kluszewski has been rounding into shape after a hip injury sidelined him earlier in spring training. He went through a special 80-minute hitting drill with Wally Post yesterday.

Lumpe Gets Boost.

The once-crowded field in the running for the Yankees' shortstop berth is down to two players, says Manager Casey Stengel—Rookie Jerry Lumpe and Phil (Who else?) Rizzuto.

Stengel, naturally, regards Rizzuto as the one "I know I can go with. He finished last season for me and played the World Series. He seems to be better now than through the last two springs—no aches, no pains.

"Still, Lumpe has looked good. He does everything a shortstop's supposed to do. His hitting is as good as expected. And, what's more, he's a very determined young feller."

Thomas Hitting .378.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., April 10 (AP) — Outfielder Frank Thomas, anxious to make up for a poor season in 1955 with the Pittsburgh Pirates, is hitting at a .378 clip in the spring exhibition games.

Rush for Opening Day.

BEAUMONT, Tex., April 10 (AP) — Righthander Bob Rush will be the Chicago Cubs' opening day pitcher at Milwaukee next Tuesday, Manager Stan Hack announced yesterday.

Hack also said Warren Hacker will hurl against the Braves the following day.

Frank Smith Back to Reds At Waiver Price

Pitcher Frank Smith no longer is a member of the Cardinals. The pitcher who blazed to a 3-1 (for 39 innings) record last summer while Redbird brass glowered at his failure to deliver the badly-needed pitching relief he had been expected to provide, today was returned on waivers to Cincinnati, the club from which St. Louis obtained him in a costly deal in December, 1954.

The 28-year-old righthander cost the Cardinals Third Baseman Ray Jablonski and Righthand Pitcher Gerry Staley and a reported $50,000. In the waiver transaction, St. Louis received $10,000. The Redbirds are out $40,000, plus Jablonski and Staley all because of a sore arm.

Smith, winner of 32 games and loser of the same number in five years with the Reds, and who appeared in 50 games in each of two seasons there prior to his acquisition by the Cards, sat out most of the 1955 season in the Busch Stadium bullpen. This spring he said his arm did not bother him but he did not look like the pitcher who had a 2.67 ERA for 81 innings season before last.

299 Game for Krentz.

Tony Krentz came through with a 299 game, leaving the No. 4 pin standing on his last toss, and Gus Engelland rolled 735 total in the Metropolitan Classic Scratch League last night at Bowl-Mor Lanes. The Kutis five had top team scores of 1197 and 3319. Krentz had a 706, Ray Topolski 717, and Bob Dierkes 703. Krentz had a 729 in the B-M Junior Classic League.

$263,835 in Racing Tickets Uncashed In New York State

ALBANY, N. Y., April 10 (UP).

NEW YORK STATE took in more than $250,000 from absent-minded race track bettors in 1955.

President George M. Bragalini of the State Tax Commission said that state revenue from uncashed winning pari-mutuel tickets of the 1955 racing season at flat and harness tracks totaled $263,835.

Holders of the uncashed tickets had until March 31 to collect. The balance now goes into the state's general fund.

Bill Schock Captures Squash Racquets Meet

William Schock defeated Charles Houghton in the final round of the championship class of the annual state squash racquets tournament yesterday at the Racquet Club. The scores were 15-17, 16-13, 15-10, 15-10.

Schock defeated Oliver Langenberg, 15-6, 15-7, 11-15, 15-12 in the semifinals, while Houghton advanced on a default by Roger Campbell.

Other results:

Lane, Back at Desk, Concerned With 'Bad Things' About Cards

By Jack Rice

Frank Lane resumed his local public good works on behalf of the Cardinals today, under the title "Selling Baseball to the Community." This candidly is what Lane does, among other things, and it also is a title he has used before. The speech may have had a change of details handy, to suit the audience, but basically it had to be pure Lane. That, as he says about baseball, is entertainment.

The Ad Club was the latest to hear about "Selling Baseball" from Lane at a luncheon meeting at the Statler Hotel.

Said Lane:

"It will be a black eye on St. Louis if we don't draw about 25,000 people opening night." (Lane based that figure on the prospect of good weather for the opener with Milwaukee at Busch Stadium a week from Friday night.)

"If I was picking the opening-day lineup, (Don) Blasingame would be at shortstop." (Manager Fred Hutchinson, who was hired by and works for Lane, has announced that Alex Grammas will open the season at shortstop.)

"I do honestly think we have a very good chance for third place."

The Cardinals' general manager arrived at his desk in Busch Stadium yesterday, fresh from the midst of his athletes on the spring exhibition game circuit. He was of good cheer, as Cardinal performances warrant to date, and was enjoying his morning head of steam at one of baseball's stuffier rules. Lane is better, far better, than most executives at beating the stuffing out of such rules.

FRANK LANE

He was less than half way through the seven-day wait on waivers on Pitcher Frank Smith. He didn't have to change the rule on that waiting period. Cincinnati, which was Frank's playground before the Cardinals made their two-plus-cash-for-one deal a year ago last December, claimed the righthander today. Frank (Lane) said little about Frank (Smith) but made it plain he wanted to talk about Catcher Bill Sarni.

Sarni has been told by Lane that audible, visible will to win is needed. It is not good for a catcher to keep his yearning to himself. Fans can get bored that way, and think the catcher doesn't care much. Sarni never has been noisier. Or better, most people believe. Lane was tearing out an Associated Press story that labeled Sarni the National League's "most improved," spring-training version. Lane clipped it onto a magazine piece headed "The Catcher Is The Key."

Lane studied the title. "I told him, 'The catcher is the quarterback,'" said the general manager. He took pen in hand and wrote a note to Sarni under the article's title. Key, quarterback—be both.

Home Run—and Off Market.

He didn't dwell long upon the new Sarni. "I'm concerned about the bad things," said Lane. "The good things will take care of themselves during the season." The telephone rang, and Lane greeted another of the league's general managers by name, as enthusiastically as if they hadn't heard from one another for 24 hours. He hung up and said, "His guy hit a home run yesterday and he's off the market now. They hit a loud foul, they're off the market."

He half turned in his chair, and a picture of his daughter was in the side-line of vision. "She called me and told me she got me a shirt, she knew I'd like it. She was sorry it was too small, though, and she had to give it to Uncle Ray. Well, the thought was there." It's a family accustomed to good thoughts, and making the proper alterations. Tomorrow, Lane will speak at Washington University. Topic: "Baseball and the Community." Selling isn't always necessary.

Fears, St. Louis, Bowls 287 Game and 669 Series in ABC

Man-for-Man Affair.

IN this day of close man-for-man attention, a good soccer match becomes a series of 10 duels, repeated many times through the 90 minutes of action. In considering the chances of Simpkins and Kutis in their District championship final next Sunday, one falls immediately into an analysis of player for player.

This is especially true with these two teams because they have become such fierce perennial rivals that personalities become important. In a match between teams from different sections of the country this matter of individual traits and characteristics doesn't play so important a role.

Now, for example, fans here know that Bob Rooney, the Kutis center forward, lives for the day that he can outwit the Simpkins center halfback, Charley Colombo, and score the winning goal. Battlewise Colombo, meanwhile, trains just a bit harder so that he will be fit to bottle up Rooney and break up the Kutis attack.

Wilson vs. Keough.

HARRY KEOUGH, Kutis center half, knows that he meets the stiffest challenge of the season in trying to stop the scoring streak of Dean Wilson, powerful, young Simpkins center forward. In three District tournament games, Wilson has scored seven goals. And he has been playing under the handicap of a bruised big toe, and now a bruised ankle.

Harry Desmuke, who towers over most players on the field, comes face-to-face with one of the country's top forwards in Bill Looby. Harry, at left halfback, and John Traina, at right half for Simpkins, may hold the solution to the defense problem between them. Traina's special task is to nullify the attacking efforts of Ruben Mendoza, a job that few defenders have been able to complete. It is this pair of inside forwards, Looby and Mendoza, that raises the Kutis attack above the national average. Both have been selected on the United States Olympic squad and Traina fully deserved such honor, on the basis of performance in the final trial.

So it goes, up and down the line: Right Fullback Herman Wecke of Kutis never in the past has allowed slick Frank Wallace, Simpkins left wing, to get loose for his damaging crosses and shots. The question is: which will have the good day this time? John Galimberti, Simpkins right back, should know Butchie Cook's every move; they used to be teammates. There's material for a thrilling bout in each pairing-off of opponents. The rival goalies, Frank Borghi and Jim Krull (or Bob Burkard) don't get close enough to each other to draw a bead, but they'll be dueling, just the same, in their efforts to achieve shutouts. Each team has restricted opponents to one goal per game in the tournament.

Simpkins Won Twice in '55.

ABOUT a year ago, Simpkins twice defeated Kutis in important matches. Then, decisive goals were scored by Traina, Frank Wallace and Joe Spica. This time, Spica will be absent, because of injuries suffered in an auto accident, but in his place is Wilson, a much more prolific goal getter but not so smooth a playmaker. If Kutis has new strength it lies chiefly in better understanding between units; the personnel is much the same.

Tournament officials must be aware that this game, to be played Sunday at Fairground Park, deserves the best referee talent obtainable. Not that there is great danger of a breakdown in good behavior by the players, but there should be no question about the judgment, the energy, the courage or the efficiency of the arbiter.

U.S. Team Wins In Table Tennis

TOKYO, April 10 (AP)—Erwin Klein of Los Angeles and Mrs. Leah Neuberger of New York gained the final round of the world table tennis mixed doubles today with two sparkling upset victories.

They will meet Ann Haydon of England and Ivan Andreadis of Czechoslovakia Wednesday night for the Beydusek Cup, now held by the Hungarians.

The American team, made up of the two national singles champions, beat Japan's Tomi Okawa and Toshiaki Tanaka in the quarterfinals, 21-19, 21-16, 13-21, 21-4. They they won over Motoo Fujii and Yoshiko Tanaka, another Japanese team, 21-16, 15-21, 22-20, 21-18.

Toshiaki Tanaka and Ichiro Ogimura defeated fellow countrymen to gain the men's singles final. Tanaka is the present world titleholder. Ogimura won the crown in 1954.

Ohio State Baseball Team to Tour Japan

COLUMBUS, O., April 10 (UP)—The Ohio State baseball team will go to Japan this summer to play United States Service and Japanese university teams. The Buckeyes, defending Big Ten champions, will spend six weeks in Japan. They will leave the West Coast by airplane on June 15 and will return to this country Aug. 1.

The team will be the guests of the United States Army and will make its headquarters in Tokyo, but will travel throughout the Japanese islands to play service and university teams.

Illinois Star Hits 722, Leads In Singles

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

ROCHESTER, April 10 — Veteran Claude Fears, who rolled Sunday night with the Bowl-A Way Lanes team of East St. Louis, provided the scoring fireworks for 16 St. Louis tenpinners yesterday afternoon in the minor events of the fifty-third annual American Bowling Congress tournament.

Fears, who has two previous A.B.C. 1800s to his credit, made it three and almost became the fifteenth man in history to notch a 300 game in A.B.C. competition.

Claude opened his first singles game with a string of ten strikes, but then left the 3-10 "baby" split on his eleventh ball. He picked off the three pin and had to be content with a 287 game, second only to the 290 of Victor Giromini of Syracuse, N.Y., for the high single effort of the tournament.

However, Fears missed a good chance to challenge the new singles leader—Eli Panttila of DeKalb, Ill., who rolled 722—when he slipped to 169 in his second game before closing with 213 for a 669 series, second high for the day and good for a share of the prize money.

After opening with 624 Sunday night, Fears fell to 573 in the doubles, but then came back with his 669 series for an all-events total of 1866, a neat 207 plus average.

His doubles partner, Theodore Loman of East St. Louis, came in for his share of glory, too, Shooting with Fears in the singles, Loman rolled 656 on games of 214, 246 and 196.

Ron Buckles was another St. Louisan with tough luck. Paired with Sonny Fitter in the doubles, Buckles banged out 650 on games of 192, 236 and 222, but Fitter could only contribute 551 and the pair finished with 1201, far off the pace.

Panttila, 47, fired his 722 series on games of 253, 213 and 256 to displace Tony Sparando of Rego Park, N.Y., who had been leading with a 719 total since March 16

Other categories remained unchanged as Bill Lillard and Stan Gifford held down first place in the doubles with 1331 and Lillard led the all-events with 2018. The regular team standings remained unchanged with the Falstaff team of Chicago in first place with 3092.

Umpire Barlick Is in Hospital Suffering From Heart Condition

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 10 (AP)—Al Barlick, a National League umpire the last 16 years, may miss opening day April 17.

Barlick, 41, reportedly has been bothered by a heart condition and entered St. John's hospital last week.

Barlick had been umpiring exhibition games in Florida but returned last week after becoming ill.

Mrs. Barlick said tests on her husband should be completed today but she had no idea when he would leave the hospital.

A National League spokesman in Cincinnati said Barlick's condition is "regrettable" and that league president Warren Giles would not issue a statement on Barlick until receiving a full report from doctors.

High Voltage Wins; Four for Atkinson

NEW YORK, April 10 (UP)—High Voltage climaxed a successful afternoon for Wheatley Stable, Jockey Ted Atkinson and Trainer Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons when she scored a one-length triumph in yesterday's $6000 Prudery Handicap at Jamaica.

High Voltage sprinted from third at the last turn to give Atkinson, Wheatley and Fitzsimmons their third triumphs during the eight-race program. Supernatural won the third race and Bold Ruler captured the fourth to give the Wheatley-Atkinson-Fitzsimmons combine their other victories.

Atkinson also won with Le Beau Prince in the sixth.

$12,000 Booty in Head-to-Head Match, 22 Strikes in Succession Among Easter's Many Pin Thrills

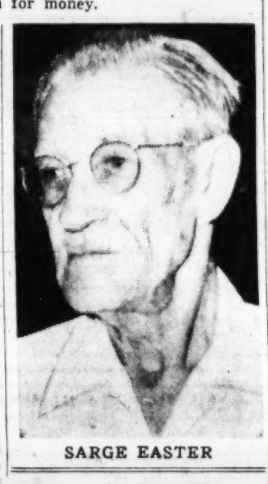

JAMESTOWN, N.Y., April 10 (AP)—Five years ago a well-heeled bowling hustler walked into a Detroit pin establishment seeking a "head-to-head" match for money.

Someone pointed to a leather-faced veteran who was throwing shadow balls down a pinless alley as he worked on a stubborn hook that was refusing to bend. The oldster relieved the visitor of a few dollars but the youngster remained unconvinced. The next day he returned to drop a larger bundle.

Two days later he popped into the place again, spotted the old gentleman and remarked:

"I'm going to bet you so much money you'll choke up. So let's go for a thousand dollars on each four-game block and bowl until one of us either goes broke or drops from exhaustion."

It was quite a challenge for a 67-year-old man, but Ebber Darnell (Sarge) Easter just said "Son, go get your ball and start throwing."

SARGE EASTER

$12,000 Richer.

Twelve blocks (48 games) later Sarge had a clean sweep on the score sheets and $12,000 in his pocket.

Today, at 72, the Sarge laughs, his greenish eyes twinkling: "I don't know if that is the richest head-on match in history but I'll bet it's the most money ever put up on the spur of the moment."

After 55 years of competition, America's oldest bigtime contestant who calls Burbank, Calif., home, will still shoot a match game with anyone.

"That's how I make my living," he explains. "You don't read much about it and few people know it, but bowling today is just like golf—has its own 'Gold Dust Trail' with most of the big names shunting around the country hitting the tournaments and rolling head-to-head when they get a chance."

The 150-pound Easter drives 70,000 miles annually and averages 10 games a day the year around.

Thirty years of Army life gave Sarge his nickname. His love for bowling is so deep-seated that years ago when his military tenure expired he refused to re-enlist within the time limit as a first sergeant because it would have prevented him from rolling in the American Bowling Congress tournament, the "world series" of the pin sport.

Re-Enlisted as Private.

"No sir, Ol' Sarge wasn't going to miss that A.B.C.," he grins. "I just went to the tournament, then re-enlisted as a private."

Sarge hammered out a 685 in the team event of the 1956 A.B.C., currently in progress at Rochester, moved to this Southwestern New York city for a crack at the $10,000 Tenpin Open Sweeps then traveled on—Cleveland, Detroit, Akron, Youngstown — wherever the tournament trail leads.

Sarge tossed 22 strikes in a row one night in St. Louis, rolling 280 and then 300, but his greatest thrill was teaming with Ed Lubanski to win the Bowling Proprietors Association of America doubles at Detroit in 1950.

"We were the record 'June and December' doubles team of all time—Lubanski was 22 and I was 67—but we won and later successfully defended against Connie Schwoegler and Andy Varipapa," Sarge rattled on.

"But my great thrill was having my judgment vindicated after selecting Lubanski, a young, strong fellow with just a straight ball when I could have had the pick of the name bowlers."

After more than half a century of competition, Sarge rates Don Carter of St. Louis, as the greatest bowler of all time and for the beginners he has a two-word lesson: "Be natural."

Dodgers Option Five.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., April 10 (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers today optioned five players to Fort Worth of the Texas League. They are Catchers Mike Napoli and Herb Olson, First Baseman Jim Gentile and Infielders Dick Gray and Jack Spears. All are in Vero Beach and will join their new club there.

Flyweight King Upset in A.A.U. Boxing Tourney

BOSTON, April 10 (AP)—Osee Groom, a durable Detroit heavyweight, with both power and ring skill, loomed as a top favorite today to capture a title as the sixty-eighth National A.A.U. boxing championships moved into the second day at the Boston Garden.

The big boy from Joe Louis' old hometown displayed a punishing attack to both the head and body and the ability to take a punch while stopping Abie Olds of Claveland in 1:40 of the third round last night.

Groom had much the better of a brisk exchange of punches in the opening round and then softened Olds with a jolting right under the heart in the second. Osee contmued shifting his attack between the head and body and the referee finally halted the action with Olds virtually helpless on the ropes.

The biggest upset of the trial rounds occurred in the opening bout when Albert Pell of New York City outpointed Heiji Shimabukuro of Hawaii, the only defending champion, in a 112-pound bout.

In a battle of southpaws, Pell outboxed Shimakuburo while staying away from the Hawaiian's vaunted power which accounted for three knockouts in four fights in the nationals last year.

Other outstanding battlers in the opening round included Dick Hall of Buffalo, N. Y.; Phil Moyer of Portland, Ore.; Charlie Branch of Philadelphia and Harry Smith of New York and the United States Air Force.

Hall, a sharpshooting southpaw, battered Gene Turley of Twin Falls, Idaho, in gaining a second round TKO in the 156-pound division. Moyer, in the same weight class, looked sharp in outpointing Jerry Wilson of Spokane, Wash.

Branch, National A.A.U. titlist two years ago, encountered little trouble in outpointing Fred Brooks of Cleveland to advance in the 112-pound class. Smith defeated Cleo Eloby of Spokane, Wash., in a feather-weight clash. Smith, national champion in 1954, is the Pan American feather titlist and also a two-time Golden Gloves winner.

Guy Le Conte, a 20-year-old machinist from Malden, Mass., and New England's chief hope for a championship, advanced with a loudly booed decision over Willie Joiner of Fairfield, Calif., in their 156-pound match. Le Conte's final round rally apparently earned him the verdict.

Moore Meets Bean.

RICHMOND, Calif., April 10 (UP)—Archie Moore swings into his fifth non-title bout since Rocky Marciano knocked him out last September when he meets Willie Bean of Los Angeles tonight in a 10-round contest at the local auditorium.

3 St. Louisans Eliminated in U.S. Handball

With defending titleholder Jimmy Jacobs of Los Angeles and 1954 champion Vic Hershkowitz of Brooklyn heading a field of eight waiting for Thursday's singles quarterfinals the United States Handball Association tournament switched to doubles competition today at the Y.M.H.A.-Y.W.H.A., Union and Enright.

Bob Brady of San Francisco, the 1953 singles victor, was forced to withdraw from the four-wall singles event yesterday. He suffered a triple fracture on the left-hand middle finger in a Sunday match. Brady had been forced out of last year's tourney because of a shoulder injury.

Sam Haber and Ken Schneider of Chicago, the defending champions, won their first round match, beating Jim Harp of Dallas and Dick Langdon of Minneapolis, 21-6, 21-11.

Three remaining St. Louis players were eliminated in last night's third-round singles. Harry Dreyfus, 100-time winner of various handball events, was beaten by fourth-seeded Paul Stobbe of Detroit, 21-11, 21-2. Eighth-seeded Alvis Grant of Dallas, one of the Southwest's leading players, scored a 21-14, 21-14 victory over Meyer Rudlin of the Y.M.H.A.

Dr. Art Stickle, former Ozark A.A.U. and Downtown "Y" titleholder, thrilled a packed gallery before bowing out to Hershkowitz, 21-18, 21-10. The St. Louis player ran his second-seeded opponent quite hard and managed to ace the Brooklyn star 15 times. , normally a hard and fast server, made about eight ace serves.

Venturi Says He Missed Help On Final Round

SAN FRANCISCO, April 10 (AP)—Ken Venturi, unhappy after losing out to Jackie Burke in the Masters Golf Tournament, says he's going to "work my fingers to the bone to beat those pros."

The 24-year-old San Francisco amateur said he was put at a disadvantage on the final round at Augusta, Ga., Sunday when "the officials suddenly made a switch and paried me with Sam Snead" instead of Byron Nelson, as scheduled.

"They said they made the change because they were afraid a controversey might develop," Venturi said. "Everybody knows Nelson and I are good friends. He guided and tutored me into a championship golfer."

Venturi led the tournament the first three days and appeared almost certain to win but Burke caught him on the last day by making up an eight-stroke deficit. Jackie had a final 71 for 289. Ken required 80 to wind up at 290.

"Burke was paired with Mike Souchak," Venturi told newsmen on his arrival home last night.

"They played in a twosome right in front of me and Souchak helped Burke choose his clubs for the various shots and also helped him read the greens. There's nothing wrong with that but it put me at a disadvantage."

In Augusta Sunday Venturi had said the pros had not tried to needle him into cracking. He added he "wasn't a bit nervous but just couldn't get the ball in the cup."

Here, however, Ken said he was bothered when officials prevented Harvie Ward, national amateur champion also from San Francisco, from accompanying him on the final two holes.

"Harvie came up to say something to me on the seventeenth tee," Venturi said, "and some of the officials shoved him away. It was very confusing. Snead . . . hardly spoke a word to me the whole 18 holes—never once said 'nice shot.'"

Venturi was also unhappy about his late starting time (2 p.m.) on the last three rounds of the four-round tournament.

"The wind had dried the greens to lightning fast texture," he explained. "Given a decent starting time, I would have been okay."

School Holiday for Dodger Open House At Jersey City Park

JERSEY CITY, N. J., April 10 (UP)—THE Brooklyn Dodgers have announced a free-of-charge "open house" at the Jersey City ball park on April 18, the day before they play the first of seven games there this season.

Mayor Bernard Berry has proclaimed an afternoon holiday for all school children who want to attend the workout, provided they bring a note from their parents granting permission.

The Dodgers will open on April 17 at Ebbetts Field in Brooklyn against the Phillies, but have an open date April 18.

Floyd Gets 23 Points, But Collegians Lose

DES MOINES, April 10 (AP)—Daryl Floyd, the nation's leading collegiate scorer, poured in 23 points in a losing battle here last night as the Harlem Globetrotters put on a last half spurt to defeat the College All-Stars 74-71.

The Globetrotters all but wiped out in the third quarter a 10-point lead Floyd and his teammates had built at the half and sewed up their seventh victory in 10 games against the Collegians in the final period.

Illinois Normal Wins.

NORMAL, Ill., April 10 (AP)—Leftfielder Wendell Good slammed out four hits to lead Illinois Normal to a 7-2 baseball victory over Lewis College. Lewis committed eight errors while Normal picked up 15 hits.

Belleville, Granite City and Edwardsville Win Loop Openers

By John J. Archibald

Neither rain nor wind nor sunless sky can stop the Southwestern Illinois Conference from its appointed games, and with a show-must-go-on spirit six members of the league pretended it was spring yesterday.

Only a few frostbitten noses were reported in the early casualty list, but the sore arm reports may start coming in today. Belleville, Granite City and Edwardsville were the first round winners.

It was a pair of three-hit pitching performances at Belleville, where the Maroons' Kent Weisenstein won out over Don Choate of East St. Louis, 1 to 0. Bill Diak scattered five Wood River safeties as the Warriors won, 4 to 0. There was considerably more basepath activity at Alton, where Edwardsville defeated the home team, 7 to 4.

Unearned Tally.

The only run of the Belleville-East St. Louis duel came in the second inning and it was unearned. With two out and nobody on, Belleville's Dick Daesch walked, then stole second. Bob Henderson's ground ball was bobbled by the first baseman and Daesch dashed in.

East St. Louis left 10 men on base in the seven-inning game, loading the sacks twice, but Weisenstein pitched out of trouble every time.

Coach Al Lewis's Granite City team was playing its tenth game of the young season, while Wood River was playing its first. The Warriors, who won eight of their nine practice contests, got an early jump on the less-trained Wood River and got three runs in the first two innings on just that many singles.

After that, however, Wood River settled down and played Granite City about even. Granite did add an insurance run in the seventh on a hit, two stolen bases and a sacrifice fly.

Drexel Harvey hurled for Wood River and struck out eight before getting into some difficulty in the sixth, when he was relieved by his basketball buddy, First Baseman Cliff Talley. He and Talley switched positions and Talley, with hardly any warm-up, got Granite's Ray Werths to fly out and end the inning.

Roger Smith of Wood River was the only batter to get two hits, both singles.

Six Runs in First.

Edwardsville plastered Alton with six runs in the first inning, and coasted from there. A single by Lonnie Scheibal, three walks, a triple by Bud Noll, two more walks, and another single by Scheibal accounted for the runs.

Roland Brunworth hurled for Edwardsville, allowing Alton six hits.

In a non-league game, Assumption topped Coyle, 4 to 3, when Mike Mulconnery of Assumption stole home with two out in the last of the eighth inning. Mulconnery had singled, stole second and gone to third on a wild pitch.

In a Midwestern Conference game, Madison defeated Dupo, 5 to 4.

Bert Barth struck out 11 and walked just two as Beaumont stopped St. Mary's, 8 to 1, in a non-league match. Bob Brand homered with two on for Beaumont.

Most Valuable

JACK PIRRIE

Basket Group Votes Pirrie Most Valuable

Jack Pirrie, Maplewood High's all-district center, has been further honored by being named the most valuable player in the St. Louis area by the St. Louis Basketball Officials Association.

Pirrie polled 187 points, the most ever received by one player in the 10 years the competition has been sponsored. He will receive a gold basketball, emblematic of the honor conferred upon him and his school will get the Carl O. (Toddy) Kamp trophy for one year.

The presentation will be made at the school tomorrow morning when Jim Jackson, the association's president will present the trophy to athletic director Fred Moseley and vice president Bob Schapp will award Pirrie with the miniature basketball.

The 6-5 Pirrie, who averaged 24.5 points, led the Leafs to their third straight Suburban League title and to the runner-up spot to champion Beaumont in the Class A tournament.

Trailing Pirrie in the officials' voting were George Burkel of Cleveland, 92; Bill O'Brien of Mercy 80, Tom Weathersby, Sumner and Don Sullivan, Beaumont, 67; John Jones, Wellston, 40; Wilbur Marsh, University City, 38; Les Hemmer, Hadley Tech, 28; Ken McDonald, Normandy 22 and Jerry Wolff, Webster Groves, 21.

Lou Lehman was the first winner in 1946 and Fred Kovar followed him a year later. Both represented Beaumont.

After that awards went to Don Zimmerman, Hancock; Dave Sisler, John Burroughs; Dan Finch, Kirkwood; Ron Guariglia, Normany; Lloyd Aubrey, DeAndreis and Carl Scharffenberger (tie in 1952); Jim Krebs, Webster Groves, Jack Mimlitz, C.B.C. and Wilfred (Sonny) Siebert, Bayless.

Clayton Meet Trials Set Back

Rain put a crimp in the time schedule for the preliminaries of Clayton High's annual track and field meet. George Stuber, meet director, announced this morning that today's trials would be postponed until tomorrow and Wednesday's preliminaries would be held Thursday. The finals will take place in the Clayton bowl Saturday afternoon.

Fifteen schools are expected to compete. University City, which scored 82 5-6 points a year ago, is the defending champion.

Tomorrow preliminaries will be held in the high hurdles, 100-yard dash, mile run, half-mile relay, 440-yard dash and shot put. Thursday's trials will be held in the low hurdles, 880, 220-yard dash, mile relay, discus and broad jump.

Prep Track

DuBourg High won its sixth straight dual track meet yesterday, defeating Southwest, 119½ to 75½, at Southwest. DuBourg won the senior division by only 10 points, 59½ to 49½, but took the junior division, 60 to 26.

Dan Burke of DuBourg was first in the senior 100 and 440, and second in the 220. Bill Jones of Southwest won the 220 and 120 low hurdles. Chuck O'Brien brought DuBourg 18 junior points with first in the 100, 200 and 440 and a tie for first in the high jump.

Ferguson defeated St. Charles, 105-99, in a dual meet. Bill Neel of Ferguson won the junior 220, 440 and broad jump and was second in the high jump and hurdles.

Douglass of Webster defeated Kinloch, 60-17. Nelson Crenshaw won the senior 100 and 220 for Douglass.

Bud Hobart won the 100 and 200-yard dashes, the shot put and discus and took second in the broad jump as Country Day routed Mercy, 100⅓ to 16⅔.

McKendree Triumphs.

McKendree College scored nine runs in the first three innings and went on to beat Illinois College, 13 to 2, in a baseball game at O'Fallon. Winning Pitcher Russ Fickbohm struck out nine and gave up four hits. Teammate Jerry Essington batted in four runs.

Burkel, Pirrie Make U.S. Prep All-Star Team

NEW YORK, April 10—Jack Pirrie of Maplewood High and George Burkel of Cleveland High in St. Louis were named to an All-America High School basketball team by Scholastic Magazine, it was announced here today. The St. Louis area athletes were the only two selected from Missouri.

Burkel is six-eight, but the tallest player on the squad of 30 is 6-9 Bjarne Jensen, a junior at Franklin High in Portland, Ore., who lead his team to the state championship.

Highest scorer on the squad is Kelly Coleman of Wayland, Ky., who averaged a phenomenal 46.8 points per game.

Al Attar (Durfee) Fall River, Mass.; Dennis Boone (Manual) Denver, Colo.; GEORGE BURKEL (CLEVELAND) ST. LOUIS, MO.; Kelly Coleman (Wayland) Ky.; Albert Ellison (Linden) Tenn.; Nolen Gentry (West) Rockford, Ill.; Earl Irvine (Lincoln) Seattle, Wash.; Tony Jackson (Jefferson) Brooklyn, N. Y.; Bjarne Jensen (Franklin) Portland, Ore.; Ron Johnson (New Prague) Minn.; Art Lambiotte (Warwick) Hilton Village, Va.; Fred Lacour (St. Ignatius) San Francisco; Jerry Lucas (Middletown) Ohio; Walt Mangham, New Castle) Pa.; Douglas Moe (Erasmus) Brooklyn, N. Bears, Mizzou Play Tomorrow

Washington University's return baseball game with Missouri, scheduled for this afternoon at Columbia, Mo., was postponed until tomorrow afternoon because of inclement weather.

Thomson Will Drive St. Louis Car in '500'

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 10 (UP) — Speedway veterans Johnny Thomson and Walt Faulkner, fourth and fifth, respectively, in last year's "500," were entered today for the Memorial day auto race.

Thomson, Springfield, Mass., will drive a new roadster for Pete Schmidt, St. Louis, Mo. Schmidt also nominated another car, with a pilot still to be selected.

Faulkner, the pint-size Long Beach (Calif.) speed merchant, will drive the same car he had last year. It is owned by Fred Sommer, Indianapolis.

Forty-one racers now are in the field, and speedway officials expected final entries to hit 55 or better by April 15.

Bills' Game Postponed.

JONESBORO Ark., April 10—The St. Louis University-Arkansas State College baseball game here yesterday afternoon was called at the end of an inning and a half because of rain. At the time, the Billikens were leading 2-0.

The Bills came up with two runs in the second on a single by Harold Alcon and the aid of two A-state errors.

The teams meet in St. Louis on May 1.

Calhoun Beats LaBua for His 20th Straight

NEW YORK, April 10 (AP)—Undefeated Herman (Rory) Calhoun today served notice on the middleweight contenders that he is ready to move against fast company and Manager Frank Bachman singled out France's Charley Humez as the next target.

"We're going to try and get Humez for that open May 25 Madison Square Garden date," said Bachman after his 21-year-old Tiger from White Plains, N.Y., ripped sturdy Jackie Labua to pieces at St. Nicholas Arena last night.

A solidly built customer, with muscular arms and strong legs, Rory racked up his twentieth consecutive victory with his unanimous decision over Labua in the telecast 10-rounder. Calhoun dropped the rugged Valley Stream, N.Y., 23-year-old with a right in the fourth, staggered him several other times and cut him over both eyes.

The knockdown in the fourth was of the flash variety. Jackie nailed repeatedly by right crosses, was shaken by an overhand right and his gloves touched the floor. He leaped up quickly but Referee Mark Conn gave him the mandatory eight count.

It was the fourth straight defeat for Jackie, but his three previous losses to Gil Turner (twice) and Johnny Sullivan were close bouts. His record now is 25-10.

Calhoun has scored 10 knockouts, six of them in his last eight fights. The youngster was cut slightly over the left eye and was nicked on the right eyelid.

Referee Conn (7-3) and Judge Harold Barnes (8-2) had Calhoun a big winner. Judge Joe Vaccarella, the mayor of Mt. Vernon, N.Y., saw it much closer. He called it even in rounds with Calhoun the winner on the auxiliary point system, 8-5. The AP card had Calhoun far in front, 8-2.

Nashua, Assigned 128 Pounds, Doubtful 'Excelsior' Starter

NEW YORK, April 10 (UP)—Nashua was assigned high weight of 128 pounds for Saturday's Excelsior Handicap, but it was extremely doubtful that the millionaire horse would start in the Jamaica race.

Trainer Jim Fitzsimmons had planned to give Nashua a workout Sunday but had to call off the exercise move when Nashua's home track at aqueduct was blanketed with three inches of snow.

Since Nashua's training was thrown off schedule Fitzsimmons said he probably would reserve him for the Grey Lag handicap May 7.

Nance's Lad, Fisherman and Jet Action were closest to Nashua at the weights at 122 pounds while Joe Jones received 119, find 116, Switch On 115 and High Voltage 112.

A total of 32 horses were weighted by racing secretary Jimmy Kilroe, scaling down to the low of 98 pounds given Peter Parent and Shooting Bull.

Ken McGregor Applies For Reinstatement to Amateur Net Ranks

ADELAIDE, Australia, April 10 (UP)—Ken McGregor, a Davis Cup player for this country before he turned professional in 1953, has applied to the South Australian Lawn Tennis Council for reinstatement as an amateur, it was learned yesterday.

If his request is approved, McGregor could not play in Davis Cup competition but could play in many Australian amateur tournaments.

Auto Racer Dies.

Mosconi Has 7-0 Mark In Cue Title Tourney

KINGSTON, N.C., April 10 (AP)—The first round of the world championship pocket billiard tournament ended here last night with Willie Mosconi of Philadelphia in a commanding 7-0 lead.

Mosconi, the current world champ, wound up the first end of the double round robin by defeating John Fitzpatrick of Goldsboro, N.C., 150-109. The game went 11 innings, with Mosconi having a high run of 55, Fitzpatrick 32.

Fitzpatrick, Irving Crane of Rochester, N.Y., and James Moore of Albequerque, N.M., are tied for second place in the tournament with identical 4-3 records.

Crane defeated Moore 150-131. The New Yorker turned in high runs of 47 and 45 in a 16-inning game that saw considerable safety play. Moore had a high run of 38.

U.S. DIPLOMATS GET PITTANCE FOR ENTERTAINMENT

American officials having a chance to talk informally to the delegates could be extremely helpful. Such a party for 750 to 1000 guests could cost from $4000 to $5000 or at one whack a third of the $15,000 allowed the Ambassador personally out of the $21,900.

Political ambassadors are sometimes able and conscientious men who take their jobs seriously. But again they are rich playboys who make campaign contributions and are paid off with ambassadorial assignments. They do the partying and they love that title "Mr. Ambassador" but the hard work falls on the professionals on their staff.

Mrs. Luce's Expenses.

In Rome Ambassador Clare Boothe Luce gets this year a representation allowance of $5900 out of a total of $17,900 for all American diplomatic officers in Italy. Here again the amount allowed is too small. To run the embassy and to entertain is costing her from $50,000 to $60,000 a year out of her own income. It happens that she can well afford it. But a career officer, whose salary as Ambassador is $25,000 before taxes, would obviously have to refuse such a post if it were offered to him. American Ambassador Winthrop W. Aldrich in London is reported to be spending from $125,000 to $150,000 of his own money each year.

An interesting footnote is that nothing can be charged off for entertaining visiting Americans and one of the burdens is junketing Congressmen. More often than not they are reasonable men on a serious mission. But again it is the free loader who demands all kinds of hospitality even though this same free loader may have put demagogic words into the record about the whisky allowance and the martini circuit for the benefit of the folks back home in the course of voting to cut back the representation allowance.

The State Department has long been timid about asking for appropriations for this purpose and the Bureau of the Budget has customarily pared the request still further. Last year the department asked for $900,000 and Congress finally appropriated $620,000.

Should Be $3,000,000.

The $1,000,000 requested for the coming fiscal year is considerably less than half of what officials with expert knowledge consider necessary. The amount should not be less than $3,000,000 for the whole world. With that amount 10 Ambassadors in top posts would get $20,000 each, 10 would get $15,000 and 10 $10,000, with $7500 a year for all others. A fair share would go to No. 2 men and consuls would be adequately compensated for the entertainment chore. They would, of course, be required to show how the money was spent and who was entertained.

What galls Americans paying out of their own pocket to do an essential job is that countries maintained by American dollar aid have diplomatic missions around the world that spend lavishly. In one capital visited by this reporter last year the American Ambassador was using an official limousine of 1931 vintage and somewhat uncertain habits while the ambassador of a power supported entirely by dollar aid appropriated by Congress rolled up in a 1955 Cadillac. The Ambassador was not complaining, mind you, but he did think the contrast was a little pointed.

In one post a career Ambassador gave notoriously shoddy parties. His wife would announce at the dinner table that all they could afford was this simple fare. This may not seem important here at home. But particularly in the Far East, where prestige and the outward symbols of position count for so much, it is a serious matter quite apart from the punishment it inflicts on individuals.

If we are really to play a part in the power struggle, if we, as we like to tell ourselves we are, the richest and the most powerful nation in the world, then we must put aside these mean reservations. We must recognize that we are grown up and we must act like grownups. The time has long since been overdue when we must put trust and confidence in the men and women who represent us overseas.

EUROPE CONVINCED U. S. HAS LOST VISION IN POLICY

chiefly a more favorable response to his idea of trying to escape from the Geneva deadlock by giving priority to negotiations for reduction of armaments.

This was criticized as coming close to the policy of the Soviet Union, which sought to put security agreements ahead of German unity.

West Germany officially appears a more contented ally. The Germans consider their federal republic was created by the United States—which, however, errs in apparently considering it more than just a provisional state pending an all-German state. Yet Germans believe the United States is the only power that may one day persuade Moscow to accept this all-German state. Privately, many Germans agree with the view that United States policy is too static, especially as regards Germany.

Spain Looks, Too.

In Spain, too, many look to the United States to help them toward a new kind of state, one that would succeed the Franco regime. This seems to be a plea for United States interference in the internal affairs of a European state. Elsewhere in Europe the belief prevails that there has been too much of such interference. Thus there are numerous cross-currents in Europe, so that the United States could scarcely please everybody, whatever its policy.

From the remarkably similar criticisms of United States foreign policy there emerge suggestions for improvement.

Many critics replied to the question: How could United States policy be improved? There was no great diversity of replies except in emphasis.

The principal proposals were:

1. While the general lines of policy laid down in the late 1940s are sound, there have been faults, delays and confusion in their application. There was agreement that the United States should direct its attention more to a kind of economic warfare in which the Soviet Union is considered to have taken the initiative.

Just as the United States shifted its emphasis from Marshall plan aid to defense aid after 1950, it should now shift back again to economic aid in the so-called uncommitted areas where Soviet influence penetrates.

2. To do this effectively some suggest that perhaps Washington needs an independent agency for foreign aid, so that this function will not get tangled up between the State Department and the Treasury.

3. Need for greater flexibility in foreign policy generally. For this some suggested a return to secret diplomacy, since publicly taken positions tend to become non-negotiable.

4. Greater assurance of continuity of policy—of policies not subject to change with the election returns—was urged. The suggestion was that the world ought to be sure that there would be as much American thinking about foreign policy in 1957 as in 1947, when major decisions were boldly taken.

5. It was suggested that the United States would do well not to expect gratitude from Allies and other countries for aid regarded as being granted primarily in the interests of the United States. Advanced European nations would prefer to get dollars through trade if the United States would lower some of its bars. To remind them that they are aided injures their dignity, especially since they believe the need for aid is partly a result of United States protectionist policies.

In the North Atlantic Council, wisdom is not necessarily in exact proportion to power or wealth.

In this council, the United States has occasionally taken its Allies into its confidence and the council has discussed policies not only in Europe but in the Middle and Far East. It is thus a community of power and of intelligence. Some Europeans believe the most important cure for the United States foreign policy errors would be more frequent and more thorough consultation in this council on policy in all parts of the world.

TAX DEDUCTION PLAN FOR SMALL POLITICAL GIFTS

month but they have no hope, even with the help of the unions, of overtaking the richly endowed Republican National Committee.

Unions' Slow Start.

Unions incidentally have been so preoccupied with the AFL-CIO merger they have been slow to get their usual political activities underway. A new committee for political education is about to get off the ground now.

The proposal is well-timed, coming as it does on the heels of the Senate attack on the natural gas lobby for "improper and possibly illegal" campaign gifts. Activities of two lawyers for the Superior Oil Co. were condemned as "irresponsibility run riot."

Proposals for cleaner elections are already on the calendar as a result of the gas lobby disclosures. It has not yet been decided whether to attach the new $10 tax credit plan to one of these election bills or whether to make it an entirely separate piece of legislation.

DEEP CUTS INTO BLUE-CHIP LIST IN STOCK BREAK

Middle East News, Tax Money Raising Cited in Very Broad Market —3-Billion-Dollar Drop

NEW YORK, April 10 (AP)—Steep losses running to around five points at the outside were registered today in a generally lower stock market.

The decline came as events in the Middle East took a grave turn and while selling to raise cash for income tax payments became necessary.

Blue chip stocks in the high price brackets suffered the most, but all sections of the market except aircrafts were under fire.

There was a widespread reluctance of stockholders to part with their shares, however, and business came to one of the lowest totals in a month.

Liquidation was widespread and 794 issues declined and only 190 advanced out of the 1231 issues traded. The total traded was the greatest since the third day of the market break last September of news of the President's heart attack.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks lost $2.60 at $188, the greatest decline in six months. The fall in the average indicated a loss of around three billion dollars in the quoted value of all securities listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

(Dow-Jones average of 30 industrial stocks suffered their widest break in six months dropping 8.48 points to 510.04 at the close. The 20 rails lost 2.36 points at 168.54 and the 15 utilities slipped .39 of a point to 66.68).

The industrial component of the average was off $4.70, rails were down $2, and utilities fell back 30 cents.

The lower prices brought out much less activity than in recent days as holders appeared reluctant to part with their stocks. Business amounted to an aggregate 2,590,000 shares for the day as compared with 2,760,000 shares traded yesterday when there was a moderate fall.

Aircrafts Alone Rise.

Aircrafts were alone on the higher side with comfortable gains. Lockheed and General Dynamics were higher on news of a new Air Force contract for atomic warplanes.

Everything else was down, especially the chemicals. Also lower were the oils, rails, steels, motors, non-ferrous metals, electronics issues, airlines, and utilities.

Brokers cited concern over the Middle East situation and selling to raise cash for tax payments as two prime reasons for the decline.

Heavier losers included Union Carbide, du Pont, Allied Chemical, Inland Steel, Alcoa, Reynolds Metals, Santa Fe Railroad, Union Pacific, Texas Co., Socony-Mobil, and Johns-Manville.

Lukens Steel was ahead between 2 and 3 points at one time after directors declared the usual cash dividend plus a higher extra. However, the stock soon backed down from its peak.

Four Factors in Fall.

Selling was generally credited in Wall Street to four factors. Foremost was the grave Middle East situation. In the past, sudden and unexpected international political developments have had the power to send the stock market tumbling. There is a fear in Wall Street that this could happen again.

Another factor is the investor's need for cash to pay income taxes. Certainly there has been a lot of profits made in the stock market, and Uncle Sam wants his cut. In addition, New York State income taxes are due at the end of this week.

For some days there has been a nagging belief in Wall Street that the Federal Reserve might raise the discount rate as another move against inflationary forces. The rate at which the central bank lends to commercial banks now is 2½ per cent, less than half that of the Bank of England. A rise would tend to make all money more expensive and thus choke off speculation or marginal business enterprise.

The final factor, and posisbly the principal one, is that the market has been making extraordinarily strong gains for many weeks. In the past, sustained advances eventually have been ended by corrections that retraced one-third or two-thirds of the original rise. Wall Street knows it could happen again, and such a state of mind generates caution.

MONEY COSTS U.S. VIRTUAL DISCOUNT RATE

THE UNITED STATES TREASURY announced that its short term borrowing costs went up one-tenth of a point last week and now rests barely under the Federal Reserve discount rate.

The latest issue of 91-day Treasury bills, dated April 12, sold at discounts equivalent to 2.497 per cent interest, only a hair under the discount rate of 2.5 per cent.

This returned the bill rate to abnormally high levels it hit in mid-January, when a weekly bill issue was sold Jan. 12 at discounts equivalent to 2.596 per cent interest.

The proximity of the bill rate to the Federal Reserve discount rate—the interest rate at which reserve banks lend to member banks—gave weight to rumors that the Reserve Board might take action to boost the discount rate again. The present level of 2.5 per cent is the highest in two decades.

Normally the discount rate, which is a powerful factor influencing all short term borrowing costs, is well above the Treasury bill rate.

A high rate for Treasury bills indicates tightness in the money market, and often is regarded as reflecting the rise of inflationary pressures on the money supply.

Philip Morris Inc. President O. Parker McComas told the annual stockholders meeting that "although final figures are not yet available, we anticipate our first quarter sales will be approximately $72,000,000 and our earnings per share of common stock outstanding 77 cents as against $57,000,000 and 55 cents for the first quarter of 1955."

Paul W. Johnston, president of the Erie Railroad, reported to the annual shareholders' meeting that the railroad is in good financial and physical condition and that earnings should exceed slightly last year's net income of $2.97 per common share. Johnston estimated that net income for the first quarter should be about 64 cents a share, compared with 54 cents in the like period last year. Johnston noted that higher freight rates to offset new costs did not become effective until March 7. The higher rates, he said, should produce about $8,500,000 additional revenue on a full year's basis but about $7,000,000 for the remaining months of this year.

Scullin Steel Co. stockholders voted to split the common stock two shares of $1 par value stock for each share of no par value stock and to increase the authorized issue to 1,000,000 shares.

Shareholders were told E. I. duPont de Nemours, Inc., expects to increase in construction expenditures to as much as $170,000,000 this year. Last year it was $120,000,000 Crawford A. Greenewalt, duPont president, estimated duPont first quarter net sales at about $459,000,000—approximately 3 per cent less than the figure for the like period last year. Greenewalt said earnings for the initial quarter of 1956 were not yet available, but are expected to be slightly below the first three months of last year because of price reductions recently announced for some duPont textile fibers. In the first quarter of 1955, duPont reported after-tax earnings of $93,736,360, equal to $2 a common share.

DEMAND AT LONDON

LONDON, April 10 (AP)—Steady investment demand for British government bonds helped the London Stock Market make quiet progress today despite the overnight setback on Wall Street.

Early caution was also strengthened by government warnings of determination to beat inflation.

GRAIN PRICES BOUNCE ABOUT ERRATICALLY

Sharp Sell-Off in All Pits, Then Rally, Close Mixed.

CHICAGO, April 10 (AP)—Grains bounced about erratically in a nervous, active market on the Board of Trade today.

Prices sold off sharply in all pits during the morning. Then a rally started in old crop wheat, spreading to other cereals. Wheat, corn and old crop soybeans came back above the previous close.

May wheat was the strongest contract. Buying followed news the agriculture department had run out of soft red wheat on the Atlantic coast and was halting sales of this variety.

Weakest contracts were new crop soybeans. Selling came from those who felt these deliveries were priced too high in view of the possibility of a big crop this year.

U.S. TREASURY ISSUES SHOW SLIGHT INCREASES

NEW YORK, April 10 (AP)—The bond market was generally steady and quiet today with some rails registering gains in late trading.

The demand for U.S. Treasury issues was just strong enough to support a slight increase over yesterday's closing prices. Long term and intermediate bonds rose about 2-32 early in the day and maintained this position through later trading.

Convertibles were generally lower, following the pace of their common stock counterparts.

The market for foreign dollar issues was quiet. In limited trading German 5½s and Chilean 3s showed some strength.

LINCOLN ENGINEERING FIRM IN MERGER DEAL

Acquisition by Ohio Concern in $5,000,000 Transaction Proposed.

Lincoln Engineering Co., 4010 Goodfellow boulevard will be acquired by McNeil Machine & Engineering Co. of Akron, O., if a merger agreement is approved by stockholders of each concern, it was announced today. The amount involved in purchase and exchange of Lincoln stock is estimated to be the equivalent of $5,000,000.

Lincoln, which manufactures automative and industrial lubricating equipment, will continue to operate on the same basis and with the same management if the merger is approved, Foster Holmes, executive vice president of the company, said.

He said the company would become a division of the McNeil concern, which makes presses for molding and curing automobile tires and tubes and other rubber products.

McNeil yesterday completed the purchase of 47,654 shares of Lincoln common stock, at a par value of $40 a share, Holmes said. The remaining 74,946 common shares would be exchanged for new shares of McNeil preferred, under the proposed merger plan, he said.

The McNeil firm is asking its stockholders for authority to issue 150,000 shares of preferred, of which only 74,946 shares would be actually issued at this time, to be used in the merger, Holmes added.

Stockholders of Lincoln, which has about 1000 employes, are to vote on the plan April 24, he said, and McNeil stockholders are to meet the following day.

stock is owned by employes of the company. The reason for the merger, he said, is to provide greater diversification of products for the two companies.

CATHOLIC EDUCATOR INDORSES $1.30 LEVY

Msgr. Hoflich Says 89-Cent Rate Is Simply Not Enough.

The Rt. Rev. James E. Hoflich, superintendent of the parish schools of the archdiocese of St. Louis, today indorsed the $1.30 school tax levy which will be submitted to the voters Thursday.

"The 89 cents tax rate permitted by the state constitution is simply not enough to run an accredited school system," Msgr. Hoflich said. "The morale of our entire community would be lowered if we placed our public schools in jeopardy because of lack of funds."

M. E. Wiethaupt, secretary-treasurer of the Board of Education, said last night in the first of three special telecasts on KETC that the failure of the State of Missouri to finance fully the State Foundation Plan for aid to schools was one of the principal reasons a 15-cent increase in local tax rates was necessary.

Wiethaupt said the St. Louis school system is now receiving about $1,000,000 less a year than it would have received if the State Foundation Plan were fully financed. Estimates from the state comptroller indicate that state funds will not exceed 86 per cent of the total needed for the next two years, Wiethaupt said.

William Kottmeyer, assistant superintendent of instruction, will appear on KETC tonight at 10 o'clock to discuss the need for reducing class size. The TV series will conclude tomorrow night with a panel discussion by Superintendent of Instruction Philip J. Hickey and Board of Education members Mrs. Edward M. Harrington and H. Lee Bruns.

An hour-long parade which will include about 1200 students and 10 marching bands from St. Louis public high schools, in support of the proposed levy, has been postponed until 11:30 a.m. tomorrow because of rain. The parade was originally scheduled for today.

The parade will assemble at Washington avenue and Thirteenth street, march east in Washington to Sixth street, south in Sixth to Locust, and west in Locust to Fourteenth street.

A number of "Little Red Schoolhouse" booths, to distribute information on the need for the new tax levy and sample ballots, will be manned this week by members of the League of Women Voters.

The booth at Eighth and Locust streets will be open from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. today and tomorrow, and booths in northside Sears-Roebuck and Garland's, Hampton Village, from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. tomorrow and Thursday.

Because of the many changes in Wards 5, 12 and 23, a League spokesman suggested that voters living in those wards phone the League office, FOrest 7-7166, to find out the addresses of their polling places.

DID EISENHOWER GET MIDDLE EAST NOTE FROM EDEN?

State Department., But it seems hard to believe that even the State Department could lose track of an extremely important message on a major international crisis from the British Prime Minister, in which the Prime Minister himself laid heavy emphasis on the hour-by-hour urgency of the crisis.

The only other conceivable explanation is that the message from Eden was not transmitted to the President at all, or transmitted in such a way that its significance was wholly obscured. This seems the most likely explanation. It is also the most disturbing.

Even before the President's heart attack, there was a strong tendency to go to great lengths to spare him unnecessary worry. Since the attack, the tendency has been greatly strengthened. This is natural enough and even laudable within limits. But the limits are surely passed when such a message as Eden's is either concealed from the President, or its meaning muffled. The President himself, who has privately complained on occasion of his subordinates' tendency to over-protect him, is certainly aware that a Chief Executive of the United States cannot function properly if he is wrapped in yards of cotton batting.

NOVELTY COMPANY'S TRUCK STOLEN WITH $400 IN SAFE

A service truck of the Acme Novelty Co., 4545 Delmar boulevard, was stolen yesterday in the 4400 block of St. Louis avenue where the driver had parked it to make a service call, police reported.

They said the truck contained $400 in a safe, about 200 phonograph records and 228 cartons of cigarettes. Driver was Guy Jackson, who said he parked for a short time and when he returned found that the truck was missing.

Eyeful with a Hoodful

(It's Buick's Big-Powered CENTURY!)

Can't you see heads swing as you come sporting past in Buick's bright new colors?

Can't you picture yourself splitting the breeze with that V-Pattern prow as you point for the place where the blue sky meets the mountains?

You float through traffic tangles like a prima ballerina on tiptoe.

And through it all, not once does your 1956 Buick CENTURY draw deep breath.

For here you own the enormous reserve power of the mightiest and most magnificent V8 engine Buick ever built–322 cubic inches of steel sinew and silken silence–with all the vitality of a 9.5 to 1 compression.

And here you command the matchless vigor of Variable Pitch Dynaflow* – the airways' gift to the highways.

In all your normal driving it has the take-off of a Texas hare, and new gas savings besides.

But for climbing or passing, you simply rest the pedal on the floor and you feel a thrill-packed thrust that lets you know how a pilot feels when he switches the pitch for performance.

It's a dandy, it's a dazzler, it's a jaunty package of joy. It's a parcel of pleasure that you must open up if you aim to understand Spring.

So why not do same, soon? We're warming up such a new Buick for you, and we promise the hottest performance yet.

*New Advanced Variable Pitch Dynaflow is the only Dynaflow Buick builds today. It is standard on Roadmaster, Super and Century – optional at modest extra cost on the Special.

MISSILES TO OUTDO NUCLEAR BOMBERS

Gen. Phillips Says They Will Reverse Supremacy of Planes.

Guided missiles are such an effective defense against attacking aircraft that they may be expected to reverse the offensive supremacy of the nuclear bomber within 10 years, Brig. Gen. Thomas R. Phillips, U.S.A. (ret.), military analyst of the Post-Dispatch, said here last night

Gen. Phillips told the McDonnell Aircraft Management Club that the last 10 years had been "more revolutionary" in weapons and warfare than the entire period, embracing hundreds of years, since the invention of gunpowder. He spoke at Crystal Lake Country Club.

Only a few years ago, Gen. Phillips said, there appeared to be no defense against bombers carrying nuclear weapons. Bombing speeds and altitudes increased so rapidly that conventional antiaircraft guns were left behind, and radar seemed to be moving backward, by comparison.

Answer Is Found.

"The scientists were turned to," the speaker continued. "Was there no defense? These miracle men and the technicians and engineers have come up with the answer: guided antiaircraft missiles of various types and ranges, all tied together with radar and computers."

Gen. Phillips told of having observed demonstrations of the SAGE (Semi-Automatic Ground Environment) computer and of the Army's Missile Master, designed to control Nike batteries. He described the Navy's recent display of its Terrier missile south of Cuba.

Terming these and other developments as "impressive beyond belief," Gen. Phillips said the new defense weapons would enable the Navy to disperse its task forces over a wider area and thus make it impossible for a single nuclear bomb to destroy a large number of ships.

"The United States Navy may be able to live in the Mediterranean, something that neither it nor the British Navy could do in World War II," he said.

Defense of Cities.

Ground defense against attacking aircraft is more difficult because of the enormous area to be defended, Gen. Phillips told the audience of about 200 persons, but guided missiles can be ranked up in formidable array around major cities and vital installations.

"For critical areas, a complete defense system reaching out hundreds of miles with piloted interceptors on the perimeter, an inner ring of Bomarc and Talos, or Nike B or Nike II, and a last ditch defense of the new short-range Army Hawk rocket, which will replace the skyscraper gun, should provide almost impregnable defense against any known or projected bombers, piloted or uninhabited."

Gen. Phillips said the fact that defensive missiles might make both manned and unmanned bombers obsolete in 10 years had focussed attention on the ballistic missile as the possible offensive answer. Such missiles, he said, have such terrific speed that they cannot be intercepted by any known defense.

Public 'Oversold.'

He doubted, however, that ballistic missiles would have satisfactory accuracy in the next decade. He said some of the technical problems might prove insoluble, and expressed his own conviction that the public might have been "oversold" on these huge and relatively inflexible weapons of the future.

Gen. Phillips said he thought the United States would get more for its money if it spent about one fourth what it now spends on long-range ballistic missiles in research to find ways to make aircraft invisible to radar and infra-red rays.

He congratulated McDonnell Aaircraft Corp. on the part it is playing in the manufacture of guided missiles. The company announced last fall that it had nine Navy and Air Force contracts for missiles, with a total backlog of orders amounting to $15,000,000.

Gen. Phillips was introduced by Kendall Perkins, vice president in charge of aircraft engineering.

Its power packin' punch put it No.1 in V-8 sales

And now Ford's new 225-h.p. engine gives you even hotter performance!

Today's biggest trend in automobiles is to the V-8 engine. That's because today's car buyer demands performance. And latest sales figures show that the Ford V-8 with its power-packin' punch is the largest-selling eight in the world! Official figures for 1955 show that 346,373 more people bought Ford V-8's than bought the two other low-priced eights combined!

But now Ford is setting an even hotter V-8 pace by making available the biggest engine ever offered in the low-price field. It's the Thunderbird Special V-8—and you can order it now in Fairlane and Station Wagon models. This engine has a displacement of 312 cubic inches and delivers 225 horsepower. It whisks you from "whoa" to GO as you've never gone before!

And Ford gives you that wonderfully long, low look of the Thunderbird in all of its '56 models. You get new Lifeguard Design, also, to help protect you in case of accident. Test Drive this great new '56 Ford . . . today!

Red Expert Says Capitalism Will Ride Out Economic Crises

Switches Back to Theory He Was Forced to Abandon When Stalin Was in Control.

MOSCOW, April 10 (AP)—Eugene S. Varga is saying again that the capitalist world will weather its future economic crises.

The Hungarian-born Soviet economist revives in the current issue of the magazine Kommunist a line of reasoning he was forced by Joseph Stalin's regime to abandon in 1948.

The Stalin theory was that the capitalist world was headed for immediate and violent collapse. Varga fell out of grace for declaring in his book "Basic Questions of the Economics and Politics of Imperialism" that, partly due to their armaments program, capitalist countries had succeeded in putting off a disastrous economic crisis indefinitely.

This statement was criticized severely by the economic institute of the Academy of Sciences and other top theoretical organs for what they called its "bourgeois reformist character." So Varga recanted and rewrote the book in accordance with a Stalin work then accepted as authoritative, "Economic Problems of Socialism in the U.S.S.R."

"The capitalist economy," Varga said in his revised book, "is clearly on the eve of a new economic crisis. The crisis doubtless will be profound and prolonged."

His switch in Kommunist, the bible of world communism, reflected an easing away from the old line by Stalin's successors. Deputy Premier A. I. Mikoyan attacked Stalin's economic writings in his general criticism of the Generalissimo at the twentieth congress of the Soviet Communist party in mid-February. Party boss Nikita S. Khrushchev said Communism can learn to live with capitalism without violent revolution.

Capitalism still faces an economic crisis which probably will rate in severity between those of 1929 and 1938, Varga writes, but its present structure is sufficiently solid to withstand the blows of overproduction.

Invoking some of his pet beliefs of the past, Varga said:

"The chief factors which insure a certain volume of industrial production for capitalism in its present stage and during the crises to come are:

"A. Military and government expenditures which show no signs of decreasing in the near future.

"B. The present scientific and technical revolution with its automation of production, increasing use of atomic energy and production of new types of machinery for office work.

"C. The tremendous reverses of capital of the biggest monopolies of the United States, such as oil, steel and automobiles. Because of these reserves the monopolies have no fear of the economic consequences of the crises of overproduction."

SEWER FIRMS FACE POSSIBLE CONDEMNATION

Metropolitan Agency Raises Issue in Dispute Over Acquiring New Lateral Line.

Reported efforts of a private sewer company to obtain ownership of lateral sewers in a new St. Louis county subdivision raised the possibility today that the Metropolitan St. Louis Sewer District might acquire the private firm by condemnation proceedings.

The problem was brought up before the district's board of trustees by a subdivider in the southern part of St. Louis county who planned to connect his lateral sewers to a trunk line now owned by Town Service, Inc., one of the private concerns operating in four county areas.

Town Service officers have demanded that these laterals—estimated to cost $35,000—be signed over to them when the subdivision is finished, the board was told. On the other hand, it was said, the metropolitan district will not issue the necessary sewer construction permit unless the subdivider promises to dedicate the laterals to the district.

'No Room for Private Firms.'

Commenting on the problem, John M. Bogdanor, chairman of the district board, declared that if pending negotiations for the purchase of Town Service and two other firms fail, the district will acquire the facilities by condemnation proceedings.

"This board is fairly well resolved that there isn't room in this district for private operations," he said.

John P. McCammon, attorney for the district, said he had proposed to Town Service officials that the laterals be dedicated to their firm, provided the cost was not reflected in any final purchase price for the company. He said they had neither accepted nor rejected the idea.

If the firm obtained the laterals without such a provision, McCammon declared, "this could run into millions—picking up $35,000 here and $35,000 there."

The district has appointed citizens committees to negotiate for the purchase of the private sewer firms in the county. If the district decides to buy these facilities, the costs would be borne by residents of the areas concerned.

Subdivision in Question.

The subdivision in question, a 77-home project at Valcour avenue and Weber road, in the Affton area, is being financed by the Pine Lawn Bank, whose president, D. W. Dodds, told the metropolitan district trustees that construction is being held up because of the sewer problem.

He said the only trunk sewer in the area is owned by the Town Service firm, which plans to make a sewer connection charge of $250 per home. Dodds added that Town Service officials had told him the laterals could be turned over to the metropolitan district only if an additional charge of $300 were paid.

At this point, Bogdanor remarked to another board member: "It looks like we've gotten into the wrong end of the sewer business."

Bogdanor said Town Service had no treatment plant for sewage it handles in that area, but simply a trunk line which connects to the public sewer in River Des Peres. Any additional charge to Town Service the district might make for this connection would simply be passed on to home-owners, he asserted.

It was suggested in the course of the discussion that the subdivision sewers be dedicated to the district, which would then, if necessary, obtain a public easement through Town Service lines by means of condemnation.

To Hear Head of Firm.

The board agreed to invite Robert J. Joyce, head of an engineering firm and chief stockholder in Town Service, to attend a meeting in the near future to discuss the lateral sewer problem.

Town Service owns sewers in the Marlborough area. Village Service, Inc., another firm in which Joyce is chief stockholder, has sewers in the Oakborough area. The third private sewer concern is Russell & Co., which operates in the Crestwood and Lemay areas.

The trustees adopted an ordinance to permit new employes to take vacations after six months instead of after one year. District officials said about one-third of the district's 375 employes would have been unable to take vacations this summer if the one-year provision had not been amended.

Nepal Coronation Envoys.

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 10 (AP) —President Eisenhower today named John Sherman Cooper, ambassador to India and Nepal, to represent him at coronation ceremonies for the King of Nepal late this month. He also gave Dr. Charles W. Mayo of Rochester, Minn., a similar appointment.

221 FAMILIES WILL BE ORDERED OUT OF BARRACKS

County Housing Authority Declares Them Ineligible on Income Grounds.

Two hundred and twenty-one of the 956 families in the Jefferson Barracks housing project will be given 120 days' notice to vacate because of ineligibility on income grounds, the St. Louis County Housing Authority decided last night.

Robert J. Tracy, executive director of the authority, said an additional 181 families for whom income information is missing or incomplete also might have to move.

They will be notified immediately to provide the information sought or subject themselves to receiving notices to move. Notices to vacate will go out within the next two weeks to the 221 families, Tracy said.

Income maximums for families living in the project range from $3750 to $4600 annually, depending on size of family. The maximums became effective last March 1.

Tracy said the 120-day period was decided on so families could find new homes before the new school term starts next September.

He was unable to say whether the potential of 402 vacancies could be filled. Now pending are 140 applications for quarters in the project. It was originally established for war veterans, but applicants no longer need be veterans, although this category receives preference, Tracy said.

Look for Fire Hazards.

Ten members of the county circuit court grand jury, accompanied by Fire Chiefs Edward G. Rebore of Ladue and Otto Brexler of Clayton and Fire Marshall Roy Weckherlin and Heating Inspector Robert Compton of Clayton, inspected the housing project for fire hazards today.

Grand Jury Foreman Eugene A. Hecker of Ferguson said he was "greatly distressed by the way the whole area has fallen into decay." The visitors inspected two apartments, one heated by propane gas, the other by oil, and Chief Brexler pronounced both fire hazards.

In another action last night the authority hired Ferris & Hamig, consulting engineers with offices at 1706 Olive street, to supervise rehabilitation of the propane gas fuel system at the housing project.

The contract with the firm is subject to cancelation at any time that Laclede Gas Co. makes natural gas available. Laclede now has studies under way.

First action by the engineers will be to inspect the entire system from a safety standpoint, with particular attention to deficiencies found recently in a brief inspection by the Missouri Inspection Bureau, an agency of fire underwriters.

BRITISH TAKE OVER CYPRUS AIRFIELD ON BOMB THREAT

NICOSIA, Cyprus, April 10 (AP)—The British Air Force took over emergency control of the Cyprus international airport today after announcing the finding of a letter instructing an Eoka terrorist agent to place time bombs aboard aircraft.

Technicians installed X-ray equipment to scan luggage and mail for time bombs.

The British made public photostatic copies of the Eoka letter, dated March 30. "I approve the placing of time bombs at the airport," the letter said. It was signed "Dighenis," the name of a legendary island hero which has been adopted by the shadowy leader of the rebel Eoka underground.

Eoka seeks to win union with Greece.

A time bomb exploded in an army-chartered transport March 14 just before it was to load 68 men, women and children, mostly dependents of British servicemen.

EX-MARINE WHO GOT YEAR FREED; NEW CHARGE

Gilman E. Day, former Marine who was sentenced to a year in St. Louis county jail last week on his plea of guilty to reckless driving in a fatal accident, was released on a writ of habeas corpus yesterday in circuit court at Clayton. A new information charging reckless driving was then filed against him and he is to appear for trial Thursday.

Day's petition for habeas corpus was upheld by Judge Michael J. Carroll after Day's attorney argued that the original information failed to detail the charges against him and that there was no official record to show that the defendant had been advised of his right to have legal counsel.

Magistrate Raymond I. Harris, who sentenced Day to the one-year term, testified that his office prepared the original information. Informations usually are drawn up by the county prosecutor's office. The new information, prepared by the prosecutor's office, was filed in the court of Magistrate Leslie T. Lewis. In the accident, which occurred April 2, Mrs. Myrtle T. Hadnot of Kinloch was killed on Natural Bridge road.

PRIESTLEY MEDAL GIVEN TO ILLINOIS U. PROFESSOR

DALLAS, Tex., April 10 (AP)—Dr. Carl Shipp Marvel, research professor in the Noyes Chemical Laboratory of the University of Illinois, received the American Chemical Society's Priestley medal at a session of the association's convention last night. The Priestley medal is named for Joseph Priestley, eighteenth century British chemist credited with discovering oxygen.

Dr. Willard F. Libby, a member of the Atomic Energy Commission, on leave from the University of Chicago, received a $1000 award for nuclear applications in chemistry.

The society's Garvan medal, given annually to an outstanding woman chemist, went to Dr. Allene R. Jeanes, with the northern utilization research branch of the Agriculture Research Service, Peoria, Ill.

MISSING WIFE'S DENTAL PLATE, GLASSES FOUND

L. Ewing Scott Called Before Grand Jury, Told Not to Leave Los Angeles Area.

LOS ANGELES, April 10—L. Ewing Scott, former St. Louisan, was subpenaed to appear before the Los Angeles county grand jury yesterday as police revealed a dental plate and a pair of reading glasses belonging to his missing wife, Mrs. Evelyn T. Scott, had been found near her fashionable Bel-Air home.

Scott was ordered by Chief of Police William H. Parker not to leave this area without permission after his wife's articles were uncovered from beneath a thin layer of leaves and earth. They were about six inches from a wall around the Scott estate.

The county grand jury will begin an investigation of Mrs. Scott's disappearance April 24. It was indicated Scott will be questioned extensively. Mrs. Scott, a wealthy socialite, was last seen last May 16, but her disappearance was not disclosed until last month.

Also directed to testify before the grand jury was Mrs. Marianne Beaman, 47 years old, identified by the district attorney's office as "a friend of Mr. Scott with whom he has been seen" since Mrs. Scott vanished.

Scott, who attended Washington University in St. Louis and worked in St. Louis during the 1920s and early 1930s, told police his wife disappeared after sending him to a drug store to purchase tooth paste. He said he failed to report her disappearance earlier because he thought she had gone East for medical treatment.

Police did not enter the case until March 6 when E. Raymond Throsby, Mrs. Scott's brother, filed a suit asking to be appointed trustee of her $250,000 estate. Throsby charged Scott failed to report his wife missing. A bank has been named trustee of the estate since.

Meanwhile, Scott yesterday won a continuance on a $6818 judgment obtained against him by a printing firm to pay for publishing a book, "How to Fascinate Men."

Congressman Judd's Safe Robbed

WASHINGTON, April 10 (AP)—Representative Walter H. Judd (Rep.), Minnesota, reported to police yesterday that $250 was taken from a wall safe in his office when he was absent in the Easter congressional recess. Judd said nobody in his office knew the combination, which was changed after $150 was taken in 1954.

LADEJINSKY HIRED BY VIET NAM AS LAND ADVISER

WASHINGTON, April 10 (AP)—Wolf Ladejinsky, who was ousted from his United States Government post as adviser on land reform in Viet Nam, is now serving in the same capacity with the Vietnamese government, it was learned last night.

Ladejinsky was ousted from the post with the American government on Feb. 5 this year, on a "conflict of interest" charge.

The International Co-operation Administration announced then it had asked and accepted his resignation from the federal job in Saigon. The ICA said Ladejinsky had purchased $3000 worth of stock in a Chinese glass factory receiving United States aid.

Ladejinsky said he didn't know the company was receiving United States aid.

Ladejinsky is the Russian-born land-use expert whom Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson discharged in December 1954, as a security risk. He then was agricultural attache in Tokyo. After a lengthy dispute, he was cleared and hired for the foreign-aid job in Viet Nam.

The dispute over the Chinese glass factory stock subsequently developed.

CAUTION IN INVOKING TRUST LAW IS URGED

Speaker Warns of Legal Dangers in U.S. Firms' Foreign Enterprises.

Application of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act to essentially foreign enterprises of American firms should be approached with great caution and a spirit of co-operation, Wolfgang G. Friedmann, a professor of law at Columbia University, warned here yesterday.

Addressing an institute on international law and American business at Hotel De Soto, Friedmann said American participation in the development of economically retarded foreign countries in Southeast Asia, the Middle East and Latin America probably would be in the form of partnerships of American firms with these foreign countries or private interests within them.

Asserting some of these partnerships are not free of legal danger, he said a discriminating approach on the part of persons charged with administration of the Sherman Act was needed and that international co-operation was required.

The institute, which was sponsored by the Washington University School of Law, the Bar Association of St. Louis and the American Society of International Law, also was addressed by Stanley D. Metzger, assistant legal adviser for economic affairs in the United States Department of State.

LITTLE JACK LITTLE, RADIO STAR OF 1930S, FOUND DEAD

HOLLYWOOD, Fla., April 10 (AP)—Little Jack Little, composer and dance-band personality of the 1930s, was found dead yesterday in bed, a possible victim of poison, investigators said.

Assistant Medical Examiner Jack Mickley said Little, 56 years old, had been suffering with several ailments in recent weeks and was known to have been depressed. A maid discovered Little's body yesterday afternoon at his home.

Ltle, whose real name was John Leonard, reached national radio fame in the 1930s with his intimate, near-whispering song and piano technique. He wrote "A Shanty in Old Shanty Town," "Jealous," "Hold Me" and his own theme song "Little by Little."

M. GUY HARDIN SR. NOT CONNECTED WITH HARDIN CO.

M. Guy Hardin Sr., former St. Louis certified public accountant, now has no connection with M. Guy Hardin Co., accounting firm with offices in the Paul Brown Building, Leland Jones, attorney for him and the company, said today.

Jones said Hardin terminated his practice here in July 1954, when he was sentenced for income tax evasion. His firm, M. Guy Hardin & Co., with offices in the Paul Brown Building, ceased to exist, Jones stated. A news item published in the Post-Dispatch April 2 said Hardin had accounting offices in the Paul Brown Building.

The present M. Guy Hardin Co. is operated by M. Guy Hardin Jr. and several associates. M. Guy Hardin Sr. has lived in Minnesota since his release from the Federal Medical Center at Springfield, Mo., last summer.

LEMOINE SKINNER JR. HEADS COMMITTEE FOR STEVENSON

Lemoine Skinner Jr. was named chairman of the Stevenson for President Committee of Metropolitan St. Louis at a meeting of the group last night at his home, 29 Portland place.

Vice chairmen selected are Dr. Evarts A. Graham, Mrs. Thomas S. Hall, Mrs. George Gellhorn and Mrs. Roscoe Anderson. Other officers are Paul Rava, secretary, and John D. McCutcheon, treasurer.

The committee announced plans for a "Let's Talk Sense Day" on May 18, to enroll local supporters of Adlai E. Stevenson for the Democratic nomination for President, and to solicit contributions of $1 to $5 to finance a national television program for the presidential candidate.

NEW BILL WOULD ALTER ROUTE OF OZARK HIGHWAY

Board of Public Service OK's Changes to Eliminate Some Objections.

A new bill that would eliminates some of the objections voiced to the route of the Ozark Expressway as set forth in a previous bill that died in the last session of the Board of Aldermen was approved today by the Board of Public Service.

The result of conferences between the City Plan Commission and the Missouri Highway Department, the new bill would move a sizeable section of the route a short distance east of the original location.

Starting at the present terminus of the Third Street Highway near Twelfth street and Gravois avenue, the new route would curve slightly to the west, crossing Eighteenth street at Sidney street, thence slightly to the east, crossing Utah street at Thirteenth street and Broadway at Thirteenth street.

Would Save Health Center.

This more easterly route would cause less interference with the Cherokee Playground and it assures that the Wohl Health Center at Thirteenth and Wyoming streets would be left intact.

Although the new route is west of St. Agathaös Catholic Church and school, it would permit easy access to these structures by means of an overpass at Utah street which would have been closed by an old route. One of the complaints had been the resulting "isolation" of the church and school.

Swinging further to the east as the route continues south of Utah, it would skirt the edge of the Mississippi river bluffs instead of going a short distance inland. It would continue through present Workhouse property just east of the buildings and would leave the Dog Pound, Gasconade street and Missouri avenue, west of the route instead of east of it.

Recrossing Broadway at Dakota street, somewhat south of the crossing proposed in the earlier bill, the route beyond this point wolud generally coincide with the previous proposal.

It is expected the bill will be introduced in the next session of the Board of Aldermen starting next Tuesday. No estimate of the number of homes that would have to be razed for the new route was announced.

NEW CHARTER NEXT STOP IN PROGRESS, MAYOR SAYS

Mayor Raymond R. Tucker today said the drafting of a new city charter is the next step in making St. Louis a modern, progressive city. He spoke at a luncheon meeting of the Greater St. Louis Federal Business Association at the York Hotel.

The first step in bringing the city in line with other communities of comparable size and importance, he said, was the approval by the voters last year of the $110,000,000 public improvement bond issue. He said approximately $12,000,000 from bond issue funds will be spent each year for modernizing the city.

Urging support for the freeholder candidates selected by the St. Louis Citizens' Charter Committee, the Mayor said it is virtually impossible to operate the city efficiently under the present 1914 charter. At the outset of his talk he praised Postmaster Bernard F. Dickmann as "one of the city's best Mayors."

NEXT SUNDAY IN THE POST-DISPATCH

Cardinal Glennon Memorial Hospital for Children

DEDICATION DAY SUPPLEMENT

His Eminence, John Cardinal Glennon

The Cardinal Glennon Memorial Hospital for Children to be dedicated next Sunday is a fitting memorial to a man who was beloved by Catholics and non-Catholics alike.

Next Sunday's Post-Dispatch will feature a special, exclusive 24-page tabloid rotogravure section that tells in word and picture the story of the new hospital and of the many people who made it a reality. The section will be treasured by thousands of St. Louisans of all faiths who revered Cardinal Glennon.

Some of your out-of-town friends would enjoy seeing the Cardinal Glennon Memorial Hospital section. Have a copy of the Sunday Post-Dispatch mailed to them. Just send their names and addresses to Circulation Dept., St. Louis Post-Dispatch, 1111 Olive Street, St. Louis 1, Mo. Enclose 15c for each copy you want mailed. No extra charge for postage.

More Rain Thursday, Friday

Rain, expected to bow out tonight, will be back in the area on Thursday and Friday, Weatherman Harry F. Wahlgren predicted today. Tomorrow will be mild with temperatures ranging from the middle 30s to the middle 60s, he said.

Up until 9 a.m. today the downtown area had recorded 1.02 inches of rain since yesterday, bringing the total for the year to 6.71 inches. Normal to this date is 9.23. Last year 7.38 inches had been recorded by this time.

Rainfall was generally widespread in the state, but the northern sections, where precipitation is needed the most, had somewhat less rain than the rest of the state. Heaviest reported in the state in the 24-hour period ended early today was 1.15 inches at Sullivan. "The rain has been steady and gentle, doing a maximum of good," Wahlgren commented.

Rain and snow were reported in many sections of the nation yesterday. The most rainfall was 2.01 inches at New Orleans. Three to six inches of snow fell from southwest Kansas to the east-central section of that state.

Minimum state temperatures this morning ranged from 32 at Vichy to 43 at Malden. The nation's low was 3 at Fraser, Colo. High readings yesterday in the state varied from 42 at Kansas City and Vichy to 53 at Malden. It was 94 at Yuma, Ariz.

BAKING WITH DUNCAN HINES IS FUN!

MERINGUE IS SPREAD ON BATTER, BAKES RIGHT WITH CAKE LAYERS

Follow package directions for Duncan Hines Yellow Cake, except in Step 2 add 4 egg yolks instead of 2 whole eggs. Spread batter in 2 greased and floured 9-in. round or 8-in. square layer cake pans. Spread this meringue over batter: Beat 4 egg whites with few grains salt until frothy. Gradually beat in ⅔ cup sugar.

Over meringue sprinkle 2 tablespoons sugar and ¼ cup shaved blanched almonds. Bake at 350° for 40 to 45 minutes.

Cool in pans for 15 minutes. Remove from pans. Cool on rack meringue-side up.

To serve, cover meringue-side of one layer with a package of frozen red raspberries or strawberries, partially thawed and drained. Over berries spread 1 cup whipping cream whipped stiff with 2 tablespoons sugar. (Save some whipped cream and a few berries to decorate the top.) Cover with other layer, meringue-side up. Makes 10 to 12 servings.

Try baking meringue on layers of cake made with our other mixes: Spice with peaches as fruit; White Cake with cherries; Devil's Food with bananas.

"If you were lucky enough to have a good German cook as an ancestor, you probably know the Blitz Torte. If not, you'll discover one of the great cakes of the world the first time you make it.

"What makes a Blitz Torte so very different is the thick layer of meringue that bakes crisp-crusted and almond-studded, right on the yellow cake layers. That cake is the kind you make with our Yellow Cake Mix—fine and light and moist, tasting deliciously of the fresh egg yolks you add in this recipe. (The word 'blitz' means lightning—and with our cake mix it's truly lightning-quick, without the old-fashioned work of mixing from scratch.)

"So, you see, your cake layers come from the oven already 'frosted' with golden-brown meringue. And when you're ready to serve, put them together with something creamy for contrast. Often, a custard—plain or fruit-flavored. I like it with a tart fruit like red raspberries, and whipped cream.

"This is the kind of cake that cookbooks call a complete dessert. And I think you'll agree it couldn't be better—or easier!"

UNDER SHADOW OF STALIN

Huge statue of Joseph Stalin looms above parading Hungarian troops in Budapest Wednesday in ceremonies marking the eleventh anniversary of the Communist regime in Hungary. Vestiges of the former Red dictator, now condemned as a tyrant in the current Soviet turnabout, are still much in evidence in Communist-dominated countries. Portraits on reviewing stands are of Soviet and Hungarian leaders. —Associated Press Wirephoto.

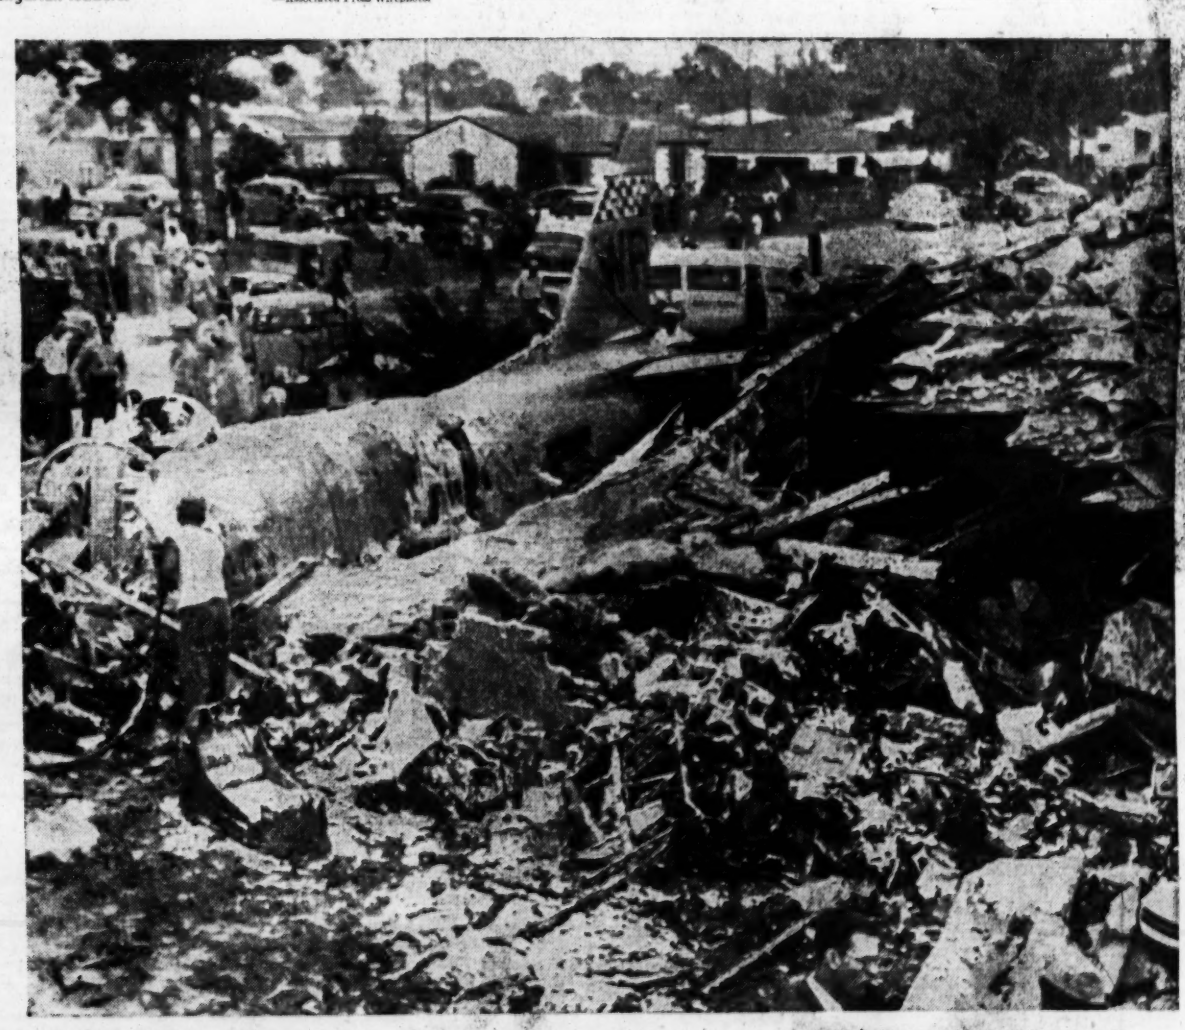

RESTING BEES ARREST PATROLMAN

Patrolman J. M. Alford adopting cautious approach as he examines bees swarming on the headlight of his motorcycle in Montgomery, Ala., yesterday. The bees chose the parked machine for a resting place while the officer was on his luncheon break. Deciding against any rash action, Alford called for an experienced beekeeper to clear the swarm from his machine. —Associated Press Wirephoto.

NOT RIVALS ON ARRIVAL

JET CRASH DAMAGE

LAST PARADE

Engine pumpers of New York's Fire Department, bearing the remains of five firemen killed in blaze Wednesday night, prepare for drive down Fifth avenue following requiem mass in St. Patrick's Cathedral yesterday. 6000 uniformed firemen were in the funeral procession. Services were held in the Bronx later yesterday for the sixth fireman who perished in the fatal blaze. —Associated Press Wirephoto.

A Poor Winner

Cards Are Stacked Against This Dealer

By Art Buchwald

LAS VEGAS, Nev.

AMONG the educational institutions of the great city of Las Vegas is the Nevada School of Dealers, dedicated to teaching American men and women the art of handling cards, dice and roulette wheels. Upon completion of the course the graduates go forth to work in the great casinos of Las Vegas and Reno, and perhaps even to points farther away where gambling is not as legal as it is in this state.

ART BUCHWALD

The owner of the school is an ex-dealer named Rod Morris who started the N. S. of D. five years ago. Without aid from the Government, the Ford Foundation or a great football team he has made the Nevada School of Dealers the Notre Dame of the gambling profession. Rod's alumni can now be found at almost every crap table in the United States.

Since one of the purposes of our trip was to investigate the status of America's educational institutions we enrolled in the school for a condensed course in dealing.

THE N. S. OF D. is almost as hard to get into as Vassar. Just because a man wants to be a dealer, it does not necessarily mean he can be one.

"A man can adapt himself or he can't," Rod told us. "He has to be nimble with his fingers, have a pleasing personality and the ability to keep his mind on what he is doing. When a young person comes in here I recommend he study craps. Craps is a young man's game. Middleaged people are advised to take up 21 or roulette.

"But in your case I would recommend 21 or roulette."

"But we're young."

"Yes, but I'm afraid your fingers are too chubby," he replied, "And if you don't mind my saying so you're just a shade heavy to be leaning over a crap table all the time."

ROD TOOK US into the classroom which consisted of two crap tables, one roulette wheel, and three 21 tables. There were about 15 students in the room. Some were "playing" customers, others were acting as dealers. Three instructors hovered over them marking them as they did their lessons.

"The first thing you have to learn," Rod told us, "is how to handle silver and chips."

He took a stack of silver. "Put all five fingers around it—there is something for each finger to do. The index finger does the counting, the thumb is used as a guide, two fingers hold the stack and, the pinky does the pushing in the rear."

We practiced "cutting" silver for an hour before Rod would let us near a crap table. Once at the table, he let us be the "stick man."

"THE STICK MAN is the most important dealer at a crap table," he told us. "He is the one who keeps up the chatter and handles the dice with the stick. You have to have chatter or a crap game gets dull."

We took the stick and started to chatter. "Here's the dice," we said to a student who was acting as a player. "I hope you lose."

"No, no, no," said Rod. "You must never say you hope a man loses. It's bad for the casino. You must be sympathetic towards a player. Remember, you want him to come back."

The "player" rolled snake eyes which meant he lost.

"Craps," we shouted gleefully, as we raked in his money.

"No, no, no," said Rod. "You mustn't gloat. Gloating is not for dealers. The man lost, but you may lose the next time."

THE MAN PICKED UP the dice and this time rolled a seven which meant he won.

"He's gloating," we told Rod.

"A customer has a right to gloat," Rod explained patiently. "There's nothing wrong if he gloats. But with a dealer it's different."

"I don't see the difference. If he rolls another seven I'll smash him with the stick."

"No, no, no," said Rod. "You must never hit a customer with the dice stick. It's not permitted by Nevada law. Besides, if the customer wins he'll tip you."

"I never thought of that," we said. "I forgot the tips." We started to smile.

"You're gloating again," said Rod. He took the dice stick away from us. It was the worst thing that could happen to a dealer.

He said, "I'm sorry to tell you this, but I don't think you have the aptitude to be a dealer. You're a poor winner, and a worse loser. The Nevada School of Dealers could never give you a diploma. If you wish I might be able to get you a job emptying nickels out of slot machines. The casinos don't mind you gloating when you do that."

Petition Signing

By Christopher Billopp

A PETITION is a paper requesting that something be done or not be done. There is ample space at the bottom of it where people may sign.

A petition is brought to a person by a friend who asks that it be signed. The friend assures that what the petition asks be done should be done, or what it asks should not be done ought not to be done. A glance at the bottom of it will show that it already has been signed not only by the friend who brings it but by other friends and acquaintances. They are people with whom it is pleasant to be associated.

It would be a shame to turn the friend down. Obviously the friend is emotionally aroused over whatever the petition wants done or not done. The friend no doubt is going to a great deal of trouble to circulate the petition and would be offended if the request to sign it were refused. Furthermore, petitions are a part of the democratic way of life. It is the manner in which ordinary people get their opinions expressed. It would be a sad situation indeed if people became so indifferent that they no longer bothered to sign petitions. After all, signing the petition requires little effort. There it is and all that needs to be done is to write one's name in the space indicated.

Thus by signing the petition a person may express an opinion, maintain the democratic way of life and do a favor for a friend with a minimum of time and effort. So the petition will be signed. That having been done, if the signer has any curiosity at all, he will no doubt take a look to see what the petition was about.

Try and Stop Me

A BATTERED old bozo was hauled up in court for picking pockets. "I ain't no crook, Yer Honor," he whined. "In fact, my friends tell me I got a soitain kinda genius."

"They're right," snapped His Honor. "It's a genius for finding things other people haven't lost. Thirty days!"

PASSENGERS on a Madison avenue bus were treated to a rousing husband-and-wife altercation recently. It reached a climax when the wife hollered, "OK, OK, so I like to spend money. Name one other extravagance."

Family Shuns Publicity in Switzerland; He's Planning Movie in London

VEVEY, Switzerland, April 10.

CHARLES SPENCER CHAPLIN, nearing his sixty-seventh birthday on April 16, gives the impression here of a man who at long last has found contentment and security.

The evidence is largely circumstantial, for the one-time movie comic has shut himself away, deliberately and effectively, from a world that was too much with him. What there is adds up to this:

The boy from the London slums, who became a national idol in the United States, and then, very nearly, a national hate, has put aside both the triumph and the misery of the past.

Everything about him, according to local report, suggests a permanence and a stability that may once have been lacking. Chaplin confessed to a "feeling of sadness" at the beginning of his involuntary exile more than four years ago, but of this there is no present sign.

The "little man" of the baggy trousers, twirling cane, and derby hat sailed from New York for England in September 1952 after nearly 10 years of sordid law suits and mounting public clamor about his alleged Communist leanings which, incidentally, he always has denied.

Chaplin, a British subject despite his more than 40 years of residence in the United States, had a valid re-entry permit when he left. But the Queen Elizabeth was scarcely out of territorial waters when United States Attorney General James P. McGranery announced that Chaplin would be held "for hearings" should he ever seek to return.

The charges never have been specified, but McGranery referred a few weeks later to what he said was Chaplin's "sneering attitude towards the country whose generous hospitality has enriched him," and to his "utterly contemptible regard for the high state of womanhood."

McGranery's successor and present Attorney General, Herbert Brownell Jr., announced as one of his first public acts early in 1953 that McGranery's order would be continued in force. Presumably it still stands.

Chaplin, for his part, in a tax brief filed by his attorneys in Washington last summer said he decided late in 1952 "not ever again" to do business in the United States. In the interval he has disposed of his American properties and film holdings.

Two years ago his young American wife, the former Oona O'Neill, daughter of America's most illustrious playwright, Eugene O'Neill, renounced her citizenship as well in a formal ceremony in the United States Embassy in London and took the British nationality of her husband.

IT was a declaration of personal loyalty which fits the little else that is know of their relationship. Charles and Oona eloped in 1943, when Oona was only 18. The marriage, Chaplin's fourth, already has far outlasted any of his earlier affections. It has been unmarred by any public discord.

In addition, it has produced a handsome family of five children, three girls and two boys, the youngest of whom, Eugene, named for Mrs. Chaplin's father, was born in nearby Lausanne in 1953.

On the rare occasions when the Chaplins are seen together in public here, they are warm and thoughtful and seem to be deeply attached.

Uprooting oneself as Chaplin did, whether voluntarily or otherwise, is always a basic decision. Once it had been taken Chaplin showed none of the melancholy and barroom remorse which afflicts so many "refugees" and expatriates.

The reception he was given in Europe undoubtedly was a boost. About the time that McGranery was denouncing him, Princess Margaret was among the guests at the first night of Chaplin's last picture, "Limelight," in London's most fashionable movie house.

A few days later "Charlot," as he is called by his French fans, was given a hero's reception at Paris airport and nearly had his hands broken by well-wishers. In a move that required the formal approval of the French Government, he was made an officer of the Legion of Honor.

In Rome he was cheered for five minutes by an enthusiastic crowd. When he decided to settle here in this lovely part of Switzerland he was welcomed as a respected citizen and a highly-regarded artist.

The truth is that to most Europeans Chaplin appears as a sorely persecuted man.

Early in 1953 Chaplin bought an enclosed park and manor house about a mile inland from the lake for a reported $400,000. On one side is the narrow valley of the Veveyse river. On the other is the curving road that ascends to the top of the vineyard-cloaked hills.

To the east and south are the massive, snowy ridges of the Alps, of Grammont across the lake, and of the seven peaks of the Midi. It is a vista that has made this place a favorite of travelers for more than 100 years.

Technically the estate is located not in Vevey but in the adjoining village of Corsier. The Chaplin youngsters who at first attended private school in Montreux now share the village classrooms with their neighbors.

The house itself is not large, by Hollywood standards scarcely a cottage. It stands, square and freshly-white, among clean grounds and evergreen trees including one huge, spreading variety that shields most of the side to the road.

Chaplin has proceeded steadily and methodically to improve the place, with all the appearance of a man who builds a permanent home. A tennis court was one of the first additions. Despite his nearly 67 years Chaplin still plays regularly.

Next came a swimming pool. This, in turn, led to the only lawsuit in which Chaplin has been involved here. A former secretary sued for back wages charging she had been dismissed in a row about the color of the tiles she had ordered. For a man who has been plagued by court appearances most of his life, this is something of a record. The secretary was awarded six days' pay.

A HOUSE for the servants, across the road, is the newest improvement, but this has saddened the people of Vevey. There is room now for the Chaplins' visitors in their own home. Until this addition was completed they brought their guests to a lakeside hotel here in Vevey.

The Chaplins now are seen less frequently. They occasionally appear at official receptions and once were guests of honor at a showing of the Swiss national circus.

Not long after they were settled, Chaplin began work on a new film. Over a period of two years he wrote the script and the music for a movie to be called, "The King in New York," the story of an American girl who falls in love with a "deposed monarch." Symbolism? Perhaps. There seems to have been some of it also in "Limelight," the story of a man who desperately needed affection.

He is engaged now in the casting and in preparations for the actual filming of the new movie and spends most of his time in London where he lives at the Savoy Hotel. He was here briefly to spend the Easter holidays in the quiet of his family.

One of the features that hasn't changed at all are Chaplin's press relations. These are as impossible as a secretary and a household staff who work hard at the job can make them.

Chaplin refuses to answer his telephone. He does not reply to letters. Curious visitors to the estate are turned away. The secretary, with all the snowy chill of the surrounding mountains in her voice, explains to the newspaper caller:

"My principal job is to keep you away from him."

Concrete Floors.

NO one has ever accused a concrete floor of not being hard. In fact one of the big headaches of having a concrete floor in the home is that after a few hours of standing on it, some people complain that their feet hurt. The truth of the matter is that their feet do hurt and the cause is the hard unforgiving concrete surface.

Covering a concrete floor with some type of resilient flooring such as asphalt or rubber tile will help considerably but in some areas like the kitchen where someone is usually standing most of the day, feet still get tired and begin to ache come evening.

It's possible to make a concrete floor nice and comfortable simply by covering it with a wood flooring. Wood sleepers are first attached to the concrete either with anchors or with a mastic and then the wood flooring is nailed to the sleepers.

Another method is to cover the floor with sheets of heavy insulation board such as used for house sheathing. This is fastened to the concrete with a liquid mastic. Over the insulation board goes plywood or hardboard—5/8-inch plywood or 3/8-inch hardboard and this also is fastened down with a mastic. The finish flooring such as linoleum or resilient tile is then applied in the usual manner over the hardboard or plywood.

All this work produces a mighty soft floor and because the finish flooring is no longer in direct contact with the masonry, it's therefore possible to use types of flooring that are not otherwise suitable if they are to be applied directly to a concrete floor that is in direct contact with the ground.

White Hats Popular

White hats are favorites for wear with spring costumes. If the hat is chosen for a beige suit or dress, it usually adds a beige hand or brim facing. Apricot and aqua are other accent shades with white. For use with a navy costume, a navy blue velvet bow or a navy veil may be added.

Flavorful Idea

Let's Explore Your Mind

By Dr. Albert E. Wiggam

Answer to Question 1.

ALFRED ADLER said the youngest child often feels that he is neglected and determines he is going to "show 'em" what he can do. However, another psychologist believes that when of the first two children one is a boy and the other a girl, and the third child a boy, the boy often takes to delinquency. He reasons, "Mother loves brother, Dad loves sister, but nobody loves me." Each is doubtless right in some cases, wrong in others. Depends on both the parents and boy.

Answer to Question 2.

True, if anything is true. Without productive labor, you feel useless. Without art, you cannot rise into new worlds of beauty and harmony. Without worship, you are a lonely machine with no kinship with higher powers. Without love, you have no warmth, sympathy and joy, and cannot share with your fellow human beings. These are the things that keep life from being barren and futile.

Answer to Question 3.

That is the hard way. The best way is that developed by the late Knight Dunlap, psychologist. Repeat the tune over and over again for periods of five or 10 minutes. Soon, to your surprise, it vanishes.

Quick trick: Melt a quarter-pound of processed yellow cheese in the top of a double boiler over hot (not boiling) water. Gradually stir in a couple of tablespoons of condensed (undiluted) canned tomato soup. Serve over hamburgers on toasted buns.

Cat Troubles

By Stan Delaplane

SAN FRANCISCO.

MY Siamese cat is up the oak tree again this morning. And all around below her are the neighborhood toms, their eyes soft with love and their voices throaty with emotion.

STAN DELAPLANE

"Come out, come out, wherever you are."

The Siamese sits up in the oak tree and spits at them. It is very interesting the way she approaches this problem from on high. It not only gives her a new perspective on the suitors. She can also see if any more are coming up the road.

Well, it is a full-time job for me. Cuffing the tame ones and flinging rocks at the wild ones.

I am not too sure-footed on cats. Even the best of them have a way of sitting and looking at you. As though they were dividing you mentally into chops.

I NOTE there is a new book on cats called "The Complete Book of Cats." It sells for 75 cents. Any complete book that sells for 75 cents is a bargain.

The book is written by Adie Suehsdorf. I presume this is the same Suehsdorf who toiled with me on the dailies many a gay and carefree year ago. He was a sober and industrious reporter and I had no idea he knew anything about cats.

Anyway, there are 26,700,000 household cats in the United States. There are another 500,000 gainfully employed chasing mice out of warehouses and ships and such.

Some 2,000,000 more are pure bums. On the prowl and chasing my Siamese cat up the oak tree.

PEOPLE WHO OWN CATS usually own two. There are about as many cat haters as cat lovers. The most famous cat haters were Alexander the Great, Napoleon and King Louis XVI.

Among famous cat lovers is Irving Hoffman, the blade of Broadway. Hoffman lives in a dreadful deadfall on West Forty-eighth street in New York. His cats prowl the neighbors' apartment and scoop up valuable fish from their aquariums.

MOST OF THE CATS now howling outside my door are advised to take out insurance. I am loading up the old .45 and my nerves are as taut as fiddle string. Cats are advised to recall what they make fiddle strings out of and take it on the Arthur Duffy.

Ah, well, it is Spring and love is in the air. I am trying to be understanding. But I am getting a little too much mileage on me for all this emotion.

WHEN WE are not in love, my cat is a great help in my daily struggle. She lies in the sun on the typewriter table and gently paws the pencils onto the floor one by one.

She lies on the typing paper. And when I need fresh sheets, I must lift her and draw them out from underneath. This, plus bending over for pencils, has given me the waistline of a ballet dancer. My back cracks like a rusty gate. But oh that waistline.

Flinging rocks has developed my eagle eye. And my arm is as sure as a rifle. And in spite of everything I can do, we are all growing younger every day. All the old toms and I.

Feeding Problem

By Frances Ilg, M.D., and Louise Ames, Ph.D.

Of the Gesell Institute of Child Development

"WE have three children. Our 3-year-old is the problem," a mother writes. "As an infant she was considered a premature baby. She took her bottle until she was six months old and all of a sudden refused to take another drink of anything—and she still refuses to this date. We think that possibly a baby sitter might have given her a bottle that was too hot, but we don't know for sure.

"For about the past eight months, I have been giving her a paper cup with a little water in it, and if she imitates her brother drinking and gets even a drop in her mouth, she spits it out. But for the most part she just empties the cup on the rug or furniture or her clothes. She won't put a straw in her mouth. Her liquids come from milk on cereal and strained fruits. When my husband and I were away, we left her with a friend and she dehydrated and had to be taken to a hospital."

SHE CONTINUES: "She absolutely refuses to feed herself and would starve rather than do so. She will take a spoon and play with her food, but she won't feed herself. She also refuses to chew and is thus on chopped and strained foods. I've tried things like the vegetables from soups which are soft and easy to chew, but she just gags. Also she refuses to even so much as put a lollypop in her mouth, or a cookie or even a piece of candy. Her diet is pablum and milk and baby foods.

"When I consulted her pediatrician he just shrugged his shoulders and said she would have to grow up some time, that she wouldn't always be this way. We have run out of ideas in trying to get her to take a drink, chew and feed herself and would appreciate any help you can give us."

THE MOST IMPORTANT THING, for the present, is to recognize that your daughter is a real feeding problem. (You probably suspect this already.) Her situation is complicated by a premature start in life and a strong will. Whether something really happened to frighten her, of course, nobody knows. For the next few months, or maybe years, you will probably have to stay on bland, chopped, strained foods and will have to feed her.

Some children like this will take very crispy foods—bacon, carrot sticks, or very crunchy toast. Sometimes they will finger-feed these things to themselves. But they seem to prefer the extremes of either very bland or very crunchy food. Often this restriction continues through five years of age. Then suddenly some new experience, as a party or a visit to grandmother's, produces quite normal feeding behavior. We have seen this exact situation repeated many times.

You can look for a marked appetite increase in her teens, and possibly even as early as eight years of age. But for the time being, don't expect any sudden change, no matter how cleverly you handle the situation. Actually we're afraid your pediatrician is right. We believe that if you can just accept the fact that her diet will continue to be restricted for some time to come, and that you will have to continue to feed her, all this will not tire and worry you so much.

'Profiles of Courage'

Missouri's Fighting First Senator

Thomas Hart Benton Went Down to Defeat After 30 Years by Unpopular Stand for Union

By Senator John F. Kennedy

This is the third article from the best-selling book, "Profiles in Courage," published by Harper and Brothers. The author is John F. Kennedy, United States Senator from Massachusetts, who tells the inspiring stories of American politicians who had the courage to sacrifice party, popularity, career and ambitions for the principles they believed right.

"MR. PRESIDENT, sir. . . . I never quarrel, sir. But sometimes I fight, sir; and whenever I fight, sir, a funeral follows, sir."

No one in the Senate chamber regarded this as an idle boast by the senior Senator from Missouri, Thomas Hart Benton. True, he had not killed a man since his early days in St. Louis, when a United States district attorney had the misfortune to engage the rugged Missourian in a pistol duel at nine feet.

But all the Senate knew that Benton, whom a colleague had just called "quarrelsome," was a rough-and-tumble fighter off and on the Senate floor. His great ego and vigorous health had made him immune to the wounds of those political clashes from which his adversaries retired bleeding and broken.

(The leathery quality of his skin was in part the result of a daily application of horsehair brush, "Because, sir, the Roman gladiators did it, sir." When asked if the brush were truly rough, he would roar: "Why, sir, if I were to touch you with that brush, sir, you would cry murder, sir.")

But now, rounding out 30 years in the Senate, Benton was under attack—and this time the political funeral that was to follow would be his own.

From 1821 to 1844 he had reigned over Missouri politics. In the words of one of his opponents, it meant "political death to even whisper a breath" against Benton, the state's first Senator. During this charmed period, he did not even need to ask to be re-elected. The fact that he alone disdained patronage, petty congressional graft and favosr from lobbyists may have disturbed the politicians, but not the people of Missouri.

The first Senator ever to serve 30 consecutive years, Benton achieved a prominence which no other Senator from a new state could claim, and he championed the West with a boundless energy no opposing candidate could match. The Pony Express, the telegraph line and the highways were among his accomplishments—and a transcontinental railroad and fully developed West were among his dreams.

"Nobody opposes Benton," he would roar. "Benton and the people, Benton and democracy are one and the same, sir, synonymous terms, sir, synonymous terms."

But by 1844, the handwriting of inevitable defeat had already appeared. Missouri, a slave state, came to feel more strongly that her allegiance belonged to the South. She tended to look with increasing suspicion upon a rebellious Senator whose devotion to the Union was far greater than to the South or the Democratic party.

Benton pursued an independent and increasingly lonely course. He would not go over to the Whig party, whose petty politicians, he said, "are no more able to comprehend me . . . than a rabbit, which breeds 12 times a year, could comprehend the gestation of an elephant which carries two years."

Nor would he seek financial aid from the lobbyists swarming over Washington, telling the agent for one group seeking a ship subsidy that the only condition upon which he would lift a finger to help was "when the vessels are finished they will be used to take all such damned rascals as you, sir, out of the country."

Nor would he make peace with the Missouri political chiefs. Until it was too late, Benton refused to recognize slavery as a major issue, believing that the Missouri Compromise of 1820 (which brought his state into the union and Benton to the Senate) had taken it out of politics, and refusing to debate it on the Senate floor.

"I cannot degrade the Senate by engaging in slavery and disunion discussions," he said.

One of the few members of Congress who still brought his slaves with him to Washington, he nevertheless was equally opposed to the abolitionists and the secessionists, to the permanent extension of this evil into new territory and to the partisan exploitation of its miseries by northern agitators. Above all, he was distressed about the fact that the issue was constantly raised by both sides as a barrier to western expansion and the admission of new states to the Union.

The beginning of Benton's end came on Feb. 19, 1847, Senator John C. Calhoun of South Carolina read to a worried Senate his famous resolutions insisting that Congress had no right to interfere with the development of slavery in the territories. Calhoun called for an immediate vote; Benton rose from his chair.

"Mr. Calhoun: . . . I certainly supposed the Senator from Missouri, the representative of a slaveholding state, would have supported these resolutions . . ."

"Mr. Benton: The Senator knows very well from my whole course in public life that I would never leave public business to take up firebrands to set the world on fire."

"Mr. Calhoun: Then I shall know where to find the gentleman."

"Mr. Benton: I shall be found in the right place . . . on the side of my country and the Union."

("This answer," wrote Benton in later years, "given on that day and on that spot, is one of the incidents of his life which Mr. Benton will wish posterity to remember.")

WHEN, in 1848, the slavery issue split the Democratic party at its convention, Benton, deploring the split and denying the importance of the issue, refused to support either camp actively. He was now a man without a party and a Senator without a constituency.

The noose was set early in 1849. By an overwhelming margin, the Missouri Legislature adopted Calhoun's resolutions, expressing Missouri's desire to co-operate with other slaveholding states, and instructed her Senators to vote accordingly.

Determined to see the resolutions withdrawn or repudiated, Benton launched an aggressive tour of his hostile state. He denounced the leading Southern spokesman for his party, Senator Calhoun (a denunciation he would continue until shortly before Calhoun's death after a long illness in 1850. He withheld his attack then, he said, because "when God Almighty lays His hand upon a man, sir, I take mine off, sir.") He poured out his taunting sarcasm in bombastic thunderbolts of gigantic rage.

Attacking his longtime political enemy, Judge William B. Napton of the Missouri Supreme Court, who had reportedly drawn up the resolutions, he said that any man who acted according to the provisions of those measures would "be subject to be hung under the laws of the United States—and if a judge will deserve to be hung."

In another town, spotting from the platform three of his enemies sitting quietly in his audience while he characterized their resolutions as "fungus cancers," he referred to them by name "as demure as three prostitutes at a christening."

When his attention was called to the criticism of a distinguished opponent, he lashed back, "send him word that Benton says he lied from the bottom of his belly to the root of his tongue."

When he mounted the platform at Fayette, Mo., where his life had been threatened, a body of armed men began an uproar. But, according to the Jefferson City Inquirer, "in a quarter of an hour the insulters were cowed; and the speech for four hours was received with respect and applause."

Benton's turbulent tour could not stem a tide much greater than any one man or single state. When Congress re-assembled, Calhoun was successful in forcing the Democratic caucus to strip Benton of all his committees except Foreign Affairs.

Even his gigantic ego could not have hidden from Thomas Hart Benton the unmistakeable fact that this was his last term—unless. Would he initiate a convention of all Missouri Democrats to settle his differences with the pro-slavery camp?

"I would sooner," he thundered, "sit in council with the 6000 dead who have died of cholera in St. Louis than go into convention with such a gang of scamps!"

Would he speak one word for the South or at least remain silent in order to save the seat he loved for future battles? He would not. As a Missouri associate recalled: ". . . . At an early period of his existence, while reading Plutarch, he determined that if it should ever become necessary for the good of his country, he would sacrifice his own political existence."

As for the contest for the State Legislature that would name his successor raged in Missouri, Senator Benton stood fast by his post in Washington, outspoken to the end in his condemnation of the views his constituents now embraced.

DURING the course of the year, an event termed "the greatest indignity the Senate had ever suffered" served to show the bitter feelings of the South toward Benton. The peppery Senator Henry Foote of Mississippi, suspected by Benton of helping plot his defeat in Missouri, took the floor on several occasions to abuse Benton's position.

Benton announced that, if the Senate failed to protect him from such "false and cowardly" attacks, he intended "to protect himself, cost what it may." On April 17, in the midst of another verbal assault upon him by Foote, Benton advanced toward the Mississippian, then turned back at a colleague's restraining touch. Suddenly Foote whipped out a pistol and pointed it at Benton, who dramatically threw open his coat and cried: "I have no pistol! Let him fire! Let the assassin fire!" Foote did not fire.

Benton's vote against dividing California was his last act of importance in the Senate. In January 1851, climaxing a 12-day struggle among its three parties — Benton Democrats, anti-Benton Democrats and Whigs — the Missouri Legislature elected a Whig. After 30 years in the Senate, Thomas Hart Benton was ignominiously dismissed.

Undismayed, Benton fought to return to Congress the following year as Representative from St. Louis. His campaign, according to the opposition New Orleans Crescent, "ransacked the entire range of the English language for terms of scorn and derision." Elected, he promptly threw to the winds all chances for future re-election by delivering one of his most memorable, and one of his most vituperative, speeches in opposition to the chief measure of his party, the Kansas-Nebraska bill.

"He votes as a Southern man," he commented on the remarks of a member from Georgia, "and votes sectionally. I also am a Southern man, but vote nationally on national issues. . . . I am Southern by my birth—Southern in my convictions, interests and connections, and I shall abide the fate of the South in everything in which she has right on her side."

SOUNDLY defeated for re-election in 1854, Benton in vain sought re-election to the Senate in 1855; and, at the age of 74, made one last, hopeless race for Governor in 1856. His daughter, Jessie Benton Fremont, revealed in her memoirs that her father, suffering from what he knew to be a fatal throat cancer, could speak in public only by maintaining absolute silence for several days in advance. Even then his throat bled during his still ferocious speeches.

That flamboyant ego never deserted him. When the publishers of his "Thirty Years' View," sent a messenger to inquire as to how many copies he thought ought to be printed, he replied: "Sir, they can ascertain from the last census how many families there are in the United States, sir."

In death and defeat, Thomas Hart Benton was victorious. For his voice from the past on behalf of Union was one of the deciding factors that prevented Missouri from yielding to all efforts to drive her into secession. Fate had borne out the wisdom of Benton's last report to his constituents as Senator:

"I value solid popularity—the esteem of good men for good action. I despise the bubble popularity that is won without merit and lost without crime. . . . I have been Senator 30 years. . . . I sometimes had to act against the preconceived opinions and first impressions of my constituents; but always with full reliance upon their intelligence to understand me and their equity to do me justice—and I have never been disappointed."

North did considerable bidding on his far from robust hand, but he was stimulated to some degree by the opposing part-score. In any case, with West opening a heart instead of a club, South should have been reasonably happy in his four-spade contract, even though West's double indicated possible trouble.

South took the first trick with the ace of hearts and, apparently in a great hurry to ruff losing hearts, used that technique immediately. After ruffing a heart at Trick 2, however, he had no convenient play from the table, and for want of anything better, laid down the king of diamonds. West ducked, and declarer then led the diamond queen, hoping to drop the jack. West won with the ace and shifted to the queen of clubs. South won, ruffed his last heart, drove out West's remaining diamond stopper by ruffing, and then led a trump to the queen. South discarded a club on a good diamond, while West ruffed, but West then put his partner in with a club, and on East's continuation of the suit, West was assured of another trump trick for the defeat of the contract.

In hands of this type an immediate ruff in dummy is a costly luxury—the right play is to set up diamonds without delay. West ducks the first round of diamonds but now declarer can return to his own hand with a trump and lead another diamond. Against this line of attack the defenders are in hot water.

It is true that West, on winning with the diamond ace, can cut down dummy's ruffing power by shifting to the trump jack, but this does him no good. Declarer discards two clubs on dummy's diamonds while West is using up his trump trick.

Many St. Louisans Return From Spring Vacations

By Marilee Chadeayne Martin

AS spring activities get under way early season vacations for many St. Louisans are at an end. Mr. and Mrs. Whitelaw T. Terry, 6235 Wydown boulevard, and their daughters, Miss Julia and Miss Betsy Terry, have returned from St. Petersburg, Fla., where they spent two weeks while Miss Betsy was on spring recess from Mary Institute. The Terrys made the trip both ways by motor.

MISS TERRY . . . RETURNS FROM FLORIDA

Also home from Florida are Mr. and Mrs. H. Torrey Foster, 32 Oakleigh lane, Ladue, who were at Vero Beach for more than two weeks. With them were their daughters, Miss Marian and Miss Claire Foster, both students at Mary Institute, and their son, Torrey N. Foster, who is a senior at Yale University. The Fosters' other son, Albert O. Foster, was unable to join the family group as his brief spring vacation from Cornell University came at another time.

Vacationing with the Fosters at Vero Beach were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Currie Noel, 3 Ladue Acres, Clayton, and Mrs. Noel's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert N. Jones, 6464 Cecil avenue, Clayton. The Noels had with them their children, Miss Jodie, who attends Chatham Hall, Chatham, Va., Thomas Jr., a student at Hotchkiss School, Lakeville, Conn., and Teddy, who goes to Ladue School. Mr. and Mrs. Noel and Teddy returned to St. Louis Friday. With the Joneses were their daughter, Miss Carol Bond Jones, on spring vacation from Skidmore College; their son, C. Norman Jones II, who was on vacation from Middlesex School, Concord, Mass., and their younger son, Michael.

Returning from Del Ray after a two-week trip was Mrs. M. Day Dyer, 7134 Pershing avenue, with her sons, Dickie and Morgan, John Burroughs students. They were at the Sea Ranch until Easter.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Van Dyke, 711 Oak Valley, Kirkwood, were among the late season vacationers at Aspen, Colo. They spent nearly three weeks at the ski resort where they were joined by friends from Kansas City, and returned home last week.

St. Louisans Depart for Trip Abroad.

MISS NANCY EWING WIGHT, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ira E. Wight, 29 Lennox place, and Miss Patricia Carol Yeldell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Edmond Yeldell, 15 Mary Hill, Ladue, were among passengers aboard the Maasdam when it sailed for Europe Thursday from New York. The two young women will make a tour of England and the continent during the next two months and return to the United States by plane June 2.

A bon voyage party for the girls on board ship was attended by several of their friends from New York. Miss Wight's mother and her brother, Ira E. Wight III, who lives in New York, and Miss Yeldell's father also were on hand to see the travelers depart. Mrs. Wight returned home yesterday and Mr. Yeldell over the weekend.

Going first to Paris Miss Wight and Miss Yeldell will remain in France until the middle of next month when they journey to England, arriving in London May 12. While in England they will occupy countryside cottages at York for three days and at Kent, for the same length of time. Their itinerary of the continent, in addition to France, will include Belgium, the Netherlands, Germany and Italy.

Mr. and Mrs. Yeldell's elder daughter, Mrs. Edward LeRoy Traxler (Ann Yeldell), with her husband and two children, Thomas and William, came from their home in Grosse Pointe Farms, Mich., for an Easter visit, and to see Miss Yeldell before she left for Europe.

Others who have given parties for the bride-elect include Miss Susan Carr and Miss Beverly Zeuschel who were hostesses at a dinner at the home of Miss Carr's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred C. Carr Jr., 4542 Maryland avenue, and Miss Lexie Hill who gave a cocktail party at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn C. Hill Jr., 4931 Laclede avenue.

Mr. French, an airman on duty at Lockbourne Air Force Base, Columbus, O., will have Lt. Peter Balle Kirschten, stationed at Scott Air Force Base, as best man. Ushers will be Miss Darst's brother-in-law, William Joseph Costello, and her brother, James E. Darst Jr. Miss Darst's attendants have been previously announced.

The ceremony will be performed in the Blessed Sacrament Chapel of St. Louis Cathedral at 11 o'clock in the morning by the Rev. Edward T. O'Meara. Afterward Miss Darst's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Edward Darst, 4931 Laclede avenue, will give a small reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Costello, 5 Arundel place, Clayton.

Coming from out of town for the wedding will be: Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Morton French of Chicago, parents of the prospective bridegroom; Miss Darst's brother-in-law and sister, Dr. and Mrs. John Jerome King (Julia Darst) of Durham, N.C.; Mrs. Darst's cousins, Thomas A. Dean, and Mrs. Dean, and Mrs. James Patrick FitzGerald of Winnetka, Ill., and Mr. French's uncle, William French of New York.

Dr. and Mrs. French will give a reception at their home for the newly married pair when their son and his bride return from their wedding trip.

Help for Women of India

By Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK.

MY friend, Mrs. William Dick Sporborg, who is an ardent member of the Federation of Women's Clubs, sent me a very delightful story of what members of the Homemakers Club of Glen Burnie, Md., headed by Mrs. Samuel J. Anderson, did for the women of the village of Rai in India.

Of course, they did not do it all alone. They got valuable help from Washington and cooperation from Harold Stassen, who had discovered the plight of these women on one of his trips to India. He found they were walking a whole day to draw water from a contaminated well.

Mrs. Anderson, reading the story, couldn't finish her glass of iced tea. She realized she could turn a tap faucet and have clean water for bathing, drinking and for general use and did not have to walk a whole day to get water which would bring dysentery and illness to anyone who drank it.

SOMEHOW, the women of Glen Burnie were fired with the idea of helping these women of India. They got assurances from Mr. Stassen that the $400 they raised for a new pump would be used for that purpose and that new work would be started to help the village develop wells for irrigation of crops and that laundry and bathing facilities would be established.

The best part of the story, as told by Mrs. Anderson, is this:

"I think the project has done as much for us as it will do for the women in India. It whipped up club interest, gave us such a vital goal in our club work. We have never been more unified, felt warmer or closer to one another. It was a wonderful experience for us."

I HAVE a letter of protest concerning my statement a short time ago that French was being taught badly in our public schools, colleges and universities.

The writer of the letter points out that I remarked than an audience I was in could understand a French play and insists that this was true because "the methods of teaching French and other languages have undergone a remarkable revolution in the course of the last few years."

I am delighted to hear that such is the case but sad when told that fewer and fewer young Americans are taking any foreign language at all at the elementary level.

I think that any young American, understanding how rapidly the world is being drawn closer and closer together, should take at least two languages as well as his own. French should be studied because it is spoken by many people around the world, nearly as many as speak English. And the student should take another language—the native tongue of the country he or she may be interested in and hopes to visit.

Incidentally, I think Latin and Greek provide valuable background for nearly all modern languages, and if I were young today, I would take both of these, as well as the modern languages.

Martha Carr's OPINION

Dear Martha:

OUR mother-in-law firmly believes she is the "only" capable person who can handle our children on the very few nights we go out. According to her, there is no baby sitter alive who is responsible. We have used baby sitters many times much to her disapproval and have on several occasions come home to find the baby sitter quite upset due to the fact that Momma just happened to be in the neighborhood and thought she would drop in to see if everything is going well. Our sitters have been women, usually 40 to 50 years old, and we feel they are able to handle any situation. We appreciate Momma's interest and good intentions, but it is sometimes embarrassing. We would like to have a few ideas from strangers as to how we can gently and diplomatically handle this.

FRUSTRATED.

I think I would be inclined to let her take over the baby sitting chores if she is that determined. You don't say whether she is capable, but unless she is infirm or ill or unless you have reason to feel she would not be able to meet a difficult situation as well as the other sitters you have called in, why not give her the job? You say you don't go out often, and it probably would make her feel needed and important if you could turn over the children to her on those occasions. I'll be glad to have answers from other readers, however.

Dear Martha:

MY BROTHER, who is seven years older than I am, works out of town, but he usually comes home on weekends. The last time he was here he brought a friend with him and I liked this fellow right away. He seemed to like me and asked me for a date that Saturday night. When my brother found out about it he got mad and told me not to go. I liked the boy so I went anyway and he seemed all right, except that he drank too much. He wants to come back again and I want him to, but my brother tells me he isn't the right kind for me and that he won't let him come home with him any more. Do you think that's fair of my brother, Martha? After all, I'm 20, and I think I should have the right to date the fellows I want to.

LIZ.

Just be grateful, Liz, that you have a brother who cares that much about you. A man can't often fool another man, so accept his judgment. This fellow may be all right, but if your brother doesn't like the idea of your dating him, then rest assured that there's some very good reason why you shouldn't. You yourself point out that he "drank too much." That in itself should be a warning flag.

IN ANSWER TO Mrs. R.: The best man and ushers dress exactly as does the bridegroom in a formal wedding, except that their boutonnieres will be different. In an informal ceremony, the men can wear dark business suits which will harmonize with one another but need not be exactly the same cut and pattern, of course. Their ties, however, should be uniform.

IN ANSWER TO I.J.P.: This is a legal question on which I could not give an opinion. I would suggest that you discuss it with the Lawyers' Reference Service, Civil Courts building, where you can receive basic legal advice and possible referral to another attorney if further counsel is indicated.

Send today for Martha Carr's free leaflet, "Guide for the Bride," which will answer many of your questions on wedding etiquette. Be sure to inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

Bing Crosby's Best Girl

Kathy Grant Is Young, Beautiful and Intelligent

By Bob Thomas

HOLLYWOOD, April 10 (AP). MEET Kathy Grant, the light of Bing Crosby's life.

It's easy to see why she is Bing's best girl. She is young and beautiful. She is intelligent, can discuss music, books or most anything. She has a ready laugh and a soft, musical voice.

In brief, she's a doll.

Will Bing marry Kathy? Sorry—I've got no scoop on that score. Bing himself is a great open-field runner through reporters' questions about his marital future. And Kathy maintains a discreet silence on matters concerning Crosby.

But she's a willing talker on other matters, and I investigated her budding career.

Kathy is one of those rarities—a beauty contest winner who made the grade in the movies. Born in Houston 24 years ago, she cherished the idea of becoming a movie star when she was a youngster.

Her first beauty honors came as "Miss Buccaneer Navy" of Corpus Christi, which netted her a trip to Mexico City. At 16 she was chosen the Texas Rodeo Queen of the Houston Fat Stock Show and Exhibition. That was the start of her road to Hollywood.

"Roy Rogers was appearing in the show," she recalls. "I met him and his manager, Art Rush, and they urged me to come to Hollywood."

But they suggested that she finish school first. She went to the University of Texas, meanwhile becoming the Golden Girl of the Texas Baseball League and Queen of the Texas Lions. By 1952, she figured she had had her fill of contests and was ready to storm Hollywood.

Within a week after her arrival, she had met Rush, been taken to Paramount, tested for "Forever Female" with William Holden and signed by the studio.

But she lost the role to Pat Crowley. The reason: "I had a Southern drawl you could cut with a knife."

BING CROSBY AND KATHY GRANT . . . SHE CAN DISCUSS MUSIC, BOOKS OR MOST ANYTHING ELSE.

"One day an assistant director said, 'Hey, you—I never can remember your name,'" she says. "That was when I decided I'd better get a new one."

PARAMOUNT dropped her, but she bears no bitterness —"I never did anything for them; why should they do anything for me?" One good thing came out of her stay at the studio: she met Bing there.

Never a girl to remain idle, Kathryn landed a contract at Columbia, meanwhile writing a newspaper column for 20 Texas papers and taking courses at U.C.L.A. Last summer she returned to the University of Texas and got her degree in fine arts, making up 21 units in eight weeks. One of her reasons for wanting it was that she might need to teach some day if her acting career blows over.

That doesn't look likely. Columbia has been putting her in increasingly important parts, the latest being "Reprisal" with Guy Madison. Talent boss Maxwell Arnow told her she's "on her way" — "and that's high praise for him."

The gossips keep saying Bing will pick up her option, too, but I wouldn't know about that.

All Work And No Play At College

By Elinor Williams

IT'S grim when high school or college is all work and no play. Have you any tips to help this girl who needs more fun to brighten her life?

"I feel as if I haven't a friend in this world. I am 18 and doing housework to earn my room and board at college. I have no time for clubs or meeting people, so I have no close friends. I never go out with boys, except on blind dates, then I enjoy it and they seem to, too, but they never call me again. It's getting on my nerves and I have thought of leaving school."

ANSWER. You have a tough problem, but you're doing such a worthwhile thing—earning a college education—that I'm sure you can solve it, and don't even think of leaving school. It will work out, if you give it more time. Try this:

Talk with the dean. Tell her your situation. Try to get a job on the campus at the first opportunity, so you can meet more people and take more part in college life . . . a job in the campus store, library, dining room or kitchen. The hours will be shorter, giving you more time for studies and fun. As soon as a job is available, you'll be able to live on the campus, too. Perhaps part-time work is available in a faculty home.

Try to keep your grades high enough so you'll rate a scholarship, next year. This, with a campus job, will enable you to live in a dormitory and share real college life.

Make arrangements for an afternoon or evening off and join a club or activity where there are boys and attend regularly. Be friendly.

HAVE a real gab-session with a date-busy girl about clothes, makeup tricks and chatter that help make a girl attractive to boys. Watch popular girls to see how they look, act and "get along" with boys; you can "be yourself" and learn from others, too. Above all, remember that most of the difficulty is not with you, but due to the fact that you're off-campus and not available all the time, like other girls. Boys like happy animation; try to look gay, as if you were having a wonderful time, even with girls. Think you're pretty and likeable and you will be.

Make whatever arrangements you can now with the dean and your employer to improve your situation, then "stick to it" the rest of this year. Next year, you'll be in a position to get a better campus job, possibly a scholarship, and life will be much brighter . . . more fun, too. Good luck.

Grape Juice Idea

Freeze undiluted grape juice in the ice-cube tray of your refrigerator. Serve two or three of the cubes in a tall glass of ginger ale. Nice at a party for young people.

International Pattern

THIS is a model that is truly worthy of Worth, designed as it is with all the fine detail and flattering lines identified with this house. The elongated bodice is cut so that the front and back center panels form the scooped neckline. The side pieces have a little fullness where they join the top-stitching of the neckline band. On the slim skirt are a pair of applied pockets also top-stitched in a repeat of the detail. The custom-made pattern, perforated with precision, is easy to translate with or without the push-up sleeves in novelty cottons, plain or printed silks, linen, pique or sheer wools.

This hand-cut, custom-made pattern is not standard sized but is the only pattern available with exclusive designers retail sizing measurements for a more accurate fit, better styling, less altering. Open perforations for easy markings without damaging tissue; also time saving, fabric saving, money saving; no tracing wheel or carbon paper needed; easy to follow instructions for beginners. From this chart selest the size best for you.

Steamed Date Nut Bread

Ingredients: One cup sifted flour, one cup enriched corn meal, one teaspoon salt, one teaspoon baking soda, one teaspoon baking powder, one cup whole-wheat flour, ¾ cup molasses, two dates, ½ cup chopped nutmeats.

Method: Sift together white flour, corn meal, salt, soda and baking powder. Add whole-wheat flour, blending well. Add molasses, buttermilk, dates and nutmeats, mixing thoroughly. Fill three greased No. 2 cans or other molds ⅔ full; cover tightly; steam three hours. (Boiling water should come halfway up cans.) Remove covers and place in a very hot oven (450°) five minutes before removing bread from cans.

Need for 'Gossip'

By Ruth Millett

SOME husbands are amused and some are outraged by the amount of time their wives spend in what they term "gossiping across the back fence or yak-yaking on the telephone."

RUTH MILLETT

The funny thing is that these men don't seem to realize that the woman who talks to her neighbors over the back fence or on the telephone has just as much need to exchange ideas with other housewives as a business man has to exchange ideas with other business men.

Business and professional men trade ideas over the lunch table, during office hours, over a drink when the day's work is done or on the golf course. They get mental stimulation, new ideas, an awareness of what is going on outside their own office by these conversations.

The woman whose job is running a home and looking after a family needs to trade ideas, too. In a conversation that sounds to a man like so much yak-yak a woman may find out the name of a seamstress who can make over last year's dress, a new recipe for her next bridge luncheon or the name of a house painter who is highly recommended. Or she may simply get the reassurance that her problems aren't hers alone and so be able to come back to a frustrating problem with a new point of view.

The point is, women are much more understanding of a man's need to talk than are men of a woman's need for the same outlet. Men act superior and call women's talk "gossip." But most woman talk doesn't include more actual gossip than the talk of men.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

A READER writes: "Some friends of ours wrote and told us they were planning to visit us at a certain time. It so happened that my husband and I had planned on going on a short vacation at that same time. I immediately wrote back and said that we were going to be away and that we would be glad to have them come at any other time. I haven't heard from these friends since and have found out that they are peeved. Was it wrong to write and tell them they could not come?"

Certainly you should not have been expected to change the plans you had made. To have expected you to do so was not only incorrect but unreasonable.

DEAR MRS. POST: Will you please tell me the proper way to eat peas? As you know they slide all over one's plate and can be very difficult to eat. Would it be proper to mash them between the tines of the fork and eat them that way, or should they be speared?

Answer: Correctly, you push the ends of the tines of the fork under the peas and lift a not-too-big mouthful onto the fork. If you find this difficult to do, it would be permissable to mash a few with the tines of the fork and eat as you would mashed potatoes.

The Little Woman

Ah, Spring!---Daffodils, Squills, Poetry

By Clarissa Start

WHEN I was a college freshman, I discovered poetry and spring flowers. I discovered quite a few other things, too — unrequited love, gin, and how to appear to give rapt attention to one dancing partner while prospecting over his shoulder for another. But in the light of my present life as a suburban housewife, the discovery of poetry and spring flowers was important.

Clarissa Start.

I had been exposed to poetry before, of course. To Sidney Lanier in Southern schools and to various classics which we memorized in high school. The basic requirement was 12 lines (Joyce Kilmer's "Tree") and the entire project ended in a competitive fury with two little girls committing to memory 200 lines a night in an effort to outdo one another. I blush to admit that I was the winner. But none of this poetry made much of an impression. Of high school literature I remember chiefly, "Julius Caesar," and "Ivanhoe," on which we used to paste advertisement captions reading, "Scott's Emulsion."

EDUCATORS MAY MAKE what they will of this but I didn't discover poetry through college English classes either. When Sara Teasdale, St. Louis born poet, died, the Post-Dispatch printed the story of her life and some of her poems. Suddenly there came the discovery that poetry could be read and loved and dreamed over on rainy nights.

My tastes were inquisitive if not all encompassing. Byron, Browning, Keats, Shelly, e. e. cummings, and Rabindranath Tagore, in very arty moments. How all this ties in with spring flowers is that it was the spring of the year that I read Amy Lowell's poem, "Patterns."

"Patterns" wasn't intended to paint a picture of spring flowers but to decry man's inhumanity to man and the stupidity of following patterns. The message came through but it was the line about the garden path with "daffodils and bright blue squills" that made a lasting impression.

That was because I was discovering, simultaneously, that my ladlandy's backyard was filled with flowers. I'm sure I'd seen flowers before. There were vague recollections of violets in the woods near a farm where we'd lived until I was five, and of hibiscus in Florida. But my formative years had been spent in city apartments and flats divided by brick gangways. I'd seen flowers, in Shaw's Garden. But not daffidils and tulips and forsythia and lilacs blooming in a backyard.

THE RESULT of these vivid impressions at an impressionable age was a lasting one. The first house we owned had to have a garden path, and squills and daffodils. Last year when we moved to our new old house, long after the spring flowering season, I had an idea the former owners had planted spring flowers but I was taking no chances. In fall I began setting out bulbs. Tulips, narcissus, crocus, squills, and daffodils. It was a raw cold day in November and my fingers were numb as I finished, thinking grimly, "I hope it's worth all this."

Spring this year has been a continuing delightful surprise as peach and plum trees have flowered, bushes come into blossom, bulbs we didn't know we had popped up. And as I walk along the garden path there are the daffodils and bright blus squills. Well worth the frozen fingers.

THIS IS THE DIFFERENCE!

RARE MOUNTAIN COFFEE puts the distinctive flavor in Folger's ...a flavor you'll find rich and tangy, never flat, never bitter!

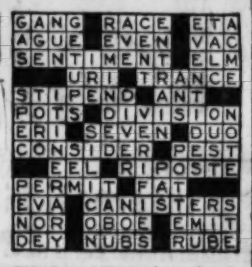

High in remote mountain regions where there is an abundance of fertile volcanic soil, warm tropic rain, and year-round sunlight, nature grows a rare type of coffee. This Mountain-Grown coffee, conceded to have the rarest tang and most satisfying flavor of any coffee known today, is the difference you taste in Folger's. This naturally more flavorful coffee, blended in the unique Folger way, gives you a rare fragrance and refreshingly richer flavor —unlike anything you've ever tasted before. Try Mountain-Grown Folger's tomorrow.

Glazed Corn Muffins

Ingredients: One cup sifted flour, four teaspoons baking powder, half a teaspoon salt, two tablespoons sugar, one cup enriched yellow cornmeal, one egg, one cup milk, one-fourth cup shortening (soft), one tablespoon honey, one tablespoon butter.

Method: Sift together the flour, baking powder, salt, sugar and cornmeal into a medium-sized mixing bowl. Add egg, milk and soft shortening. Beat with rotary beater until smooth—about one minute. Do not overbeat. Fill 12 one-third-cup-size muffin cups each two thirds full. Bake in hot (425-degree) oven until cake tester, inserted in center of a muffin, comes out clean—about 15 minutes. A few minutes before muffins finish baking, remove from oven and brush tops with blended honey and butter. Return to oven to finish baking. Serve hot.

Television Notes and Gossip

A NEW television series, "Backstage," which will present stars in actual incidents in their lives, is in the planning process. Former St. Louisan Vincent Price will be host for the series. Price has appeared in a number of television plays, the most recent on "Spin Into Darkness," on "Climax" on KWK-TV last Thursday night.

When Jean Hagen announced that she was leaving Danny Thomas show, "Make Room for Daddy," Thomas was swamped by calls from actresses seeking the part of his TV wife. Some of these applying were "big names" not only in television but in the movies.

Perry Como plans to take a 12-week vacation in Honolulu when his show goes off the air for the summer.

Edward Arnold will star in "The Last Showdown," about a successful business man and a shady deal that boomerangs, in "Television Theater" on KSD-TV at 8 to-morrow night.

Guests on the "Red Skelton Show" on KWK-TV at 8:30 tonight will be Sonny Tufts and the Warner twins.

Lee Duncan, owner and trainer of Rin Tin Tin, says the dog star understands 114 separate and distinct word commands. Japanese fans of Rin Tin Tin have given him a Japanese name which means "beast with brain of man but dog all the same."

Walt Disney is planning a nation-wide search for youngsters between five and 14 to take part in his "Mickey Mouse Club" program. Any with exceptional talent will have an opportunity to become permanent members of the repertory group, "The Mousketeers."

When Jack Benny is in Europe this summer, Kim Novak will do a television film with him in England. Maurice Chevalier will do one with Benny in Paris.

Special Green Bean Dish

Ingredients: Two packages (10 ounces each) frozen French style green beans, one cup boiling water, two cans (10½ ounces each) condensed cream of mushroom soup, two teaspoons soy sauce, one can (3½ ounces) French-fried onions.

Method: Put green beans and boiling water in a saucepan; do not add salt. Bring to a boil, breaking up beans with a fork; cover and boil three minutes or until beans lose their raw taste but are still green and crisp. Drain beans, reserving ½ cup liquid. Empty undiluted mushroom soup into saucepan; stir in the ½ cup reserved bean liquid and soy sauce; heat, stirring often. Add drained beans and reheat. Turn into shallow two-quart baking dish; sprinkle with onions; place under broiler for a few seconds just long enough to heat and brown onions; watch carefully. Makes 10 to 12 servings.

WHILE Prince Alfred was growing up, England was under attack from the sea. Several thousand men (who were known at that time as Danes, but who belonged to the big group called Norsemen) made raids on seaside villages, and often came ashore to settle down.

Growing into young manhood, Alfred was called to the assistance of King Aethelred, the brother who was nearest to him in age. Together they fought through several battles. Sometimes they were on the winning side, but on other days they lost.

AFTER one victorious battle, Aethelred died, probably as the result of wounds suffered during the conflict. Alfred became King of both the Saxons of Wessex and the Jutes of Kent.

Step by step, Alfred united most of the Anglos, Saxons and Jutes of southern and southwestern England. He won back the city of London, which had been lost to the Danes.

One trouble was that the sturdy Danes kept on coming from the mainland of Europe. To meet that trouble, King Alfred ordered his men to build larger boats than those used by the Danes. Soldiers and oarsmen were placed on the Anglo-Saxon boats, and were sent out to head off the Danes before they could land.

THAT MARKED the beginning of the English fleet, and it did much to cut down the trouble from the Danes. The invaders, however, were strong, and Alfred saw the wisdom of making peace with them. A treaty was drawn up and signed. It gave the Danes most of the land in eastern and northeastern England, but the rest was to be under control of King Alfred and his friends.
